Fire Control.
Religion in Russia.
If You Live Until 2033.
Buy, and Buy American.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE PRESIDENT has proclaimed a week of fire prevention and you are in that week. Last year 7,000 were burned to death, $400,000,000 worth of property destroyed by fire in the United States. More than half the deaths, three-quarters of the property loss could have been prevented.

To regulate reckless fire insurance might help. No insurance should be issued on nonfireproof buildings in which families sleep on upper floors.

If there were no fire insurance on such buildings the owner would be in the cellar himself looking for combustible materials, and he would know all about his electric wiring.

MR. ALLEN, recently governor of Kansas, finds strange things, traveling through Russia.

In the "Anti-God Institute" of Leningrad, established in the old Cathedral of St. Isaac, he saw "two ghastly corpses" one, that of a peasant, taken from a humble grave, "the decaying shreds of his clothing hanging to his bones." The idea is to show that he could not rise, as he was, on the day of judgment.

The other corpse was that "of a disinterred priest" that "had once reposed in a rich coffin as a holy object. A gloved, mummified hand had protruded outside the coffin. Peasants might kiss that hand for a few kopecs."

There the idea is to show the peasants that the priest also had not risen, and that his hand, apparently whole, was a deception.

The museum also showed "a picture of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., heading a Baptist parade in Chicago as a malign example of religious oppression that capitalism is laying upon the American people."

NOT ALL Russians have given up religion Some still whisper to each other, "the years of God are long," and atheism, according to Mr. Allen, does not satisfy the Russian peasant.

It really doesn't satisfy anybody. That is why religions are established, to answer such questions as "Who made us, and put us here?" and "Where do we go next?"

DR. CRILE, of Cleveland, an able scientist, has encouraging news if you expect to live until the year 2033. Then, according to Dr. Crile, there will be no more tuberculosis or diabetes.

And various other diseases that kill many may also be gone, and men will live longer. Cancer may persist after 2033, but there is good news about that disease, many doctors reporting numerous cures that have remained "cures" after five years.

Disease would diminish, and many lives would be prolonged, if men knew enough to take care of their teeth, or would only get rid of teeth with abscesses at the roots, that poison the blood stream.

WOMEN SPEND 85 per cent of the household money, according to Gen. Johnson, and he appeals especially to them to support the "buy now" campaign, and thus "help to keep the wage earner on a payroll."

It is a good idea to add "Buy American" to your "buy now" program. Unless you buy goods made in America, you are spending money to keep some foreigner on a payroll. That ordinarily would be desirable, but it is not so important with more than ten million Americans idle.

GEORGE, ALIAS "Machine Gun" Kelly, accused in the Urschel $200,000 kidnaping, has abandoned his role of "great, big, bad bandit," since he was surprised asleep.

But his wife, Kathryn, "slim" and "svelte," to the reporters, is not cowed. In court, she slapped an officer in the face, and said:

"Yes, and I would slap him again."

He had pushed her ahead when she wanted to stop and kiss her father. Mr. White, the slapped federal officer, who thought "Machine Gun" Kelly, with shackled hands and feet, had threatened him, pounded his prisoner over the head with the butt end of his revolver. That hurt "Machine Gun" Kelly's feelings.

It is believed that recent condemnation of a considerable number of kidnapers to life imprisonment, soon to be followed by the execution of one or two kidnapers in the state of Missouri, will discourage the kidnaping industry.

MR. ROCKEFELLER'S investigators, planning for liquor control after prohibition shall have ended, advised low taxes on wine and beer, in the interest of real temperance.

Thomas Jefferson had the same idea.

In 1815, he wrote to Charles Yancey that he hoped "to see this beverage (beer) become common." Of wine he wrote to Albert Gallatin in 1807:

"The introduction of a cheap wine into my neighborhood within two years past has quadrupled in that time the number of those who keep wine and will ere long increase them ten-fold. This would be a great gain to the treasury and to the sobriety of our country."

The Rockefeller investigation also recommends "the frank acceptance and treatment of beer containing not more than 3.2 of alcohol as a non-intoxicating beverage."

QUIZ WOMAN IN SOLES CASE

Four McKeesporters Questioned By Probers

"The other woman" in the investigation of the alleged murder of attractive Mrs. LeRoux Soles, the McKeesport artist, has been found and questioned, County Detective Peter Connors revealed today.

She is the woman with whom the husband, Robert S. Soles, who is accused of his wife's killing, spent several hours before he returned to his fashionable home and fired the fatal shot, according to Connors.

FOUR QUESTIONED

Connors told this much today after questioning four McKeesporters to help form the basis of the prosecution against the prosperous businessman.

While Soles was being quoted as declaring he was enjoying his stay in the county jail, Connors and District Attorney Andrew T. Park set out to trace the history of the bullets found in the Soles home.

According to Connors, Soles' chauffeur, Walter Williams, Negro, was sent to Max Schrader's hardware store several days after

STEEL MILL PICKETS GASSED

By DAVID ROSENTHAL
Staff Correspondent.

WEIRTON, W. Va., Oct. 10.—Into a crowd of several thousand strikers and spectators gathered outside the Weirton Steel Company's mills today West Virginia state police tossed a half-dozen tear gas bombs.

The crowd tried to scurry away, but not before some of the braver had recovered two of the tear bombs and tossed them back at the police, several of whom were soon in tears.

This disturbance today attended the efforts of the steel company to reopen its plants after more than a week of idleness and picketing.

TROOPERS JEERED

The crowd, hissing the troopers and calling them rather uncomplimentary names, was pushing its way into the street just outside the mills when the troopers set up their barrage of gas.

The attack was successful only temporarily. The crowd had hardly departed before it began to return. So long as they confined themselves to the sidewalk opposite the plant the troopers did not bother them.

Later the troopers broke up a parade of the pickets. Twenty-five automobiles and trucks, plastered with union signs and loaded with men and women, were scattered by the police.

Perhaps 200 workmen entered the mill gates at 8 a. m. More, however, might have entered on trains which run direct to the mills from Steubenville. Of the Weirton mills' 9,000 employes, 2,800 live in Steubenville.

Company officials claimed the full shift of almost 3,000 reported.

Fifty automobiles, each with four men, drove through the gates on the call to work. They were not molested.

LEADER GOES TO CAPITAL

William Long, strike leader, drew cheers from the crowd as he motored out of the city. He said he was en route to Washington with four co-workers to confer with the National Labor Board on the Weirton situation.

FRICK HEAD, MURRAY MEETING

U. M. W. Officia Insists on Union Victory

Mine Leader Philip Murray late today was to demand that Thomas Moses, president of the H. C. Frick Coke Company as spokesman for the steel corporation's captive mines, recognize the United Mine Workers of America.

The meeting, ordered by President Roosevelt, was to have been at 2 o'clock. But Moses asked postponement until later in the day.

UNION DEMANDS

As international vice president of the union, Murray was prepared to show reasons why the captive mine operators should yield to his demands. Both knew that whatever agreement they might reach, it must meet the approval of President Roosevelt, whose pressure brought about the negotiations.

Moses was to represent the United States, the Bethlehem, Jones and Laughlin and National Steel corporations—the "big four"—and all the wealth and power they represent.

Murray was to speak for 85,000 or more pitmen, soot-faced, underground workers, whose protest against the refusal of the captive mines to recognize the union has kept Western Pennsylvania coal fields in a turmoil, and had shut down most of the mines for a month.

The Frick office is in the Frick Annex.

Anxiously awaiting the outcome of the conference were operators and miners alike; Washington NRA officials who felt the effects of the turbulence, and others more remotely concerned.

REPLY TO MURRAY

Owners of captive mines, ordered to negotiate with the miners by President Roosevelt last Saturday, met yesterday in New York. Murray, who on Saturday had requested that Moses and he meet, late yesterday received the following telegram:

"Replying to your telegram of October 7, I will meet you at my office in Pittsburgh tomorrow at 2 o'clock."

It was signed "Thomas Moses."

The ranks of the idle miners were broken here and there this morning by men answering the President's call to resume operations.

Generally there was peace today, in the mining districts. But near McKees Rocks a mysterious fire destroyed the main tipple of the Miller Coal and Coke Company's Arbuckle mine, Moon Run

TAMMANY ALLY HIT BY REVOLT

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—John H. McCooey, for 22 years Democratic leader of Brooklyn, was served with a demand that he retire today by a majority of his district leaders.

A delegation of 12 of the leaders called on McCooey, staunch ally of Tammany Hall, at County party headquarters. Members of this delegation told newspapermen before the meeting that they were determined that he step down in favor of another man. No name was suggested.

The action reflects the swing by the Democratic district leaders of Brooklyn to Joseph V. McKee, independent Democrat and anti-Tammany candidate for Mayor.

There are 23 district leaders in Brooklyn. In addition to the 12 who called on McCooey, two others have made public announcement for McKee.

Three important Brooklyn politicians threw their strength to McKee. They were Francis J. Sinnot, postmaster of Brooklyn under President Roosevelt's appointment. Hyman Schorenstein, commissioner of records for Kings County, and Aaron L. Jacoby, Democratic candidate for register of the county.

Meanwhile Tammany opened up its campaign with former ceremonies at City Hall notifying Mayor P. O'Brien that he is to head the ticket.

Lindy Cloaks Moves, Reported in London

LONDON, Oct. 10.—(INS.)—Although Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was widely reported today as having journeyed to London from the home of his sister-in-law near Cardiff, Wales, full inquiries today failed to reveal his presence here.

The British Air Ministry and officials of the Imperial Airways, as well as attaches of the American embassy, declared they had no knowledge of his movements, which were shrouded in deepest secrecy.

Lineal Descendant Of Confucius Weds

PEIPING, China, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—An historic marriage took place in Peiping when Miss Kung Teh-Chun, seventy-seventh lineal descendant of the great Chinese teacher and prophet, Confucius, married a grandson of Mr. Ku Shao-Wu, a well-known Shantung scholar.

U. S. MAY BUILD TO CUT RENTS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Secretary Ickes revealed today that the government was considering establishment of a new corporation to handle construction and leasing or sale of low-cost housing projects throughout the country.

Articles of incorporation, already drafted, would permit the corporation to go into cities and, through purchase or condemnation proceedings, acquire lands on which low-cost housing projects would be erected.

These projects, the public works chief said, could then be sold or let to occupants, with the corporation repaying to the Treasury the funds advanced for the work. It is contemplated that some of the projects will be merely for establishment of low-rent homes, while others will be for slum clearance.

Ickes said he regarded housing as one of the most logical ways of creating jobs, especially since, he added, many men would be employed indirectly in the manufacture and preparation of materials.

Five More Ordered Beheaded in Berlin

BERLIN, Oct. 10.—(Universal.)—Five more beheading sentences were pronounced here today, including one on a woman convicted of murdering her husband. Two others to pay the death penalty are Willi Rocho, 18, and Otto Woithe, 19. Communists found guilty of killing a youth allied with the Hitlerites.

Mayor Herron Defends Davis in Lottery Trial

Nadine Pact Approved By P.S.C.

The long-standing blockade of the Allegheny River boulevard at Nadine bottleneck was broken today when the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission approved an agreement between Allegheny County, the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Pennsylvania Water Company.

The agreement permits the completion of the boulevard.

The county will get to work on the job—to take 90 days—probably before the end of the week, it was announced by County Engineer E. L. Schmidt.

Although it is unlikely that concrete can be laid before snow flies, Schmdt said a temporary roadway would be built. He guaranteed the road would be open through the winter.

Rockefeller Son Recovering in Home

Moose Employe Here Says Senator Quit Lodge Office

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Mayor John S. Herron and David E. Nichols, both of Pittsburgh, today came to the defense of United States Senator James J. Davis in Federal Court.

Davis is on trial with Theodore G. Miller on charges of sending and conspiracy to send lottery tickets across state lines in connection with a Loyal Order of Moose fund-raising enterprise in 1931.

CHARACTER WITNESS

Mayor Herron was solely a character witness for the Pennsylvania Senator. John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, also was a character witness. Herron testified he had known Davis for 20 years. He answered all routine questions with a simple, quick:

"Yes, sir."

He said finally that Davis' reputation for integrity, honesty and lawfulness was "good."

Nichols, an employe of the Moose organization department, testified in an effort to substantiate the defense contention that Davis was inactive in the Moose

Venus on Half-Shell Called Inspiration

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—The promoter of Eleanor Benninger's mirror-draped nudity in "Venus on the Half-Shell" exhibited at A Century of Progress, was described as an "esthetic inspiration" for World Fair throngs in a bill filed in Superior Court.

The action seeks to restrain police from forcing Eleanor to drape her figure.

Unfilled Steel Tonnage Declines

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Unfilled tonnage of United States Steel Corporation during September decreased 114,704 tons to 1,775,740 tons on September 30. This compares with a total of 1,890,444 tons on August 31; 2,020,125 tons on July 31; 2,106,671 tons on June 30 and 1,985,090 tons on September 30, 1932.

APOLLO STEEL RALLY BANNED

VANDERGRIFT, Pa., Oct. 10.—With their meeting in Apollo banned by the Burgess, steel workers of the Kiski Valley planned to hold a meeting tomorrow night in Griffio Park, with Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of the Governor, scheduled to speak.

Burgess S. S. Baldridge, of Apollo, today issued a proclamation refusing to permit the mass meeting scheduled for the municipal building, and the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers immediately began arrangements to hold the meeting in the amusement park. James Eakin, union organizer, said he expected 10,000 or more to attend.

Eakin originally arranged for the meeting in Vandergrift, then selected Apollo, when opposition arose and after a conference last night with Burgess Baldridge, announced the meeting would be held in the amusement park.

MILFORD, Pa., Oct. 10.—(INS.)—Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot today said she will attend the steel workers' rally tomorrow night near Apollo despite Burgess S. S. Baldridge's cancellation of a permit for the mass meeting in Municipal Hall. Her only comment was that "they seem to want to keep me out of Apollo."

Blonde Murdered In 'Lover's Lane'

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(INS.)—Daylight bared a nocturnal murder in a lover's lane today with the finding of the body of an unidentified woman, a comely blonde about 35.

The woman apparently had been strangled to death in the nursery grounds of Benne Brothers in Brooklyn.

Woman Arrested By France as Spy

METZ, France, Oct. 10.—(INS.)—A sensational spy plot came to light today with the arrest of Sophie Drozdt, known as "La Belle," and two French soldiers, accused of mapping French fortifications along the Rhine.

She was apprehended while motoring toward the German frontier with a sample of France's latest machine gun and incriminating maps.

Nurse Gets 5 Years In Kidnaping Threat

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Nicolina de Palma, Yonkers nurse, was sentenced to five years' imprisonment, and James Medley, former gasoline station attendant, to 10 years by Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe today on their pleas of guilty to threats to kidnap a niece of Russell C. Leffingwell, partner in the Morgan banking house.

Race Horse Drugging Bared by Writer

Universal Service.

Thousands of horses are doped every year to permit "insiders" to "clean up" on the races.

Those who have charge of racing have done little or nothing to stop this practice, according to government authorities who have started a campaign to wipe out the practice of administering heroin, morphine and cocaine to thoroughbreds. Already arrests have been made at Arlington Park, Chicago, and more recently—last Saturday—at the State Fair Grounds, Detroit.

Frank G. Menke, Universal Service staff writer, has visited all of the major tracks and, assisted by racing officials and government agents, uncovered a maze of information as to how, when and why horses are drugged.

He has written a series of 15 articles revealing the astonishing chicanery in horse racing—how the drugs are administered and how much—how the drugs are obtained and by whom.

At many tracks little or no effort is made to keep the doping of horses secret. The cruel and vicious practice of artifically stimulating animals is winked at so that those "in the know" will prosper.

The first of these articles will appear in the Sun-Telegraph tomorrow.

Evans Quits, Magee Gets Democratic Nomination

William A. Magee today was made the Democratic nominee for Council, to accompany his Republican nomination won in the primary election.

George E. Evans, one of the five Democratic nominees, late today announced his withdrawal as a candidate and sent his withdrawal notice to John Murray, chairman of the Democratic City Committee, asking that Magee be substituted.

Murray called a meeting of the Democratic City Executive Committee late today. Evans will make his formal withdrawal at the Electtion Bureau later.

LABOR SEES ECONOMY MENACE TO PUBLIC SCHOOLS

PROGRAM ASKS PROTECTION OF EDUCATION

Green Predicts Code Revisions to Allow Shorter Hours

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—To prevent what it termed the threatening "passing of the public free schools" as a result of budget balancing, the American Federation of Labor convention today adopted a 12-point educational program calling for "the utmost endeavor for the protection of education from kindergarten through university."

The program called for "truly professional standards" in the class room, smaller classes taught by trained teachers, a broader curriculum, an equitable wage for all instructors with security of tenure and "decent" working conditions, the establishment of teacher unions, maintenance of educational standards, old age pensions and opportunity for teachers to help formulate educational policy.

MENACE TO RECOVERY

The resolution embodying these features was presented for the federation's educational committee by Florence Curtis Hanson, of the American Federation of Teachers.

The report approved by the convention said that "no greater menace to industrial recovery could develop" than that brought by the closing of schools for economy's sake. It held this tendency was "destructive" and that "only misfortune can come if this policy is continued."

Reduction of teachers' salaries, "always inadequate," if continued for any length of time, the committee held, will bring the "passing of the public free schools."

SEES CODE REVISING

Administration agreement soon to a reopening of existing NRA codes so wages may be increased and hours of work shortened is looked for by President William Green, of the labor federation.

Green based his belief on statements made before the Federation by two persons high in administration councils—Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the Labor Advisory Board, and Secretary Frances Perkins, of the Labor Department.

PICKETS GASSED AT WEIRTON

workmen on hand for several days, it was estimated 400 men were working today. There were no pickets there, the city having posted a proclamation against such gatherings.

Yesterday, when the troopers arrived, they broke up the picket lines outside the Weirton mills.

Last night some 450 men met in the Courthouse to ballot on a return to work. Twelve voted no, 428 voted yes. This meeting was not called by the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers.

Strikebreakers Imported By Weirton, Says Long

The Weirton Steel Company already has imported 400 strikebreakers and has more than 1,000 others in line, William J. Long, president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers' chapter in Weirton, charged today.

The charge was denied by E. T. Weir, board chairman of the National Steel Corporation, of which the Weirton company is a subsidiary.

Long, in Pittsburgh, charged that three Pennsylvania Railroad day coaches containing 400 men rolled into the Weirton plant today and that, furthermore, the Pennsylvania Railroad had asked the Governor of West Virginia to furnish protection for the trains. Fourteen more coaches filled with men are halted at Dennison, O., awaiting an opportunity to enter the plant, according to Long.

Weir, in Weirton, said:

"It's a damned lie. We have not brought in any strikebreakers and we have no such intentions. Many of our men live in Steubenville and take the Pennsylvania Railroad to work every day."

Pennsylvania Railroad officials, it was learned, asked the Governor of West Virginia for the appointment of 34 deputies for duty in Hancock and Brooke counties, the panhandle district. The company listed the deputies were needed for the general protection of property. Four commissions were granted by the Governor.

WOMAN QUIZZED IN SOLES CASE

the shooting with a note, from Soles, which asked that the slugs be removed from two, if not four, .45 caliber shells.

Schrader said he was not clear as to the order and telephoned Soles for confirmation, which was made, Connors added.

What happened to these slugs cannot be said definitely. Mrs. Soles was, it is believed, slain with a .38 caliber bullet—a bullet which ripped a hole in the wall. Weeks later Soles fitted a .45 caliber bullet into this hole in an attempt to prove that the shooting was done with a .45, according to Connors.

Schrader also was questioned today. Connors quoted Schrader as saying that he believed he had given the chauffeur the slugs from .45 shells, not, as the chauffeur said, two. Connors does not attribtue any importance to this.

Two others qquestioned were Police Lieut. Charles Eckles, of McKeesport, who told the position of Mrs. Soles' body when she was found, and a neighbor of the Soles', J. W. Lindberg.

Connors is still convinced that Soles shot his wife, who, so great was her devotion for him, then wrote a suicide note attempting to take the blame herself.

In the County Jail Soles was quoted by Warden John McNeil as ridiculing reports he was on a hunger strike. He quoted Soles as saying:

"That's utterly ridiculous. I had a great big bowl of soup and a half loaf of bread for lunch yesterday and last night I ate a plate of meat, potatoes, a plate of sliced tomatoes and drank a pot of coffee. I'm feeling fine. That's more than I generally eat. You don't have to worry about me, Warden.

"I haven't brooded a minute. I'm back there in my cell corridor having a bully good time. In fact, I'm enjoying this experience immensely, strange as it might seem."

The body of Mrs. Soles, following, a belated autopsy yesterday, was back in a mausoleum in Versailles Cemetery today.

Soles probably will be arraigned before Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan in a day or two.

Welfare Fund Periled By Industrial Strife

Witherow Plea Asks Corporations Not To Renege

The Welfare Fund today pleaded with corporations and their officials not to allow bitterness growing out of labor difficulties to have a bearing on their support of welfare activities.

According to expressions received at fund headquarters, in connection with the solicitation of corporation contributions which is already under way, there is a feeling in some quarters that relief should be withheld from the families of workers invovled in the present labor troubles Welfare Fund officers said.

Failure to realize that the entire responsibility for unemployment relief now rests with the state and federal relief administrations, has reacted in some cases against the Welfare Fund and its appeal for corporation support, its leaders say.

William P. Witherow, president of the Welfare Fund, explaining the situation, said:

"The fact is that the Welfare Fund is now completely out of the field of unemployment relief and is concentrating on services of health, child care and character-building, as well as caring for families whose problems are other than unemployment.

"The Welfare Fund is not, and has not been for three years, responsible for the establishment of policy on unemployment relief. At the present time this policy is set by the Federal Relief Administration in Washington and the State Relief Board in Harrisburg, and we have received a very clear statement as to what the policy is. These public authorities say that relief must be provided solely on the basis of individual need. Complaints of employers or difficulties involving labor should be referred to the National Labor Board and a decision to withhold or withdraw relief from any group of workers must come from the National Labor Board, not from the relief administration.

"Corporations will be making a grave mistake, if out of the bitterness engendered by labor difficulties, any of them withhold or cut their support of social agencies. In this respect they must carry on, not for the sake of the Welfare Fund, but for the sake of themselves and the returning profits which they can find only in a sound and healthy community."

AMBRIDGE MILL WATCHMAN DIES

The death of Archie Webster, 59, watchman at the Spang-Chalfant Company in Ambridge, scene of recent strike disorders, today was attributed by plant officials to the activities of pickets at the mill.

Webster collapsed while at work Wednesday night and pickets prevented an ambulance summoned from Valley Hospital at Sewickley from entering the mill. An hour elapsed before a private automobile could leave the plant with the victim. Strike pickets said they suspected the ambulance of trying to smuggle food to the men in the mill.

Webster, who lived at 290 Twelfth street, Ambridge, died Sunday of lobar pneumonia. He was a former member of the Ambridge police department and had been employed as a watchman at the mill 18 years.

Engineer Foils Attempt To Wreck Coal Train

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 10.—The second attempt within a month to wreck a coal train on the Monongahela Railway was frustrated by an alert engineer early today. Ties and steel spikes were found on the rails near Isabella, 17 miles south of Brownsville by Engineer Wiggin Nikirk who succeeded in bringing his train of 63 loaded coal cars to a stop without a mishap.

Nikirk leaning from his cab was traveling between 25 and 30 miles an hour when his headlight revealed the obstruction about a thousand yards ahead he applied his air brakes reducing the train's speed so that the front truck of the locomotive barely were touching the obstruction.

This is the second time cross ties have been found on the rails in what is believed to be an organized attempt to disrupt coal service over this railroad from West Virginia. Last week an engineer was fired upon by snipers and signal lights along the railroad right of way were tampered with.

J. W. Boyd, superintendent of the railroad, said the matter had been reported to state police for investigation. Railroad police also were investigating.

PRICE-FIXING WEIGHED BY JOHNSON

Confers With Experts About Master Retail Code

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson continued today to observe the price-fixing problem raised by the pending master retail code.

He conferred with the experts who have opposed the "stop loss" provisions and inquired further into their proposed plan to end cut-throat price competition in the retail field with substitute provisions that do not fix price minimums.

The final retail code will contain definite provisions of some sort to enforce genuinely "fair" trade practices in the trade, as any writers of a "code of fair competition" for retailers cannot ignore the fact that price wars rage in the trade continuously.

'STOP LOSS' METHOD

Most of the theoretical economists, however, have unequivocally condemned the "stop loss" method of preventing cutthroat price competition.

In addition the Consumers' Advisory Board has denounced the method in behalf of the retail consumers of the nation.

The Consumers' Board, headed by Mrs. Mary Harriman Rumsey, yesterday charged that the prospect of getting prices fixed under the oil code, which contains price management provisions not yet applied, had led the oil industry to jack up prices so that an additional annual burden of $500,000,000 had been piled on consumers since June 1.

Independent Grocers Fight Chain Store Efforts

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(INS.)—Independent grocers and food dealers appearing before a board of farm adjustment experts today protested vigorously against efforts of the chain stores to amend the proposed master code for their industry by exempting unbranded merchandise from the anti-rebate provision.

Members of the farm administration explained the exemptions would permit price concessions on bulk food and perishable commodities amounting in value to $6,000,000,000 annually.

While the independents clashed with the chain store representatives in the fight over rebates and secret price concessions, the larger issue of indirect price-fixing on food products running far into the billions of dollars in annual volume remained unsettled.

COX SENDS RIOT DATA TO NRA

Eleven statements of men shot and clubbed during the Ambridge riots were attached to a letter which the Rev. Father James R. Cox, pastor of Old St. Patrick's Church and a member of the NRA Recovery Board, today had sent to Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson asking prosecution of those responsible for the shooting of the steel mill pickets.

Two of the statements were made by deputy sheriffs, while only one of the nine others admitted he was a picket, Father Cox said. The others said they were bystanders. The priest also called attention to the "shanghaiing" of a group of Negro prisoners by Beaver County authorities "rather than take the trouble of dealing with them in a legal manner."

The Vote to Quit Strike

Mr. Jones, the chairman of the strikers' meeting in Steubenville, with the ballots that totaled 428 (box on right) to return to work, 12 (box on left) to keep on striking for union recognition. The union didn't call the meeting. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

NRA EYES COAL STRIKE PEACE PARLEY HERE

Settlement of Mine Strife Hoped for At Conference

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Negotiations scheduled at Pittsburgh today between soft coal miners and operators were viewed by NRA officials as foretelling a possible settlement of Pennsylvania strike difficulties.

Hugh S. Johnson regarded the conference to be held between Philip Murray, vice president of the United Mine Workers of America, and Thomas Moses, president of the H. C. Frick Coke Company, as the natural consequence of Saturday's White House meeting with the steel interests which own the "captive" mines.

When operators and miners failed to get together yesterday, Johnson telephoned steel leaders in New York, where Moses was conferring. A few hours later Moses notified Murray that he was ready for a conference.

JOHNSON TO TALK

So important does Johnson consider the coal situation that it has dominated other NRA activities in recent days. Tonight the Recovery Administrator will have an opportunity to present his views on the coal strike as well as other labor problems in an address before the American Federation of Labor's convention.

Johnson telephoned the steel leaders yesterday following a conference with John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers; Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of the union, and Edward McGrady, assistant secretary of labor.

Lewis then said the next move would have to come from the operators—or, if they delayed "too long"—from the White House. He said:

"We sent Moses our offer to start negotiations as soon as he was ready."

READY TO CONFER

Within a few hours after Johnson's call to New York Moses notified Murray he was ready to negotiate.

Lewis said he understood Moses had been appointed to negotiate for all the captive mine operators.

The strikers' demand has been for complete union recognition, deduction of union dues from miners pay, installation of checkweighmen and recognition of pit committees for local collective bargaining.

In view of the captive mines situation, considerable interest was manifest in the meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute in New York today. But steel quarters expressed doubt that the institute meeting would concern itself with the labor problem.

LACK OF COAL SHUTS SCHOOL

International News Service.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Oct. 10.—School children today began to feel the effects of the three-week coal "holiday" as classes in one Fayette County school were discontinued and others were threatened with closing because of inability to secure fuel to properly heat the rooms.

Approximately 450 pupils of the Ralph School, located in the center of the county's richest bituminous section, are unable, temporarily at least, to continue with their studies because of the low temperatures of classrooms and empty coal bins.

Schools in German Township may be dismissed before the end of the present week as there is only enough coal in stock to last a few days.

The school boards of affected districts decreed that classes which have been closed would be resumed only at conclusion of the "holiday" or with return of warm weather.

Pay Cut to $6 Week, Cigar Girls Strike

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Oct. 10.—(INS.)—Turning in their tracks as they caught sight of notices posted at entrances announcing wage reductions, more than 150 girl employes of the Penn Cigar Company were out on strike today.

The proposed slashes, leaders of the strike claim, would cut earnings of scores to around $6 per week.

Second Arrest Made In Vatican Bombing

ROME, Oct. 10,—(AP.)—Police today reported the arrest of Leonardo Bucciglione, a Rome clerk, as an accomplice in the bomb explosion which injured four persons in the portico of St. Peter's last June 25.

The details were not revealed, and neither was his connection with Demetrio Solamon, who was arrested the day after the explosion, made clear.

Davis' Witness

at the time the alleged lotteries were conducted.

Nichols testified that a cable was sent to Joseph Jenkins at Davis' behest in May, 1930, asking Jenkins to return from England and take over organization work in America. Subsequently, he testified, Davis' name was removed from the door of the organization office in Pittsburgh and replaced by that of Jenkins.

LETTER INTRODUCED

The government sought to offset Nichols' testimony by introducing a letter in which Jenkins had said that he was succeeding Fred W. Jones as director of the organization.

After Nichols said Davis' name was removed from the office door, Charles J. Margiotti, of defense counsel, asked:

"Since then, have you or anyone else in that office received any orders from James J. Davis"

The wtiness replied:

"None whatever."

Nichols said a package of Moose charity ball tickets addressed to Davis was received by Jones and turned over to him (Nichols). He added:

"I threw them in the waste basket. It was my duty to sort out tickets, circular, pamphlets and so forth and send anything on to Davis that he should see. It was my practice to throw the junk away."

Margiotti asked:

"Do you recall that early in January, 1932, the organization department received a check for $40,000 from the propagation department?"

"I do."

"What was done with it?"

"It was deposited in the Fidelity Title and Trust Company."

"What became of the proceeds?"

The question had to be reframed several times to get over government objections, and Nichols eventually testified that he drew out $20,000 of it and turned it over to Jenkins who then placed it in a tin strong-box.

The prosecution brought out that two other concerns were housed with the organization department and managed by the same staff. They were the Liberty Bond and Mortgage Company and the Layman Jewelry Company.

Nichols said that Davis was the principal stockholder in both concerns.

The jewelry company, he said, manufactured lapel emblems and sold them to the membership, the mortgage company financed lodge building.

Budget Holds Fate Of Daladier Cabinet

PARIS, Oct. 10.—The balanced budget of Premier Edouard Daladier, upon which he stakes the ministry's life, was whipped into shape today at a long cabinet session.

The final touches will be given the budget and the Premier's deflation plan Thursday prior to sending them to the Parliament when it reassembles October 17.

Lebensberger has escaped, but the federal government has 20 others "in the net" all members of a syndicate dealing in stolen securities.

The efficiency of federal detectives in finding and arresting criminals sets a good example to local police.

IN INDIANA the homes of several miners are bombed, and state troops are called out.

Dealing with workers is not as simple as dealing with owners and employers.

Captive Mine, Union Leaders Meeting To End Strike

400 TONS OF COAL BURN

Vice President H. D. Gibbs said the telephone wires into the office had been cut and the lock on the door broken. More than 400 tons of coal were burned. The mine has been working part time since the holiday.

An attempt to derail a coal train on the Monongahela Railway, near Brownsville, was frustrated.

The status of the back-to-work movement was little changed. For every mine that reopened, pickets closed one that had been operating.

Trouble-torn Fayette County, where the demand that "Frick must sign the code—recognize the union" orginated and then swept 85,000 miners out in sympathetic protest, reported three mines operating.

VOTE TO STAY OUT

The mines in the Allegheny Valley remained tightly closed. George Daker, chairman of the union committee at Kinloch, declared local representatives voted solidly to remain out until the Frick company accepts the United Mine Workers. At a meeting of his local last night, he said, the men objected to the proposal made at the Centerville meeting yesterday that a women's auxiliary be formed.

He said:

"Women belong in the home."

In the southern part of Allegheny County and in Burgettstown and Washington County, some of the mines that re-opened yesterday were closed again today. Many in the Panhandle area that have been working for the past 10 days remained open.

GREENE PITS DOWN

Along the Panhandle 5,000 men were in the pits. They have been working, for the most part, during the past week. There were no pickets.

The Banning and Eureka mines of the Pittsburgh Coal Company were working anew. The presence of three state policemen prevented 750 pickets from halting operations at Montour No. 9, McDonald. The pickets met at Hendersonville. The pickets succeeded, however, in closing down the Lincoln Hill mine, near Washington, which was opened yesterday to 600 men.

EMERGENCY WORK

Mollenauer No. 3, of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company, was one of the mines reopened today. It was working in part.

More than 1,000 members of the Brotherhood of Union Miners, an independent organization, were met by 1,500 United Mine pickets at three Fayette County mines—Footedale, Buffington and Filbert. The meeting was quiet, but the union pickets prevented the reopening of the mines.

Reported open in Fayette County were the Crystal mine of the Crystal Coal and Coke Company, and the Frederick and Fancy Hill mines. All operate with less than 100 men.

MINES WORKING

The Pittsburgh Coal Company announced 1,700 of its 10,000 men were working in the five mines operating.

Three more mines were reported working in Westmoreland County, two large mines of the Westmoreland Coal Company and one of the Jamison Coal Company. Three more mines in the Jefferson-Indiana fields were reported back at work.

Local union leaders gathered in Isabella, Fayette County, and discussed organization activities. Several thousand, meeting yesterday at Centerville, voted to remain on holiday until Frick accepts the union.

TESTIFIES FORD BROKE PROMISE

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Wilfred C. Leland, Sr., of Detroit, testified today in support of charges made in a civil suit that Henry Ford failed to keep a promise to pay obligations of the old Lincoln Motor Car Company, which he bought.

Ford is suing the Sweeten Automobile Company, of Philadelphia, for $6,800 alleged to be due on promissory notes, while the Sweeten Company has filed a counter suit claiming $168,000 from Ford.

Leland testified that Ford orally promised his father, the late Henry M. Leland, that all creditors and shareholders of the Lincoln concern would be paid. He said that when the Lincoln Company went into receivership in 1921 Henry Ford was very much interested and agreed to buy the company. Leland testified:

"He said he didn't want the matter to become public, telling me to continue negotiations with two other groups but not to commit myself.

"He also told me to wear old clothes and to go two or three days without shaving so as to give the impression that I was in very poor circumstances."

MAIL ROBBERY WITNESSES GUARDED AGAINST WINKLER FATE

MORE 'ON SPOT' BY GANGSTERS, AGENTS FEAR

Capone Aide's Widow Sobs at Inquest; Suspects Seized

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Alarmed over the shotgun murder of Gus Winkler, lieutenant of Al Capone, the federal government today ordered armed guards to protect witnesses in the $250,000 Chicago mail robbery of which Winkler's death supposedly was an aftermath.

"We've taken steps to protest our witnesses," said Assistant United States Attorney Edward A. Fisher.

From another federad source it was learned orders had been issued for special precautions to be taken for two-score prisoners held in a half dozen cities in connection with the robbery and disposal of the loot.

GANGSTER SEIZED

Winkler was killed, both city and federal authorities believe, because he "knew too much" and because other gangsters feared he might talk to police officers. They expressed open fears that more killings might follow.

Another menacing figure in gangdom, William (Three-Fingered Jack) White, entered the case today when a federal official declared White was one of the actual mail robbers.

As police pried through underworld sources they learned Winkler had more power in gangdom than they had dreamed. All denied he had been a "stool pigeon," but they agreed he had control of a syndicate that collected millions of dollars from gambling casinoes, saloons and night clubs.

He had been mistrusted in gangland, they said, since he returned $600,000 of loot taken in the "world's biggest bank robbery" at Lincoln, Neb. He had been an interstate worker for Capone and a suspect in the killing of seven men in the St. Valentine's Day massacre and other crimes, but always escaped prosecution through some mysterious protection.

FEARS FOR LIFE

Joseph Gegrl, former partner of Winkler in a garage that equipped gangster automobiles with armor plate, bullet proof windows and smoke screens, was described by police as being "in terror of his life." Bergl was questioned about the recent robbery of two Federal Reserve Bank mail messengers and the slaying of a policeman by the escaping robbers.

John J. (Boss) McLaughlin, former state legislator now held for the mail robbery, announced through his attorney that he would remain in jail. Efforts to reduce his bond to $25,000 from $50,000 were dropped.

Three suspects were arrested today in the killing of Winkler. All were minor gangsters, and police did not disclose the evidence against them.

WIDOW TESTIFIES

Blonde, dressed in black, and weeping, Winkler's widow testified at the inquest today that her husband intended to surrender to District Attorney Dwight Green for questioning. She said:

"He left home Saturday after reading in the papers that he was wanted. He didn't want to be in jail over the week-end."

Asked why Winkler was entering the beer distributing agency of County Commissioner Charles H. Weber at the time he was shot, she replied:

"He must have gone there to meet somebody."

The police said Winkler was trying to raise $25,000 bond for one of the mail case defendants. Winkler's widow sobbed:

"Gus came home every night at 6 p. m. for 12 years. I married him two years ago. He hadn't carried a gun for a long time, and did not associate to my knowledge with Edgar Lebensberger."

Lebensberger was a night club owner who killed himself or was slain a few hours before an indictment was returned against him in the mail robbery case.

TORCH LETTERS HOLD MAN HERE

His love letters were so torrid, postal inspectors said, that they constituted a violation of the United States postal laws.

So "torchy" were the epistles, Postal Inspector S. C. Kennedy told Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court today, that he requested that William Jerome Bird, 38, of 306 West Twenty-eighth street, New York City, be turned over to postal authorities on a charge of sending obscene matter through the mails.

FLIER REPORTED KIDNAPED

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—Bride of only a month, Mrs. Mary Westphal, 36, today declared she could not understand a note found by detectives near Chicago in which her husband, Harold, 26, a Navy airplane pilot, wrote he had been kidnaped and was being held for ransom.

Westphal, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Westphal, of El Monte, near Los Angeles, a first-class petty officer at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, has been misisng since Friday. Police were not notified until Chicago detectives informed authorities here of the finding of the note scrawled on the back of an envelope on a road near there. Mrs. Westphal said:

MAE CHAMPIONS FUGITIVE

International News Service.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Oct. 10.—Mae West, the actress, today protested to Gov. James Rolph against the removal of a fugitive from California to South Carolina.

The southern state is seeking the return of Ben Jones, alias C. D. Cooper, movie projectionist, asserting that he escaped from a prison road camp while serving a life sentence for murder.

Miss West wrote Rolph:

"One of the boys who worked with me at a Hollywood studio is in a terrible jam and I would appreciate your refusing extradition. Now, Jim, you know that I know men and if there ever was a man who appeared innocent it is Jones. In Ben Jones we have an example of a useful citizen and a job awaits him here."

Miss West also wrote Gov. I. C. Blackwood, of South Carolina, asking that Jones be paroled.

Woman Leads Aged Mother from Fire

A daughter aided her aged mother to reach the street through smoke-filled hallways late last night when fire threatened the grocery and residence of David Satin at 847 Highview street. When the fire was discovered, Mrs. Satin awakened her sleeping mother, Mrs. Leah Melnick, and led her to safety. The fire, confined to the basement, did damage estimated at $300. Its origin has not been determined.

5 OF 6 MADMEN ELUDE CAPTURE

SALEM, Ore., Oct. 10.—(AP.)—State, county and city police today pressed their search in two directions for five of six men who escaped Sunday night from the criminally insane ward at the Oregon State Hospital after slugging an attendant.

Acting on the statement of Elmer Becker, 27, the only fugitive to be captured, that three others had headed north and two had headed south, police spread a guard over the Pacific highway and side roads in both directions.

Becker was taken last night when he appeared at a farm house near Gervais, 15 miles north of here, entered without knocking and started to use the phone, informing the occupants that he wanted to get in touch with his sister. Members of the family recognized him and notified police.

Bite-and-Run Dog Fells Motorcyclist

SAN PEDRO, Cal., Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Police are looking for a "bite-and-run" dog that reached from the rumble seat of his master's motor car yesterday and sank his teeth in the coat of Miss Sally Riley, 21, throwing her from the motorcycle on which she was riding with a sailor, R. A. Heidrich.

The dog's master continued on, apparently unaware of the incident. Miss Riley was given hospital treatment for injuries.

Kathryn Kelly Accused As Machine Gun Buyer

Husband Identified As Collector of Urschel Ransom

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—The modish Kathryn Kelly was named in government testimony today as the purchaser of a machine gun used in kidnaping Charles F. Urschel, and her husband, George (Machine Gun) Kelly was pointed out as the gangster who collected $200,000 ransom for the oil millionaire's release.

J. Klar, firearms dealer of Fort Worth, Tex., testified in the trial of the couple on federal kidnaping charges that he sold Kathryn a machine gun for $250 bearing the same serial number as the weapon later found beside the sleeping Harvey Bailey on the Paradise, Tex., "kidnap farm" where the victim was hidden. Bailey is serving a life term on conviction of the kidnaping.

The machine gun, prosecutors allege, was the one which was pointed at Urschel when he was kidnaped from his home the night of July 22.

E. E. Kirkpatrick, Tulsa manager for Urschel, preceded Klar on the stand and pointed to Kelly as the man to whom he handed a satchel containing the $200,000 ransom on a Kansas City boulevard.

After testimony by Ruth Shannon, 13-year-old daughter of the convicted R. G. (Boss) Shannon on whose Texas farm Urschel was held captive, Joseph B. Keenan, assistant attorney general, announced there was no need to call Pauline Frye, 15-year-old daughter of Kathryn Kelly to testify against her mother. He said:

"This little girl, Ruth, told substantially what Pauline would have said."

Ruth testified that on the Sunday Urschel was brought to the Shannon farm, she was taken with Pauline and Mrs. Oleta Shannon to Fort Worth. The District Attorney asked:

"Who came and got you?"

"Kathryn."

Hyde was attempting to show that the girls were hurried out of the way by Kathryn so they would not learn of the presence of the kidnaped Urschel.

Scrutinizing the finger-printed notes sent to Urschel and a newspaper during the first conspiracy trial last month, threatening "slaughter" for the millionaire and his family, Al Shelton, police identification expert, testified::: : "These are the fingerprints of George Kelly."

Hundreds of women, most of them young, stormed the courtroom where Kelly and his wife are on trial.

A perspiring squad of policemen tried to keep the corridors cleared. The courtroom was packed, and many who sought admittance were turned away.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 10.—(AP.)—T. Y. (Pat) McGovran, Kanawha County agricultural agent, was found dead of a bullet wound in his head in the Courthouse today.

HONEYMOONER FINED TWICE

Two police court fines are honeymoon souvenirs Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Wettingfeld will carry back to their home in New Rochelle, N. Y.

Wettingfeld not only paid a $10 fine for reckless driving in Traffic Court but also a $5 fine in East End Police Court on a disorderly conduct charge. A wrecked automobile will cost the bridegroom more of his honeymoon funds.

The honeymooners' car collided with one driven by M. A. Scarpaci, 328 Hailman street, this morning at Wilkins and Shady avenues. Police testified that when Wettingfeld felt Scarpaci should render some assistance and failed to do so, he struck the other driver. A fight ensued resulting in the arrest of both men. Scarpaci was discharged in Traffic Court. He was not arrested for police hearing.

Mystery Illness Kills 'Jiggs,' Dancing Dog

"Jiggs," the singing and dancing pet bulldog of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kilpatrick, of 5619 Harvard street, is dead of a mysterious malady. He was stricken three days ago. A favorite of children of the neighborhood they brought flowers to the Kilpatrick home to lay on "Jiggs'" grave.

ADELE ASTAIRE BABY DIES

International News Service.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—A daughter born Sunday at Lismore Castle to Lady Charles Cavendish, the former Adele Astaire, died after only three hours of life, it was announced today.

The former musical comedy star, who delighted audience on both sides of the Atlantic, married Lord Charles Cavendish on May 9, 1932, abandoning her stage career.

Previously Miss Astaire, who was born in Omaha, Neb., had never appeared on the stage without her brother and dancing partner, Fred, with whom she climbed to acclaim from the ranks of vaudeville.

During the past social season in London, she won wide popularity in exclusive society circles.

McCormic-Mdivani Divorce Postponed

Bakers Ask U. S. Help Stop False Reports

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Charging that the banking industry has been the target of unfair and unjust attacks with reference to increases in the price of bread, the American Bakers' Association at its convention today called on Secretary of Agriculture Wallace to help stamp out such reports.

MARY PICKFORD SPIKES RUMOR OF DIVORCE

Not Seeking Mexican Decree, She Says; 'Doug' in Paris

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 10.—"I am very much surprised at such a report, for I am not planning a divorce."

This was the only comment today of Mary Pickford, famous motion picture actress, on a report emanating from El Paso, Tex., that "America's Sweetheart" planned to obtain a Mexican decree from Douglas Fairbanks.

Furthermore it was learned that if Miss Pickford decides to divorce Fairbanks, who has been in Europe several months, she would move to obtain a decree in California.

SAFEGUARD PROPERTY

It was pointed out here today that Miss Pickford has large property interests in California and that in order to safeguard against any future question concerning these interests, she would be unlikely to take any steps of a legal nature outside the state.

While no inkling has leaked out from behind the scenes on what is taking place, it was regarded as probable in Hollywood today that some steps may be under way to define precisely the property interests of Miss Pickford and her husband.

The fact that Pickfair has been taken off the market was taken in some quarters to confirm this.

At the time of the estrangement it was learned that any move toward divorce would be up to Fairbanks; in other words, Miss Pickford was prepared to secure a decree if he indicated he desired his freedom. What, if any, move has been made by Fairbanks remained undisclosed today.

'Doug' Denies He'll Wed Lady Ashley, Ex-Actress

PARIS, Oct. 10.—(INS.)—Reports he is planning to marry Lady Ashley, a former British actress, were denied today by Douglas Fairbanks through Tom Geraghty, screen writer and a lifelong friend. Geraghty said:

"Regarding the Lady Ashley report, this is the first time Mr. Fairbanks has heard it. And if he is going to marry her it's news to him."

Through Geraghty, Fairbanks refused to comment on a dispatch reporting that Mary Pickford plans to file suit for divorce against him in Mexico within a few days. Geraghty stated:

"You may quote Mr. Fairbanks as saying that he feels any announcement whatsoever should come from Miss Pickford."

Fairbanks and Geraghty arrived here recently from London.

Divorce Plan Spoiled By Publicity, Says Lawyer

EL PASO, Tex., Oct. 10.—(INS.)—Any plans for filing a divorce suit in Juarez in behalf of Mary Pickford, "America's Sweetheart," against her actor husband, Douglas Fairbanks, has been killed by publicity given the case, Luis A. Trias, famous divorce attorney said today.

Trias definitely announces that he had no intention of filing suit for Miss Pickford, explaining:

"It is out of my hands. I am sure now that Miss Pickford's suit will not be filed in Juarez."

Trias indicated today that the matter was a closed incident. At the same time he told reporters that original plans for the suit had been made and that he "knew what he was taking about."

Polish President Weds Dead Wife's Secretary

WARSAW, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Ignace Moscicki, 65-year-old President of Poland, and Mme. Mary Dobrzanska, half his age, were married today in the private chapel of the royal castle.

Cardinal Kakowski, archbishop of Warsaw, officiated, in the presence of the Premier, the presidential suite, and the closest relatives of Moscicki and the bride, one-time social secretary to Mme. Moscicki, who died in 1932.

Both the President and his bride have had their share of sorrows. It was her sympathy that helped him carry on his presidential duties, although burdened by the death of his wife, son and son-in-law.

The bride, described as having rare charm and great beauty, eloped before coming of age with a captain who later, as an aide on the President's personal staff, became entangled in an extra-martial affair. The marriage was annulled.

The high pressure that was centered over the southern plains yesterday is now centered over the Gulf states, and low pressure areas cover the northern states with centers over Eastern Ontario and Saskatchewan. As a result of the low pressure areas precipitation for the last 24 hours occurred mostly over the northern states, but the fall was generally light. It is cooler than yesterday over the Atlantic coast states and warmer over the plains states. Light frost occurred in Minnesota and Wisconsin and freezing temperatures were limited to Wyoming and Eastern Montana. For this section the tendency is toward rising temperature for the next few days.

NAZI ACTIVITIES IN U. S. TO BE INVESTIGATED

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Asserting the Nazi government of Germany is seeking to find root in the United States, Representative Dickstein (Dem.), of New York, chairman of the House Immigration Committee, today confirmed his declaration that he would order his committee to begin an investigation next week of alleged Nazi propaganda dissemination in this country. He said:

"Congress being in recess, I have decided it is the duty of the committee of which I am chairman to begin now an unofficial study of the charges that have been made against aliens who have entered this country from Germany for the purpose not only of forming here a brand of Hitler government, but to establish here a racial and religious hatred and bigotry.

"Information has reached me that the Nazi government maintains a propaganda bureau which is heavily financed by the resources of the German government. The objective of the bureau and its activities consist in spreading Nazi propaganda in the United States, with the ultimate object of overthrowing our government and of installing in its place a dictatorship on the Nazi model."

Dickstein said he had consulted with Representative Rainey, of Illinois, Speaker of the House, and the parliamentarian of that body to confirm his authority to order the inquiry.

Dickstein said he had "some information to the effect that about 300 persons have recently entered the United States as employes or servants of German consulates." Most of those sent here, the Congressman charged, were personally selected by the German Minister of Propaganda.

Dickstein set no definite date for opening the inquiry, but said it would be started next week in Washington.

One of the prospective witnesses, it was established, will be Bernard Ridder, publisher of the New York Staatz-Zeitung. Ridder said he had been visited recently by Heinz Spanknoebel, who presented credentials from the German government as leader in establishing pro-Nazi organizations in the United States.

Spanknoebel, the publisher said, told him he must print fewer pro-Semitic stories and more favorable to the Hitler regime "if he expected any consideration when he visited Germany again."

Ridder said he ordered Spanknoebel from his office.

Nazis Deny Propaganda Campaign Planned

BERLIN, Oct. 10.—(INS.)—Charges by Samuel Dickstein, chairman of the House of Representatives Immigration Committee in the United States, that the Nazi German government has "reached into America" with the aim of overthrowing the United States government, were branded "complete nonsense and ridiculous" today by an official government spokesman.

He declared the paramount principle of the Nazi party was to refrain from mixing in the internal affairs of other nations.

Roosevelt's Son Feted by MacDonald

LONDON, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt today described as "most enjoyable" their dinner as guests of Prime Minister MacDonald at No. 10 Downing street last night.

The son and daughter-in-law of the American President were somewhat uncertain about their future plans for the European holiday, but said they may go to Paris tomorrow.

Probes Pain in Ear Tooth Falls Out

ERIE, Pa., Oct. 10.—(INS.)—Raymond Miller, 32, had a pain in his ear today. So he took a hairpin and dug around in the ear. A baby's tooth fell out.

The dentist said the tooth was Raymond's own and that it had worked back from the jaw into the ear instead of growing normally many years ago.

Jap Envoy to League Of Nations Stricken

VICTORIA, B. C., Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Dr. Inazo Nitobe, Japanese representative to the League of Nations up to the time of Japan's withdrawal, is in a critical condition from an undetermined malady in a hospital here.

Britons Launch Move to Obtain Debt Reduction

By GEORGE R. HOLMES

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—British and American debt negotiators squared away today to the seemingly hopeless job of finding a solution that will satisfy British public opinion and at the same time get by the American Congress.

Actual negotiations for revision of the 10-year-old agreement began at the Treasury in an atmosphere anything but optimistic.

Thus far, the British have not laid any definite proposals on the table. Nor have the Americans. The administration attitude is that it is not up to the American representatives to suggest anything; that Britain instigated the proceedings and that it is up to the British to make a proposition.

The expectation prevails that sooner or later the British will propose settlement of her $4,000,000,000 obligation to the United States on the basis of the Lausanne agreement—that is, approximately 10 cents on the dollar. This will be for the record, and will promptly be rejected by the Americans.

What will then follow is a matter of much conjecture, but in well-informed quarters it is predicted that the British will offer some sort of a lump sum settlement. As to the size of this sum there are various estimates, ranging from $1,000,000,000 to $2,000,000,000.

If and when such a proposition is made it will be up to the American negotiators, Undersecretary of the Treasury Acheson and Frederick Livesey, State Department economist, to decide whether to recommend it to President Roosevelt. And Mr. Roosevelt will have to decide whether to recommend it to a Congress that is and always has been hostile to further debt cancellation.

JEWISH RELIEF PLAN ADOPTED

GENEVA, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Organized relief for Jewish refugees from Germany definitely was assured today.

A resolution adopted by the League of Nations Assembly's Economic Commission provides for the creation of a high commission and governing body—outside the machinery of the league—to which a commissioner will submit periodic reports.

Appointed by the League Council, the high commissioner "will provide, insofar as possible, work for refugees in all countries which are able to offer it," the resolution reads.

The council is asked to invite states and, if it thinks necessary, private organizations best able to assist the refugees to be represented on the governing board, "which will have the duty of aiding the commissioner in his work."

It was specified that the relief organization will be autonomous. Its initial funds will be obtained from the league budget, but will be supported by private contributions and funds from other sources.

Nazi Propaganda Movie Scrapped As 'Unworthy'

BERLIN, Oct. 10.—(INS.)—Ardent Nazis throughout the Reich were disappointed today to hear that the government's heralded propaganda film, "Horst Wessel," delineating the life and death of new Germany's greatest hero, has been withdrawn as unworthy.

A statement by the ministry of propaganda branded the picture as of "inferior quality and possibly detrimental to German interests." In addition, it was termed a false picture of the "life and sacrifice" of the Nazi hero.

Diplomatic representatives and newspapermen who viewed the picture at a private showing came away full of praise for its powerful realism and effective presentation of Nazi propaganda.

The film told the story of Wessel, son of a well-known Berlin clergyman and former Reichstag deputy, who abandoned his high standard of family life and became a taxi driver to get close to the masses and aid the Hitlerites in reforming the thousands of Berliners who had been "corroded by Communism."

QUIZ REVEALS DILLON STOCK 'UNLOADING'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Railroad stocks sold by Dillon, Read & Co. to one of its investment trusts when prices were plummeting in 1929 were shown in the Senate investigation today to have depreciated millions in value since.

Tracing the devious transactions through testimony by E. B. Tracy, president of the banking firm's investment trusts, the committee learned that the portfolio of the United States and International Securities Corporation last December 31 showed a $26,562,000 shrinkage of assets.

Of this, said Committee Counsel Ferdinand Pecora, about 40 per cent or $11,192,000 was in stock of railroads that have since gone into receivership, stock that largely was purchased from other Dillon, Read interests. The roads were the Rock Island and the Frisco.

One of the most persistent questioners at the sparsely attended hearing was Senator Couzens (Rep.), Michigan, who last week charged that "some wise guys" unloaded the depreciating railroad stock on the trusts, in which the public had invested $75,000,000.

Couzens expressed impatience at the witness's responses. He suggested calling a subordinate.

Tracy said he was giving the "usual practice." Couzens replied sharply:

"That's what we want to find out, the usual practice, so we can break it up."

BANK TO FREE FROZEN FUNDS PLANNED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Organiation of a federal institution to pry loose the proen deposits of closed national and state banks was discussed by President Roosevelt at a series of conferences today with administration heads.

Official announcement of the plan had been looked for by tomorrow, but J. F. T. O'Connor, comptroller of the currency, said legal questions had arisen which probably would delay it.

He was the first of several officials called in by the President.

Attorney General Cummings discussed the legal points, including the security issuing powers of the Reconstruction Corporation, which will figure in the new setup, and how these powers relate to the Treasury.

Tied up with the deposit-thawing process is the President's project to expand credits. Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Governor of the Farm Credit Administration, was one of the White House conferees. He was accompanied by Herman Oliphant, counsel for the Farm Credit Agency, and Stanley Reed, counsel for the Reconstruction Corporation.

George L. Harrison, Governor of th Federal Reserve Bank of New York, also was a caller, but he, like the rest, refused to divulge the exact nature of the plan under consideration.

BRITISH WOULD STAY AIR LIMIT

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT

International News Service.

GENEVA, Oct. 10.—The British government today launched a cautious move to induce the disarmament conference to suspend all efforts at limitation of military planes for at least two years.

This development came at a moment when Germany was toning down her armament demands, which threatened to wreck the conference, and was adopting a more conciliatory attitude that created new hope among delegates of the leading powers, including the United States.

The British government, in the past few weeks, has displayed an increasing interest in the controversy over the respective merits of the battleship and the airplane in warfare, reportedly because recent secret British maneuvers displayed the superiority of the plane.

MORTGAGE AID RUSH EXPECTED

A rush of applications for mortgage aid is expected at the Pittsburgh office of the Federal Home Owners' Loan Corporation as the result of Comptroller of the Currency J. F. T. O'Connor's ruling that conservators of restricted national banks may accept the bonds in exchange for mortgages.

The Pittsburgh office at present has many applications pending from restricted state banks. Recently the State Department of Banking ruled state banks might accept the bonds.

As there are approximately 52 restricted national banks in the Pittsburgh territory, it is believed the loan corporation will be forced to speed up operations in order to handle the new loans rapidly enough to be of help to the banks.

Selling Stock InBraddock's New Bank

More than half the stock in a new institution to take the place of the First National Bank of Braddock has been sold in less than a week, according to leaders of a depositors' committee.

The new bank, which will have capital, surplus and undivided profits of $187,500, will make available 65 per cent of the deposits in the old bank.

Many depositors, however, are signing waivers on a portion of the freed money in order to buy stock.

The new bank will be approximately 85 per cent liquid, and it will be in a good position to come under the arrangement for guaranteed deposits planned by the government, it is declared.

JAPAN HINTS AT RUSS BREAK

TOKIO, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—New differences between Russia and Japan rose today to clutter the path to continued peace in the Far East.

Tentatively, said a Japanese foreign office spokesman, Japan will content herself with an investigation of the circulation at Moscow of documents which allegedly described a Japanese plot to seize the Chinese Eastern Railway.

Then, he added, "stronger measures may be necessary," unless guarantees of "good faith" immediately are forthcoming from the U. S. S. R.

The new threat to peace, like others before it, was born of the protracted wrangling over negotiations for the sale of Chinese Eastern Railway.

Japan entered the conversations officially as a mediator in the projected sale by Russia to Nippon's puppet state, Manchukuo.

But charges have flared frequently in the Soviet capital that Tokio was going furth[illegible]-was, in fact, as most lately asserted, joining in a plot to seize the road.

SURGEON RAPS SOCIALIZED PRACTICE

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Dr. J. Bentley Squier, president of the American College of Surgeons, last night urged American physicians to oppose any major change in medical practice, especially its socialization.

Dr. Squier, who spoke before the college's annual banquet, asserted the profession should do the planning, should the country be furnished with medical care on a planned basis.

He proposed that the profession societies of medicine and surgery—the American Medical Society, the American College of Physicians, and the College of Surgeons—take the lead in opposing any drastic changes.

The movement, the surgeons' president declared, originates in "certain visionary groups without medical training." He added:

"The present is no time for the medical profession to be too lazy to think. It is no time to allow planning for the medical practice of the future to be carried out by any group not trained in medicine."

Declaring that the physicians and surgeons are "still smarting" from the report of the committee on the costs of medical care, which found the costs of illness generally to be beyond the public's capacity, Dr. Squier asserted the profession is "more concerned with human than with financial values," and declared most of its members devote half their time to free cases.

Cancer, one of the conference's chief concerns, is to be discussed in a number of papers and will be the subject of a symposium today. Famous specialists will declare the disease is curable.

Dr. William D. Haggard, of Nashville, took office as president of the college.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(Universal.)—Maj. Chester P. VAN DYKE SEES G. O. P. PANIC

HARRISBURG, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Warren Van Dyke, Democratic state chairman, says Gov. Pinchot is possibly the only one the Republican organization can afford to "kick out" of the party.

Commenting on an appeal by Gen. Edward Martin, chairman of the Republican state committee, to Republican voters to insure their right to vote that ticket next year by supporting a majority of the party's candidates next month, Van Dyke said "desperation is written all over the Martin statement," continuing:

"There are not so many organization Republicans any more that the machine can afford to kick anybody out of the party, with the possible exception of Gifford Pinchot, whom Chairman Martin helped make Governor."

The Governor, an independent Republican, has long been at odds with Martin and the organization.

Mrs. Hoover Attends Girl Scout Meeting

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Mrs. Herbert Hoover arrived here yesterday and stepped immediately into a swirl of activities preceding the convention of the Girl Scouts of America.

The economic depression, Mrs. Hoover asserted, has focused attention on scouting and has brought about a keener appreciation of its benefits. She will make a public appearance at a pageant tomorrow night.

TAX ARREARS PAYMENT GAINS

Figures released yesterday by H. Raymond Hilliard, city treasurer, showed delinquent tax collections have been higher for the first nine months of 1933 than for the same period of 1931 and 1932.

Hilliard attributed the increase to the work of several men detailed to interview delinquents and urge them to pay.

For the first nine months of the year the city took in $2,607,595.15 in delinquent city, school and water taxes as compared with $2,424,708.91 in 1932 and $2,422,714.11 in 1931.

CHALK WARNING SAVES FLIERS

HAMPTON, Va., Oct. 10.—(AP.)—A message to "jump" chalked upon the side of an airplane led to membership in the "caterpillar" club for Lieut. E. A. Hillery and P. H. Paul, Langley Field fliers.

The two jumped to safety with parachutes from a bomber after a fellow officer noted the landing gear of the ship was damaged and gave the written warning.

The gear was wrecked as the plane took off. Lieuts. A. L. Harvey and C. O. O'Connor followed in another plane. Their examination, abreast of the damaged gear, indicated it could not be repaired in flight.

They returned to earth and reported their findings to Lieut. George C. Diggs, who went aloft after tracing the word "jump" on the side of his pursuit plane.

HARVARD HEAD INSTALLED

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Dr. James Bryant Conant, internationally known chemist, yesterday was inaugurated as the twenty-third president of Harvard University at a simple ceremony.

Only a picked audience of 150 persons attended the shortest and most unpretentious induction of a Harvard chief executive since the early days of the university. It was in marked contrast to the pomp and pageantry which attended the induction of Dr. A. Lawrence Lowell, nearly a quarter of a century ago, when more than 13,000, including dignitaries from all parts of the world, attended.

SMASHUP FATAL TO KELLY ALSO CLAIMS WIFE

Injuries and exposure suffered when she and her husband were pinned all night under their overturned automobile near White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., caused the death last night of Mrs. George A. Kelly III, of 6815 Edgerton avenue, in Ronceverte Hospital, near White Sulphur Springs.

Her husband, vice president of the George A. Kelly Drug Company, Ninth street, was dead when removed from the wreckage of the car early yesterday.

The Kellys were en route from a convention in French Lick, Ind., to Hot Springs, Va., where they were to attend a golf tournament. Early yesterday a workman found the wrecked car, which had plunged down a steep embankment, and calling aid removed the victims.

At the hospital Mrs. Kelly told doctors that the car left the road and ran down the hill shortly after 9 p. m. Sunday. She said the car left the roadway on a curve which her husband, who was driving, did not know about.

Between that time and 7 a. m. yesterday, when the wreck was recovered, she said, she frequently talked to her husband, but both were pinned in such positions that they could not move. During the night, she said, Kelly called to her that he was dying, and after that she could get no response when she talked to him.

The first fall meeting of the Pittsburgh Junior League was canceled today out of respect to the memory of Mrs. Kelly. She was one of its leading members and a former officer.

ARSON SUSPECT ADMITS GUILT

BERLIN, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Marinus Van Der Lubbe, young Dutch brickmason, again confessed today that he set the Reichstag Building on fire last winter, working without assistance.

The first day of the resumed hearing, held in the main committee room of the Parliament Building after sessions in the Supreme Court at Leipzig, came to a tense climax with this admission. Presiding Judge Wilhelm Buenger told Van Der Lubbe to stand. The judge said:

"Again, I ask you to tell us loudly and unequivocally: Did you set fire to the Reichstag alone?"

After a long silence, during which many of the spectators rose from their seats, the Dutchman replied almost inaudibly:

"Yes."

Georgi Dimitroff, another of the five defendants, in an impassioned voice, broke in:

"Impossible."

Junior Patrol Mail Box

Don't you like getting up early these crisp mornings and getting to school soon enough to play a game or two of tag?

It's no fun having to hurry your breakfast, is it, fellows? It's not good for you either. Upsets your stomach and makes you feel grouchy. And who wants to feel bad all day!

It's much better to get to school 10 or 15 minutes before the bell so you can see all the other Junior Patrol members. Then if you talk to them before school, you won't have to whisper during classes. That only gets you into trouble.

Good Junior Patrol members, you know, don't get into that kind of trouble. They know better.

Steve Balogh, of Lorain, O., wants to join our club. After the nice letter he sent in, don't you think we want him for a fellow member? Here is what he writes.

"I would like to join your Junior Patrol, so I am sending in my Junior Patrol pledge. I am also a Patrol boy in school. I would be very proud to wear your official emblem."

While you're at it, Steve, why not organize a whole chapter in Lorain? After all, it's not much fun to be the only Junior Patrol member in your neighborhood. Get together a crowd and send in the pledges. O. K.?

Here's your man who has started things going in Patterson Heights, Beaver Falls. Jack Britton is his name. His letter has no less than 10 pledges in it:

"I have inclosed 10 pledges of my friends who wish to join the Junior Patrol. We truly believe that the Junior Patrol is a good club. We will do all we can in the interest of the Junior Patrol and will try to send in more pledges later on."

Good luck to you and your friends, Jack. We're sure you're going to enjoy being part of the Junior Patrol.

The boys aren't the only active members, either. Anna Mazzitelli, of Whittier street, Pittsburgh, has been plenty busy. She writes:

"I wish to become a member of the Junior Patrol. There are 11 other girls who want to join, too. We are calling our chapter the Jolly Girls' Club. Please send us cards and buttons."

Artist, 24, Wins Place In International Exhibit

"AGITATORS"..YOUNG DAVID SILVETTE'S INTERNATIONAL

Native Pittsburgher Follows Dad's Footsteps

Young David Silvette, in his awkward 'teens, came to visit his native city five years ago, and took in the International Art Exhibit in the Carnegie Institute. A student of painting then—following in the footsteps of his father—he vowed that some day he'd have a picture showing in the big exhibition.

Mr. Silvette

Thursday of next week, when the International opens, he will. And he's only 24, perhaps the youngest ever to show in this world-famous International.

The picture he will exhibit is current. It tells a story of the "poor white's" rebellion.

Silvette, who was born here, is a son of Ellis Silvette, known in Pittsburgh for many portraits of well known persons, and known nationally for his pictures of the late Thomas A. Edison.

With his father, he moved to Richmond, Va., and studied with his father and Cecilia Beaux and Charles W. Hawthorne. In 1930, he won a $1,000 competition for painting Virginia State Capitol. In 1931 the Richmond Academy of Arts awarded him the portrait and E. V. Valentine prize. And in the Corcoran Gallery show last year he won the William A. Clark prize of $1,000 and a bronze medal.

The youthful painter has done a number of distinguished paintings, including Gov. J. G. Pollard, of Virginia. His picture in the International is titled "Agitators."

In it the "poor white" of the South is shown rebelling against the social and economic burden which oppresses him; beside him is the Negro, who shares the burden. With the agitator are his wife and infant, and also a white-collared, bespectacled man, presumably a young professor. In the background are a brawny Negro and posters of protest.

FAKE COIN GETS JAIL FOR TWO

An attempt to pass their first counterfeit coin brought jail sentences to two men in Federal Court today.

Pleading guilty to having tendered a counterfeit 50-cent piece in a downtown store and to the possession of 15 more fake coins, Jack L. Copeland, 42, was sentenced to a year in a federal penitentiary, and Alfred Bailey, 20, five months in jail.

Copeland and Bailey, it was testified, had bought 250 counterfeit coins for $10 in Laurel, Del. Visiting relations there, the two bought the money to help them go West, Copeland said.

BANK BANDITS ELUDE POSSES

WARREN, O., Oct. 10.—(AP.)—A daylight bank robbery in which $68,000 was whisked from the possession of two Second National Bank messengers without a shot being fired left authorities with only slender clues today.

Armed posses which raced up and down Northeastern Ohio roads last night failed to locate the trail of the three escaping robbers, who carried off with them two boxes of currency, consigned from the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland to the Second National Bank, where it was to be used for the payrolls of local concerns.

Charles Wolfe and Frank Fisher, the messengers, were held up by two men directly in front of the bank late yesterday as they brought the money from the postoffice.

Annul Marriage Of Widow, 50, Boy, 19

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—The marriage of Mrs. Juanita Marie Crim Parquette, 50-year-old widow of Will Crim, San Francisco architect, and Edmond Parquette, her 19-year-old chauffeur from Boston, Mass., was annulled yesterday by Judge Thomas Graham in Superior Court.

FOREST PARTY FOR PARK HERE

The second detachment of civilian conservationists to be assigned to this district will arrive Friday and Saturday to take up winter quarters in South Park, Director of Parks A. M. Marion announced. They will arrive in a special train over the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. They come from Pocatello, Ida.

Marion said the government, moving the camps to better locations for the witenr months, expects to quarter about 200 men in the park. Vacancies in the detachment will be filled with local enlistments.

The winter program includes the building of roads, landscaping, building of ovens and shelters and clearing wooded sections. While winter barracks are being erected, the soldiers will be quartered in army tents.

Talks to 'Tailor,' Watch Disappears

A thief with a fondness for watches was sought today by police. Jan Sabol, of 1063 Spring Garden avenue, said he lost his watch to a man who posed as a tailor and engaged him in conversation.

The other victim was A. R. Wright, of Bell avenue, who said he lost his watch in Wylie avenue.

Fireman Answers Alarm to House He Owns

Fireman Albert McVicker answered an alarm with Engine Company No. 12 yesterday and found he was the owner of the burning house.

Clothes drying over a stove in the house, a two-story frame, at 178 South Seventeenth street, had ignited.

Laura Strang, 26, the tenant, was burned when she attempted to pull the clothes from the line and was treated at South Side Hospital. Damage was estimated at $50.

FLAMES TRAP FIREMAN

A fireman was overcome by smoke and property loss estimated at several thousand dollars was caused by a blaze of undetermined origin that partly destroyed two homes in Clifton avenue, Sharpsburg, early today.

Assistant Fire Chief William Strain was temporarily trapped and overcome by smoke while fighting a blaze on the second floor at 213 Clifton avenue. He collapsed after staggering unassisted from the building and was removed to the St. Francis Hospital.

ICKES PREDICTS SUPER HIGHWAY

Universal Service.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 10.—Secretary of the Interior Ickes, addressing a joint meeting of the American Civic Association and the National Conference on City Planning here last night, predicted construction of a transcontinental super highway. He declared no time should be lost in studying the problem.

Ickes said:

"There has been urged upon us for serious consideration from many quarters the building of at least one super highway all the way across the country from which branch roads at appropriate points could diverge.

"That at least such a transcontinental arterial highway will be built in the future there can be no doubt, thus presenting a problem that the National Planning Board should lose no time in studying."

The National Planning Board was appointed by Ickes under the Recovery Act. Ickes made a plea for sound city planning as a necessity.

Crack English Train Leaves World Fair

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—The Royal Scot, England's crack train, headed for the west coast today after having been viewed by more than 2,000,000 visitors at a Century of Progress Exposition.

TWINS ALIVE, FATHER HAPPY

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—The twin babies born to Mrs. Marie Del Rosso are not dead after all, and their father is happy.

But in a police cell, the mother sobbed her remorse and confessed she had deceived her husband by telling him the babies had died.

Mrs. Del Rosso left City Hospital yesterday with her twin daughters to go home. Fear of being unable to support them on her husband's meager salary led her to abandon them, one in the Blessed Sacrament Church and the other in a subway station.

Within a short time the babies were reunited, baptized and taken to the foundling home.

The mother was traced by police and arrested for abandonment. She said she had decided to abandon the twins and tell her husband they had died "because we are so poor." The husband, Carlos, is a bellboy, and was unable to come to the hospital because his working hours coincided with the hospital visiting hours.

Parole Charge Holds Burglar Suspect

Arthur Pane, 28, of Oakmont, said by county detectives to have been trapped by Oakmont police in a burglary attempt, was held for court in violation of parole by Justice of the Peace B. L. Gunsallus, of Oakmont.

MISSING BOY, MOTHER FOUND

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Raymond Jacquith, 8, reported to state police yesterday as having been kidnaped from the village school of Hammond, near here, today had been found at Sandy Creek, near Pulaski, with his mother, Mrs. Merrill Jacquith, of Syracuse.

The troopers at Pulaski said they had been unable to verify thus far a report that legal custody of the child had been awarded to the father, a World War veteran now in a citizens' conservation camp at Putnamville, Vt. Clarence Dennis, brother, with whom Mrs. Jacquith was stopping at Sandy Creek, declined to discuss the case today. Troopers said they had no orders respecting the woman or the child.

FLORIDA VOTES ON REPEAL

TAMPA, Fla., Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Florida voted today to decide whether the state would be the thirty-third to sanction repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, or the first in the country to oppose it.

Repealists sent out a last-hour plea through Postmaster General James A. Farley and Gov. Dave Sholtz, who spoke here last night.

Farley called upon Florida to join "the parade of states marching toward early accomplishment of repeal" and predicted that the state would go two to one for repeal.

He said Florida should favor repeal to "show confidence in President Roosevelt," and to hasten the return of prosperity so more persons "can take Florida vacations."

The voters cast ballots for 67 delegates from the state at large who will officially express the state's stand on the repeal issue at a convention in Tallahassee November 14.

Pittsburgh Repeal Caravan on Tour

OIL CITY, Pa., Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Barnstorming for prohibition repeal, a caravan of Pittsburgh women moves on today to Clarion, Dubois, Punxsutawney and other cities.

At a meeting in Columbus Hall last night, addresses were made by Mrs. Marian Booth Kelly, New York lecturer, and Mrs. Carroll Miller, of Pittsburgh, Democratic national committee woman.

Chemist Discovers Four New Gases

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Discovery of four new gases was announced yesterday by Dr. Harold S. Booth, associate professor of chemistry at Western Reserve University.

The gases, compounds of the elements fluorine and chlorine with silicon hydrogen and phosphorus, are known as monofluorodichlorosilane, difluorodichlorosilane, difluoromonochlorophosphene, and monofluorodichlorophosphene.

Two 'Guests' Rob Wheeling Hotel

WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Two men who registered Sunday as E. F. Simpson and R. Jackson, of Chicago, early today held up George Englert, night clerk at the Windsor Hotel, and escaped with $100.

They called Charles Manchester, night elevator operator, to their room and bound him, then went to the office. Brandishing guns, they forced Englert into the vault and fled with the money.

McKees Rocks Man Found Dead in Alley

A 57-year-old McKees Rocks widower, Frank Kopler, of 2202 Chartiers avenue, was found dead today in an alley about a block and a half from his home. It was first thought he was a victim of foul play. Investigation by Deputy Coroner R. D. Newman and a Coroner's physician, however, disclosed Kopler died of chronic heart trouble.

2 Held for Court After Police Raid

Carmine Saverino, of 324 Edna street, East McKeesport, and Dolores Stiver, of 611 Grant street, Duquesne; arrested in a raid on an alleged disorderly house in North Versailles Township last night, were held for court by Justice of the Peace Nathan Conroy, of North Versailles Township. Two visitors were fined $20 and costs.

Bronchial Troubles Need Creomulsion

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, and attacks the seat of the trouble.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Your own druggist is authorized to refund your money on the spot if your cough or cold is not relieved by Creomulsion.

5 FACE COURT AS SHOPLIFTING 'SYNDICATE'

Five members of a band alleged to be preying on downtown department stores were held for court on larceny charges at a hearing today before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court.

The five were arrested by city detectives last week in connection with a series of clothing thefts totaling several thousands dollars from the stores within the last several months. In one store, detectives testified, they got away with 25 dresses.

They gave their names as Andrew Dombroski, 26, of No. 1 Brake street; Nick Sentzek, 21, of 1210 Gorman way; John Salowski, 19, of 62 South Twelfth street; Marino Romano, 28, and John Stepick, 30, of Cleveland, O.

George Perish, 22, of 2802 Sarah street, who, detectives said, was waiting for the men near a department store, was fined $50 by Magistrate Rothenberg.

SKY FIREWORKS THRILL EUROPE

International News Service.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—The most spectacular and largest display of nature's pyrotechnics in 50 years was seen through virtually all Europe and northern Africa last night and early today as hundreds of thousands of shooting stars flashed across the western skies.

The rain of stars over the continent was believed to have emanated from the Giacobinis Comet, which astronomers said was due to reappear this year.

City folk of many nations crowded to roof tops to witness the spectacle, generally seen once in a lifetime. Inhabitants of less enlightened district like the native quarter of Tangier and isolated Portuguese villages flocked to their places of worship, praying and singing hymns, fearful their day of doom had come.

U. S. CASH SAVES OLD DWELLING

One of Homestead's oldest residences was back in the hands of its owner today, thanks to the Home Owners' Loan Corporation.

Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, 81, who moved into the house, at 233 East Nineteenth street, when it was built in 1877, inherited part of the structure in 1887, and in 1919 bought the remaining share. She has lived in the house continually. In 1927 she mortgaged the building for $1,772.01, but during the depression was unable to meet payments.

Yesterday she appeared at the offices of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation and was granted a loan sufficient to pay off all obligations, and had the distinction of being the first resident of Homestead to receive relief from that government branch.

With Mrs. Smith lives her son, Isaac Smith, 59.

PRIZE CONTEST RECIPES NEED NOT BE ORIGINAL

All Entries Must Be Written Neatly On Plain Paper

The question has often come up since the Sun-Telegraph-Prudence Penny favorite recipe started as to whether or not originality in the preparation of the entries is considered by the judges. It does not.

Only the recipe counts. It should, however, be written on one side of the page only, neatly and plainly, and with either pen or typewriter. Some women have gone to great effort to prepare unique or fancy entries. Prudence Penny doesn't want the housewives to waste effort along these lines. Just send them in neatly written on plain paper.

The women of Pittsburgh and vicinity are taking an unusually keen interest in this contest, not only because it offers $15 in daily cash prizes, but also for the reason that the publication of the prize-winning recipes has brought to them many helpful suggestions. There is one $5 prize and 10 awards of $1 each every day.

Housewives throughout the reading area of the Sun-Telegraph are invited to send their favorite recipes to Prudence Penny, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. Every recipe will be examined and the awards will be made by competent judges.

PHILADELPHIA PEPER POT

Sliced onion, chopped celery, chopped green peppers, one-fourth cup each. Cook vegetables in three tablespoons butter 15 minutes, add three tablespoons flour and stir until well mixed, then add:

Five cups hot chicken stock.
One and one-half cups potato cubes.
Salt and pepper to taste, lots of pepper.

Cover and cook one hour. Just before serving add one-half cup cream and one tablespoon butter.

ALICE WELLS,
4028 Northminster avenue,
Pittsburgh.

BROWNIES

Two eggs (well beaten).
One cup white sugar.
One-half cup butter.
Two squares melted chocolate.
One-third cup flour.
One-third teaspoon baking powder.
One cup nut meats (chopped).
Flavor with vanilla.

Cream sugar and butter, add well beaten eggs, chocolate, flour and baking powder, nuts and flavoring. Pour into well greased pan (about 8x12 inches), bake in moderate oven. When partly cool sprinkle with powdered sugar, let cool then cut in squares about two inches square.

MRS. D. W. STEELE,
R. D. 2, Leechburg.

CRANBERRY RELISH

One orange.
One pound cranberries.
Two cups sugar.
Speck salt.

Peel orange and divide it into sections. Grind these and rind (discarding white membrane) through food chopper and follow up with the washed cranberries. Stir in the sugar and salt. Do not cook.

MRS. E. BLACKBURN,
245 Parker Dr., Mt. Lebanon.

ZWIEBACK PECAN CREAM PIE

One cup ground zwieback (unsweetened).
One cup ground pecans.
One teaspoon flour.
One-half cupful butter—melted.
One-half cupful granulated sugar.
One-fourth teaspoonful cinnamon.

Mix as for pie-crust; take three-fourths of mixture and pack in pie-pan.

CUSTARD FILLING:

Three egg yolks.
One-fourth cupful sugar.
One teaspoon vanilla.
Two cupfuls milk.
Two tablespoonfuls corn starch.

MERINGUE:

Make a meringue of three egg whites and three tablespoonfuls granulated sugar. Spread on top of custard. Sprinkle remaining crumb mixture over top of meringue.

Bake in moderate oven (325) until meringue is brown.

MARGARET B. DUERR,
1111 Third Ave., Freedom.

CUCUMBER MUSTARD PICKLES

(Semf.-Gurken).

Eight large ripe tomatoes.
Four cups vinegar.
Two cups sugar.
Two tablespoonfuls mustard seed.
One tablespoon mixed whole spice.

Peel cucumbers, remove seeds and cut into long strips. Salt lightly and let stand 24 hours. Drain well. Mix vinegar, sugar, mustard seed and spice and pour over the cucumbers. Cook until soft. Pack into clean hot ball jars and seal at once.

MISS ANNA BAUMILLER,
354 Third Ave., New Kensington.

WAFER DELIGHT

Twenty-four chocolate wafers.
One pint whipping cream.

After whipping cream stand wafers on edge and alternate with whipped cream. Use the remaining cream to cover as you would icing a cake. Place in ice box for five hours. To serve cut on the bias instead of across.

MRS. C. H. EHRLINGER,
926 Savannah Ave., Wilkinsburg.

YELLOW TOMATO CONSERVE

One-half chip basket yellow tomatoes.
Three oranges.
One lemon.
Sugar.

Scald and skin the yellow tomatoes (either large round ones or the small ones) cut in quarters.

Put oranges and lemon through fine knifed food chopper, rind and all, first having removed seeds. Add about four cups sugar at first, keep tasting until of desired sweetness, but you must have enough sugar to jell properly. Boil fast, stirring almost continuously, until of right consistency. This is in season at the present moment and is very tasty.

MRS. C. B. CHARLES,
253 Castner Ave., Donora.

EVERLASTING ROLLS

(with part whole-wheat)

One quart milk.
Three-fourth cup shortening.
One cup sugar.

Mix above ingredients and bring to boiling point, let cool to blood heat. Dissolve cake of yeast in mixture, add enough flour (about four cups, two or which may be whole wheat) to make consistency of cake batter. Let stand two hours, then sift in one teaspoon soda, one tablespoon salt, one teaspoon baking powder. Work in enough flour to make soft dough, knead well and let rise two hours. Cut out enough rolls for a meal, set to rise. Put remainder of dough in refrigerator until ready for more rolls. It will keep one week if refrigerator is kept at about 40 to 45 degrees. These are delicious and make nice rolls for a party when three tiny balls of dough are put in a muffin tin when set to rise.

MRS. ELEANOR R. BUSCHER,
132 Richbarn Rd., Pittsburgh.

CANTALOUPE SURPRISE

Slice a thoroughly ripe chilled canteloupe into round slices. Remove seeds and rind and place on lettuce beds. In center of round place fruit salad, any combination, and add French dressing for a salad course. If used for a dessert course, top with whipped cream and a maraschino cherry.

Ravigote Mayonnaise

Drain one can salmon, rinse, dry and separate in flakes. Moisten with Ravigote mayonnaise, arrange on bed of lettuce, mask with mayonnaise, and garnish with canned pimentos cut in triangles and truffles cut in fancy shapes.

RAVIGOTE MAYONNAISE:

Mix two tablespoons cooked spinach, one tablespoon capers, one-half shallot finely chopped, three anchovies, one-third cup parsley and one-half cup watercress. Round in mortar until thoroughly macerated, then force through a very fine strainer.

BETTER LIGHT . . . . BETTER SIGHT

Photograph From Westinghouse Lighting Institute

REQUIRES GOOD LIGHT

With all the modern household appliances to help her through the day's work, it's a slight exaggeration these days to say "A woman's work is never done." Never-the-less many women do a great deal of work requiring artificial light. Sewing, for example. A woman sewing needs more light than when reading . . . she needs plenty of well-diffused light to protect her eyes against eyestrain. Whether she's reading, sewing or working in the kitchen, any woman will find that good light helps to avoid nervous headaches and irritability, caused by eyestrain . . . furthermore she'll see that it helps to keep her face looking young, her expression more pleasant. Women—make this test in your own home: 'Phone Grant 4300 line 403 for a free demonstration card with which you may test the lighting of your home.

DO YOU KNOW . . .

THAT light as a potent aid to better seeing is not expensive. You can light a bridge party for an entire evening for about half the cost of a package of cigarettes.

THAT, it is estimated, we are using our eyes for severe visual tasks about 30% more than was common a generation ago—and many times more than a century ago.

THAT reading in bed is usually hard on the eyes, due to inadequate and improper lighting as well as poor posture. By correcting these the harm is eliminated.

FIRE CAUTION URGED HERE

As National Fire Prevention Week entered its third day today, Pittsburghers were looking to their cellars and attics, and nooks and corners.

Fire Chief Richard L. Smith's list of "do's" and "don'ts" for Pittsburghers—each of whom has been "appointed" fire inspector in his own home for a one-week term—stresses heating plants, electric wiring and appliances, combustible material, careless use of matches and smoking materials, and construction of homes.

Civic, fraternal, business and municipal organizations have been asked to co-operate. While fires in business houses and manufacturing plants have decreased during the last few years, Chief Smith pointed out, home fires have been increasing.

THREE MEN SUE FOR DIVORCE

Divorce suits were filed by E. Ford Wilson against Nell LaRue Wilson; Fred J. Alberte, Jr., against Mary L. Alberte, and by Charles E. Roth, Jr., against Mabel E. Roth.

Divorces were granted to Cora H. Gray from Harry S. Gray, Helen M. Espey from Albert Espey, Lillian M. Redenbaugh from Louis J. Redenbaugh, Pauline Verchek from George Verchek, George McKinley Hoak from Sadie Bell Hoak, Ethel Armor from Ray D. Armor and to Clara W. Henry from Frank P. Henry.

DRAVO TO BUILD W. VA. LOCKS

The Dravo Contracting Company, of Pittsburgh, was awarded the contract for construction of twin locks on the Kanawha River near Winfield, W. Va., according to an Associated Press dispatch received here.

In announcing the award of the $1,921,130 contract, Maj. Fred W. Herman, federal district engineer, said a river shipment for the project had left Pittsburgh and that actual work would begin in a few days.

Man Dies, Trampled By Runaway Horses

Trampled by runaway horses at Beech and Linden avenue, East Pittsburg, Saturday, Karnig Fermanian, 65, of 285 Cable street, East Pittsburgh, died in McKeesport Hospital last night, according to a coroner's report.

Mr. Fermanian was chatting with a friend when the team, owned by the Valley Dairy Company, ran onto the sidewalk and trampled him, the report said. His companion jumped to safety.

Woman Suffers Collapse on Trolley

Collapsing on a Frankstown avenue street car near the Homewood carbarn last night, Mrs. Ida Chiaradia, 34, of 1245 Album street, East End, was taken to Pittsburgh Hospital, according to a report to police. Her condition was said to be not serious.

IDEAL FIGURE IS GOAL OF MODERN GIRL —SAYS DOCTOR

New Reducing Method Explained by Dr. Frank S. Orland Over Radio Station WCAE.

"The modern girl loathes fat, but often takes the wrong road to lose it," said Dr. Frank S. Orland in his talk over WCAE recently. "Many of them, trying dangerous drugs such as thyroid (which should only be taken under the direction of a competent physician) or drastic salts, actually damage their health. Others try the exhausting method of violent diets and exercises, which seldom give permanent results, but may lead to permanent injuries.

"Now Science," says Dr. Orland, "has come forward with a new discovery, Vannay, which contains no thyroid, no laxatives, no dangerous drugs. In fact, the Vannay method of weight control is so pleasant and certain that it has already been adopted by many thousands of women. Vannay, a convenient sugar-coated tablet, is a safe, natural regulator of the digestive ferments (Lipases) which control the production of fat in all human bodies."

"You don't have to starve yourself or go through painful exercises. You simply take the tablets each day and continue to eat three meals. The fat disappears at just the places where you want to lose it."

It is possible now for the modern woman to set her weight at the ideal figure and easily reach it. This remarkable product is for sale at all May's Drug Stores. Come into our store today and learn about Vannay. Ask for the booklet, "How To Reduce With Absolute Safety."

Constipation Drove Her Wild made her feel cross, headachy, half-alive. Now she has a lovable disposition, new pep and vitality. Heed Nature's warning: Sluggish bowels invariably result in poisonous wastes ravaging your system—often the direct cause of headaches, dizziness, colds, complexion troubles. NATURE'S REMEDY—the mild, all-vegetable laxative—safely stimulates the entire eliminative tract—strengthens, regulates the bowels for normal, natural functioning. Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—
Patricia Pitt

Today is debutante day. And no less than two buds will curtsy to society on the day of the formal opening of the debutante season.

They are petite, dark-haired Patty Witherow, daughter of Mrs. David McG Witherow, and tall, slender, brunet Florence Willock, daughter of the George J. Willocks.

Patricia will be presented at a luncheon her mother will give today in their home with all the debs of the season as guests, and Florence will bow at a tea this afternoon which her mother will give in the Twentieth Century Club. Patricia will be one of the aides at Florence's tea.

Bowing at Luncheon

At her debut luncheon for the debutantes, Patricia will wear a distinctively simple dress of red crepe with silver for accent.

Everyone in the social world will be there to greet the many new debs. Autumn flowers as vividly colored as our young debutantes and gift bouquets will decorate the clubhouse.

At the tea, Florence will receive with her mother and her aunt, Mrs. Clifford Off, of Chicago. The young debutante will carry a bouquet of Talisman roses, a gift of her father, and will wear a sheath-like gown of eggshell velvet having long sleeves shirred at the dropped shoulder-line, and a high, boat neck-line. Her small hat of the same velvet will have a veil.

To Wear Velvet

Her mother will wear brown velvet with eggshell velvet trimming the sleeves, and a brown velvet hat. Mrs. Off will be in silver and black.

Florence's aides will be, in addition to Patricia Witherow, Annette Chester, Eloise Dorrance, Sally Jane Fields, Mary Gordon, Margery Hillman, Gretchen Lappe, Barbara Peirce and Barbara Verner, a group of sister buds.

The Twentieth Century Club will be the scene of a wedding this month as well as of many a debutante party. Alberta Pressley Friesell, the William Henrici Friesells' daughter, has decided to be married in the Club.

To Wed Oct. 18

She will become Mrs. Harry Kay Voelp, Jr., October 18, at 7:30 o'clock in the evening, with the Rev. Dr. A. R. Robinson, of the Sixth United Presbyterian Church, officiating. A reception at the club will follow the ceremony.

Mrs. Edward McKee Aiken will be her sister's matron of honor, and Audrey Voelp, sister of the bridegroom-elect, will be maid of honor. Mrs. Walter F. Friday and Mrs. Stanley James Rush, of Greensburg, will be bridesmaids.

Bridal Party

Serving as best man will be Henry Schroeder, and as ushers W. H. Friesell, Jr., William Blackburn, George Ewing, Ernest Reis, Walter F. Friday and Stanley M. Rush. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Harry K. Voelp, Cathedral Mansions.

Gossipy Chat
—By NANCY JANE—

As that glamorous bride Laura Evans reached the vestibule of Calvary Church on the arm of her husband, Emory Moran Ford, after their marriage Saturday, the bride said to the bridegroom:

"What are you laughing at? My headdress?"

He smiled, she smiled, and they entered their car laughing.

A bit of Bermuda has come to Sewickley Heights. The other day Mrs. Miller Wardrop and her daughter, Ada B. Wardrop, were bicycling along one of the many side roads near Allegheny Country Club.

A young schoolgirl who is growing up fast is Mollie Hays, one of the J. Crossan Hayses' daughters. She's quite tall, and looks like a sub-deb. She was out riding with the Fox Chapel Hunt Saturday.

Never does any prominent group of amateur actors in Pittsburgh go without the enthusiastic support of dowager Mrs. H. Allen Machesney.

For years she has been a leader in the drama department of the Twentieth Century Club, of the Stage and Play Society. The last few years she has interested herself in the University of Pittsburgh Cap and Gown shows.

Now she's giving her patronage to the Golden Triangle Players (Pittsburgh boys and girls, most of them alumni of Carnegie Tech's Drama School), to open their season of children's plays Saturday at the popular Twentieth Century Club.

Nearly every entertainment this month for the debs will take place in the Twentieth Century Club.

Mary Louise Jageman Weds J. Louis Wenzel

Today at a very quiet ceremony, for only the families, Miss Mary Louise Jageman is marrying J. Louis Wenzel. The bride is a daughter of Joseph P. Jageman and the bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Wenzel, of Jackson street.

Miss Ruth S. White To Become Bride On October 28

Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Seymour White, of Osgood street, North Side, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ruth Seymour White, to Richard Millen Barnhart, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Barnhart, of Monongahela City.

Miss White has chosen October 28 as the date for her marriage. She attended Carnegie Tech drama school, and her fiance is a graduate of Carnegie Tech.

Dr. Reeves to Visit College of Surgeons

Dr. T. K. Reeves, of the Arlington Apartments, left today for Chicago where he will visit the American College of Surgeons and while there will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Rankin, formerly of Pittsburgh. He will fly to Dodge City, Kan., to visit his sister Mrs. Joseph Weigel, before returning.

Vera C. Smith Hostess For Democratic Benefit

Miss Vera Cecelia Smith will be hostess at a benefit card party tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock in the Pittsburgh Hotel.

Proceeds will be for the benefit of the Democratic Women's Club.

Marjorie C. Stewart to Be Married Oct. 28 in Calvary Church

Calvary Episcopal Church will again be the scene of an interesting wedding. Marjorie Catherine Stewart, whose betrothal to Robert S. Congdon, of New Orleans, was announced several weeks ago, will be married there.

She has chosen Saturday, October 28, as the date of her marriage, and 5:30 o'clock as the hour in the afternoon. The Rev. Dr. Edwin J. Van Etten, the rector, will officiate.

The bride is the daughter of the Howard G. tSewarts, of Beechwood boulevard, and the bridegroom is the son of the Sidney B. Congdons.

Musicale-Tea to Open Kelton P. T. A. Season

The Parent-Teacher Association of Kelton Public School, Dormont, will begin its year's work with a musicale-tea tomorrow in the school auditorium.

Officers are: President, Mrs. W. E. Pidgeon; vice president, Mrs. A. N. Martinson; secretary, Mrs. A. G. Dietze; treasurer, Mrs. E. P. Klingensmith.

Principals to Address Liberty P. T. A. Meeting

The first autumn meeting of the Liberty School Parent-Teacher Association will be held this evening in the school gymnasium. J. J. Coll, principal, will speak on "The New School Day" and D. Edwin Miller, principal of Peabody, will speak on "Opportunity Period" and there will be group singing under the leadership of Miss Jane Howard. The staff for this year is Mrs. W. C. Williams, president; Mrs. A. R. Taylor, vice president; Mrs. Everett Hunt, secretary, and Mrs. C. L. Miller, treasurer.

The monthly directors' meeting of Pittsburgh Council of Catholic Women tomorrow will be preceded by a luncheon at Council House.

Council members will visit the Better Homes Exhibit next Tuesday afternoon.

With our eyes glinting greedily we spyed out the secret of a new little dress shop . . . or rather an old dress shop in a new location! They now have frocks for $7.95 and $10.50 . . . unheard of prices for such as they, up to this time! Twin sweater sets of extra smart style come at $7.95 . . . the one we particularly liked was a black and oxford striped one with under sweater of this with white . . . plus a well tailored skirt!

And at $10.50 . . . a rosy raspberry colored woolen frock with double-breasted effect of silver buttons is a revelation in what can be had for such a low sum! The sleeves are set in with eye-opening details . . . everything about this little job is soul-satisfying in each detail! Other frocks $16.50 up.

With either of these carry one of the bags which are to be found at a certain shop for $1! What values . . . just why they're selling them for so little we can't decide! Anyway . . there are suede-cloth bags . . . and shoe calf . . . and pin seal or Morocco (simulated, of course) . . . and lizard! Every one of them with metal, self, or contrasting trims . . . and outfitted as if they expected you to be gone for the weekend—cigarette cases, pencils, little memo pads, and so forth. Black, eel grey, and brown. Doesn't it all make your eyes and ears bulge?

And yet another matter of moment . . . We have news of another brand new shop—this time, one which makes a specialty of linens, baby wear, and the whole gamut of specialties of this kind. To wit—a filet lace cloth, size 72x90, completely handmade, and to be had for only $1.39! Or a handmade baby dress (fine soft fabric with dainty embroidery) for just 27c and not one penny more—even a bigger bargain than those we mentioned last week at 49c! And just by way of a final shot . . . they offer all linen dish towels, of good, practical size with hemmed edges, in many shades, for 11c each. (No use bothering to hem your own when these are to be had for such a price!)

Then to rest your weary toes . . . tuck them into bedroom slippers the like of which has not been seen on land or sea for their present price! Among their numbers they list kid D'Orsays . . black crepe bridge slippers (lined in colors) . . . black carded crepe bridge slippers (colored linings) . . . and quilted black satin with peach linings and a pompom nodding a how-do-you-do on the toe! And the price—ha! that's the beauty of the whole tale—it's only $1.25!

Yet another sigh of approval as we train our spyglass on something which will prove as practical in mother's eyes as it will prove interesting to son! Big, wooly sweat shirts this time—with pictures of pirates, football players, baseball sluggers and whatnot on the front! Good and warm (we slid our hand down inside to find out just HOW wooly they really were!) 45c, these!

Governor Replacing Wife as Federation Speaker

Will Address Banquet on Thursday

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

What is probably the biggest piece of news the State Federation convention has to produce today is that Gov. Gifford Pinchot will take Mrs. Pinchot's place as the banquet speaker Thursday night.

Delegates and state officers arriving had a busy day, what with the Dormont New Century Club's luncheon, the garden jaunt, visits to Utility Hall, and the Better Homes Exhibit, and the evening reception and concert.

The luncheon was a beautifully appointed affair, carried out entirely in yellow with decorations so lovely that every one of the state officials mentioned them in her little impromptu post-luncheon speech. The garden flowers were arranged by Mrs. Phillip E. Corning, chairman of the garden committee, and the corsages presented to Mrs. Richard J. Hamilton, state president; Mrs. James G. Chalfant, district chairman, and Mrs. Harry M. White, president of the hostess club, were the work of her artistic hands, too.

Although the formal opening did not take place until this morning, the three dinners and the reception last night, brilliant affairs sartorially and pictorially, set an auspicious pace for the convention. Nothing, not even the exceptionally lovely gowning of the women or the many worthwhile speeches, elicited so much comment as the perfectly stunning decorations at the president's dinner. It was in the Urban room.

Dinners, Reception

The honor table was on a dais against a high drape of black oil cloth. Over and around the table was the same material, matching in its sheen the Urban walls.

Striking vivid against the black stood out a huge scarlet centerpiece of Japanese pepper pots and colored cat-tails, while at either end was a low mound of autumn leaves and fruits. Green candles in silver holders completed the unusual scheme. Each small table had a similar mound and at the door one table was laden with a horn of plenty spilling out its rich autumn contents.

Mrs. Hamilton presided and the speakers were Dr. Josephine L. Peirce, second vice president of the General Federation, who made brief talks at the other two dinners also; Miss Elizabeth Haymaker, president of the Ohio State Federation, and Mrs. Charles Gillingham Moore, president of the New York State Federation. Covers were laid for nearly 200.

Mrs. John A. Frick presided at the past presidents' dinner of 100 covers at which the speakers were Mrs. Samuel Semple, of Titusville; Miss Florence Dibert, of Johnstown; Mrs. Rudolph Blankenberg, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Ralph W. Johnston, Pittsburgh. Mrs. Ralph E. Flinn, Mrs. J. N. Succop, Mrs. F. R. Harbison, of Fox Chapel; Mrs. W. A. Morten, of Oakmont, and Mrs. E. E. Armstrong, Tarentum, furnished from their own gardens the gorgeous flowers for the delegates' dinner where Mrs. John M. Phillips presided and the speakers were Gustav L. Schramm, and Mrs. S. Blair Luckie, of Chester, who is both state and General Federation legislative chairman.

100 at Dinner

Mr. Schramm, who was introduced by Mrs. Phillips as "the man who very many thinking people of Allegheny County believe should be the judge of the new Juvenile Court, spoke on "The Role of Government in a Changing Society," and Mrs. Luckie stressed individual responsibility for the selection of public officials.

To Elgar's "Land of Hope and Glory," exceptionally well played by the Taylor Allderdice High School Orchestra, the federation officials marched into the ballroom for the concert. This was given by a choir of 17 voices under the direction of Lucille Miller Werner and Earl Wild, young pianist, who gave a brilliant performance. The choir opened with Mrs. F. F. Rohrer's impressive new setting for "The Collect for Club Women" and her Pennsylvania was sung by the assemblage to orchestral accompaniment. And can those club women sing?

Choir Concert

The juniors' cabaret supper which grew almost over night from 50 to 450 was held downstairs in the cafeteria. Checked table cloths and single candles established a Latin quarter atmosphere and the program of stunts was provided by the Aspinwall juniors who were all dressed as moustached French waiters.

Tonight the juniors will "adopt" Mrs. Blankenberg and Miss Dibert as honorary members.

Today's Events at State Federation Convention

Today's calendar for the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women's convention at the William Penn Hotel include: 12:15, district luncheons; 1:30, convention choir rehearsal; 2 o'clock, department of the American home, Judge Sara Soffel speaking, and department of public welfare, C. Cameron Beck and Dr. B. L. Scott speaking; 4 o'clock, memorial service in First Presbyterian Church; 6 o'clock, public welfare dinner, Judge Benjamin Lencher and Miss Charlotte Carr speaking and press and publicity dinner, Dr. Harvey B. Gaul and Mrs. Evelyn Gardiner Saudek speaking; 8:15, evening session, Dr. Josephine L. Peirce and Will Irwin, speaking.

Junior events are identical with those of the seniors up until 2 o'clock, when the juniors go into their own session for district reports and talks, the latter by Mrs. John A. Frick, Miss Evelyn Carpenter and Col. Morris S. Frank, of the Seeing Eye. At 5:30 the Junior Choir will rehearse and at 6 o'clock Cameron Beck will speak at the junior dinner, with "Leadership for Tomorrow" as his subject.

FORMAL FUR COATS: A PRACTICAL LUXURY

By PRUNELLA WOOD

PRECIOUS furs still remain the average woman's outward expression of success and happiness, and there is not a more becoming style quirk in the feminine nature. The mousiest woman throws out her chest confidently if it is swathed in mink or karacul, and her more glamorous sister grows more regal, pelt by pelt, as it were, when she slips on a handsome fur wrap.

It is an encouraging fact that most of the furs one covets are a practical investment as well as a fashionable one. Alaska seal, mink, leopard, karacul and others of the same class, are equal to many years of good service if they are treated respectfully. Silver fox, sable and baum marten are just as enduring.

IN selecting a fur coat, or a cloth coat that is righly trimmed with fur, a woman takes her most important step when she discovers whether a smooth material or a shaggy one is the more becoming. After that decision, she must discover what shoulder and neck treatment does it best for her proportions.

* * *

ALL of this season's coats, even those of swagger cut, are designed to give a slimming effect rather than a bulky one, but there are combinations, such as leopard and nutria, which require height as a rule, whereas fur models untrimmed with any contrasting skins look far more luxurious on a small woman than they do on a tall one.

350 Attend Club's Opening Event in Mt. Lebanon

The Federation convention with its attendant attractions failed to diminish interest in at least one local club opening, for 350 women were present at the inauguration of the ninth season of the Mt. Lebanon Women's Club which was held yesterday in the United Presbyterian Church.

Bowls of bronze dahlias combined with russet foliage provided an autumnal setting for the program which included an address by the Rev. John Ray Ewers, piano solos by Ethel M. Vroom, and a poetic transcription of the new year book by Mrs. R. F. Kunz.

Mrs. J. W. McKelvie was official hostess at the tea which concluded the affair. Presiding at the attractive tea-table were Mrs. Hanson, Mrs. C. F. Goldthwait, Mrs. J. B. Nicklas, Jr., and Mrs. S. Y. Free.

State D. A. R. to Convene In Washington, Pa., Oct. 17

Pennsylvania Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, will hold its thirty-seventh annual conference in the George Washington Hotel, Washington, Pa., October 17 to 20. The opening event will be a reception and musicale in honor of the state board on the evening of the seventeenth. Among other functions will be the conference banquet on Wednesday evening when the speaker will be Dr. Ralph C. Hutchinson, president of Washington and Jefferson College.

On Thursday afternoon the delegates will attend a reception in the Nemacolin Country Club where a pageant will be presented by the Waynesburg Chapter. Mrs. William H. Alexander, of Monongahela, the state regent, is giving a luncheon on Tuesday for the state officers. Mrs. Edward Grant Caughey, of Sewickley, who is librarian, will be one of the guests.

Hostess chapters for the conference are Washington County, Mrs. H. P. Christman, regent; Monongahela Valley, Mrs. Edwin McKay, regent; Canonsburg, Mrs. G. W. Buckner, regent, and the John Corbly Chapter, Miss Sarah L. Dinsmore, regent.

Lutheran Mission Meet Opens in Wilkinsburg

Approximately 500 delegates will attend the fifteenth annual convention of the Missionary Society of the Pittsburgh Synod of the Lutheran Church being held in Calvary Lutheran Church, Wilkinsburg, today, tomorrow and Thursday.

Among the highlights of the convention will be an address on Tuesday evening by Miss Mary Heltibridle, of Japan; a pageant by the Light Brigade of the church, and the young women's banquet on Wednesday evening, at which Miss Flora Prince, of Springfield, O., will be the principal speaker.

College Club Holds First Open House Of New Year

The first full week of events at the College Club began last night with the season's first open house. Mrs. H. Lee Briney, who heads the activity, arranged tables for duplicate and contract. At noon today the membership luncheon is taking place. These luncheons, which were held weekly during the summer, will now take place only on the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month.

Mrs. Albert P. Schrader is hostess this week and Miss Louise Bowman Metzgar is reviewing the "Story of San Michele."

Judge Sarah M. Soffel will address the first regular Friday afternoon meeting of the season this week. Mrs. W. A. Jordan will be hostess for the afternoon.

The monthly bridge luncheon for members and their friends will be held next Monday. Mrs. Clyde Stewart Rine is chairman.

N. Luella Jackson Chapter, No. 416, Order of the Eastern Star, will have a bridge luncheon at Spear's on Saturday. The chairman, Mrs. Helen K. Smith, is assisted by Mrs. Charlotte Kloppman.

Literary Club Opens With Program and Tea

A musical program and tea opened the season for the Pittsburgh Literary and Musical Club yesterday in the Business Women's Club, North Side. The program consisted of piano solos by Miss Ruth Simons, songs by Mrs. William L. Stone with her daughter, Miss Betty Stone, accompanying; vocal trios by Mrs. C. B. Duff, Mrs. Will Earhart and Mrs. Arthur B. Siviter, and violin numbers by Miss Viola Voelker, accompanied by Mrs. Herman Ziel.

Delphians Will Meet In New Club Rooms

In the new Delphian club rooms in the William Penn Hotel, the bicentennial chapter of the Delphian Society will have its regular meetings the second and fourth Thursdays of each month. This year the chapter is studying "The Appreciation of Art."

TELL IT TO ELSIE

Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day

By ELSIE ROBINSON

What Makes Husbands Stray From the Fireside?

Why do husbands leave home?

Well-kept, seemingly happy homes; competent, devoted wives, all the gentle circle of family and friends—why will a man suddenly run amuck, chuck it all, go loose on some mad adventure?

Is it because some wicked woman has lured him with her wiles; stolen him against his own will?

Or is there, maybe, another reason? And can you tell it to Margot, who needs to know so badly? Listen:

My Dear Miss Robinson:

I am coming to you because my heart is breaking, and you've given such good advice to others who were in distress.

I am a woman of 37 and I have been married for 14 years. My husband is five years older than I am, and I just can't understand what has happened to us.

HUSBAND CHANGED

We have always been so happy together—or at least I have thought so. In fact our friends have always pointed us out as one of those "ideal couples" you hear about. The future always seemed so secure. I never dreamed that anything could upset us. My husband and I always got along wonderfully together. We never quarreled, and we mostly liked the same sort of things.

But now a terrible change has come over him. He just doesn't seem interested in me any more. He used to enjoy staying home with me evenings. We have a lovely home, and we've always been quiet people who didn't go out much. He always seemed proud of his home and of me.

But now he is hardly ever home an evening. And when he is, he is—well, irritable and doesn't seem to want to talk to me. He hardly ever kisses me any more, or pays any attention to me at all. We have two children, a boy of 12 and a girl of nine. He is good to them, but in a sort of absent-minded way.

He provides well for all of us, but that isn't all I want from marriage. I want him and the enjoyment of our home—if we're going to keep on together.

THREATENED TO LEAVE

I am terribly afraid there is another woman, although he denies it. I have tried to talk to him about all this, but he just gets angry and says he "won't be nagged" or questioned about where he goes. And that hurts me dreadfully, because I have never nagged him.

I even got very angry one night, and told him that I would leave him if he didn't stop his running around and neglecting me. And when I did that he shouted at me, grabbed his hat, dashed out and didn't come back till nearly morning.

What shall I do? I was so happy, and now I am so wretched. It breaks my heart to see my marriage crumbling before my eyes, but what can I do? Shall I demand a showdown? Shall I leave him? Please help me. What ails him? Is it another woman, do you think? MARGOT.

What shall you do?

What would you try to do if you were caught in some sudden catastrophe? You'd try to stay steady—keep cool—wouldn't you? Then do that now! For this is as truly a catastrophe as any earthquake or tidal wave, and even more devastating. Emotions running amuck—no hurricane ever left more wreckage in its wake!

And your husband is probably as dazed by it as you are!

Another woman? Perhaps. But every time "another woman," or "another man" comes into a happy home, you may be sure there's a breach waiting. No third person can ever part two people unless one of those people is ripe for that parting. Homes break up from the inside—not from the outside. If another woman has broken into your home, what made it possible? I can't answer that question. Only you can.

HOLD HIS ATTENTION

Did the hum-drum monotony of your home life, which meant peace and comfort to you, mean growing boredom, growing restlessness, to him?

Were you letting yourself grow old before your time? Was your heart set upon more security; shut against more adventure?

You resent his "neglecting you." But what are you doing to hold his attention and admiration? Just resting on old laurels? Banking on years of faithful service as wife and mother?

Old records wouldn't hold your place for you in the business world, Margot. A business woman has to keep stepping—adding constantly to her value and efficiency.

Why shouldn't a wife be expected to do as much for her job?

Is the answer to your problem somewhere in that maze of questions? Think it over, honestly and bravely. And whether it is, or isn't—keep your head. You're going through a tough time; but you'd have to face tough times in any condition of life. Marriage doesn't bring exemption from ups and downs. Try to realize that. Try to take this as you would any normal hazard.

Prove, now, that you are something bigger and more understanding, something braver, than the stupid, contented little housewife he had thought you to be.

Fay King Says Beginner Who Toils Earnestly Will Win

By FAY KING

The ambitious beginner welcomes every small opportunity that may come. Be it one line to speak, or one note to sing, it is done with serious effort, enthusiasm and high hope.

But alas! When success has been achieved, too often the greater opportunities that now present themselves no longer inspire that same thrill and conscientious effort.

And in this disdain and carelessness, begin the first imperceptible steps of descent.

As bit by bit earnest effort promotes one to a goal, so bit by bit does lack of it undermine one.

It is not so much the thing we do as what we put into it that makes it a successful effort. To find fault with one's opportunity is the first note of the swan song.

Veritzen Wants to Talk to Madge About Missing Letter

For a panic stricken second after Philip Veritzen's request to motor directly to the farm that he might "go back of the returns," I could not find voice to answer him.

The thought of those keen, piercing eyes watching me while, with infinite skill, he questioned me, trying to find flaws in my story, was frightening, and to my horror I saw my hand upon the telephone shaking slightly.

Hugh leaned forward and put his hand firmly over mine, holding it fast over the telephone, as he might have supported a terrorized child.

"Steady! He has no power to harm you. Don't be afraid of him!" His lips formed the words noiselessly, but if they had been a clarion call they could not have roused me more quickly.

"Afraid! Afraid of Philip Veritzen!" I sent the noiseless words back to Hugh with a militant lift of my shoulders and a smile of comprehension of his clever ruse. Then I spoke into the telephone.

"Why, of course, you may see me. We have been expecting you at the farm all the week. Of course, I know now it was because of that mysteriously delayed letter which I wrote to you—"

"Ah, yes! That mysteriously delayed letter," he repeated, with marked emphasis. "That is something which I wish to discuss with you tonight. But we will not bother with it now. I shall see you, then, in three hours."

HUGH JEALOUS

"Will you not be our guest at dinner?" I asked. "My mother-in-law has been wondering all week when the groom's father would put in an appearance.

"Ah! I remember. Your charming mother-in-law is a bit of a fanatic concerning social nuances. I am so sorry to have appeared remiss in her eyes! But I really could not acknowledge an invitation until I had received it, now could I?"

I made the mental comment that the father of the bridegroom usually did not wait for an invitation to the wedding before calling upon the bride and her family; but I knew better than to make such a comment aloud. Instead, I achieved a light, amused laugh of which I was quite proud, considering the state of my nerves.

"I don't know," I told him. "Isn't it a tradition that the great Philip Veritzen can do anything?"

There was a sibilant breath from Hugh's direction, and, startled, I sent a quick, furtive glance at him. His heavy eyebrows were drawn down into a frown as portentious as Dicky's ever had looked, and I saw that his fingers were gripping the arms of his chair.

This was no new revelation of the jealous temper of the man, especially where Philip Veritzen was concerned, but this latest exhibition of it was a salutary lesson for me.

MAKES REQUEST

"You flatter me!" The words were robbed of banality by the subtle atmosphere of deferential admiration with which Mr. Veritzen's voice surrounded them. With the unpleasant consciousness that Hugh's sub-conscious jealousy was making him give strained attention to my end of the telephone colloquy, I dared not risk more banter. Instead, I plunged directly into a warning request.

"I must explain something to you before you come to the farm today," I said. "My mother-in-law is in a most nervous state, and because of that I went to a neighbor's to telephone you, and your call was put on here, also.

"I shall be at home within 10 minutes," I continued. "Will you telephone the farm at the end of that time, saying that you have just received my letter, which appears to have been mysteriously delayed in transit, and that you would like to come out to see us? Then I can ask you properly to dinner."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Hats Off?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—At a dinner or luncheon eaten at a home or hotel, is the hat kept on? If one resides at a hotel, does one wear a hat to the dining room?

2—May a coat be removed without any breach of etiquet?

B.

1—Unless a woman is wearing formal clothes, she wears her hat when she is dining in a hotel. When she is dining in a home, she does not wear her hat. When she is lunching in a hotel, she wears a hat. When she is a guest at a luncheon in a home, she also wears her hat.

If a woman lives in a small residential hotel she need not wear her hat to the dining room, but it is really better form to do so. Just as it is better form, when she is on a train, for her to wear her hat to the dining car.

2—Yes.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When eating meat and the British form of carrying the meat to the mouth with the left hand is used, should the prongs of the fork be held downward? I saw this in a recent picture.

N.

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Squeezing With a Loser

It is very rarely that the opportunity arises for Declarer to force one of his adversaries to squeeze the other. In fact, I had not seen this situation for over a year, when suddenly it came up in a Bridge game recently.

The fates were as usual unkind, in that by making the proper sequences of plays Declarer could gain only an inconsequential over-trick at a contract of three diamonds. Yet he deserves full credit for seeing the possibilities of the hand, and the actual workings of the squeeze represent such a beautiful departure from the ordinary, run-of-the-mill procedure that I believe the hand is worth studying.

West opened the heart King and South, hoping for a spade shift, allowed him to win the trick. West did not continue hearts because he did not know the location of the Knave, and feared that his partner, even if able to ruff a second heart lead, would have to use an otherwise winning trump card to do so. So West led the diamond 9, East played the 7, and South was in the lead with the Knave. South now played the diamond King, which East won with the Ace, disclosing the fact that he held another trump trick. East continued the heart suit, South playing the Knave and West the Queen, and Dummy winning with the Ace.

South now saw his opportunity to establish a squeeze, which would occur on a trick he must lose. He led a heart from Dummy, on which East discarded a spade, and ruffed in his hand. He now played the club King and a small club, finessing the Knave, which held the trick. He next played the club Ace, and discarded a small spade. Then he ruffed Dummy's fourth club, played the diamond Queen, on which he discarded the spade 3 from Dummy, and threw East into the lead by playing out his last trump. But before it was East's turn to play, West had been hopelessly squeezed. He had been reduced by this time to the last high heart and the King-Knave of spades, and he could throw none of these cards without losing a trick thereby.

The 20 points South gained in the honor score by making this beautiful play were not important to him, but he derived a world of satisfaction from a difficult task well done.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Will you please give the correct bidding of the following hand played at Duplicate, team-of-four, the bidding at Table 1 having gone:

East	South	West	North
1 ♣	Pass	?

and at Table 2:

East	South	West	North
1 ♣	1 ♠	?

West held:

♠ A 10 7 3 ♡ Q J 10 9 8 7 3 2 ◇ 9 ♣ —

Answer: It seems to me that the best bid in case 1 is simply two hearts. This is a free bid and shows some strength. The chances are that partner will respond. The second choice would be four hearts. In case 2 I believe the best bid to be one heart as this is about 99 44-100% Forcing. Here again the second choice would be four hearts.

When you're HEALTHY you're HAPPY

Poor health and constipation go hand in hand. Get rid of common constipation by eating a delicious cereal.

Tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to aid regularity. ALL-BRAN is also twice as rich in iron as an equal weight of beef liver.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. How much better than taking pills and drugs—so often harmful.

Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

At all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

—lagging appetite

There is a reasonable way to correct this condition. Pause and reason. You know that body weakness is frequently the result of a weak blood "picture"—lowering of the red-blood-cells and their hemoglobin—that are so very necessary to strength and vitality.

Then why not try S.S.S.—the proven tonic for decades? Its value has been proved by extensive scientific research and by millions of happy users.

Take S.S.S. and note the way your strength and appetite are restored. Two convenient sizes at all drug stores—the larger size is more economical. Don't permit any one to "switch" you in your determination to restore your red-blood-cells and their hemoglobin content for regaining strength. © The S.S.S. Co.

3 PENNSY MEN GET 50-YEAR AWARDS

Three veteran Pennsylvania Railroad enginemen were presented 50-year gold service buttons yesterday by Supt. G. M. Sixsmith, of the Conemaugh Division, at the Pennsylvania Station.

They were D. C. McAbee, S. B. Taylor and Benjamin Sheriff, all running on the same division, and living as neighbors in Blairsville.

Mr. Sixsmith, in decorating the three veterans, said:

Mr. McAbee

"I know of no Pennsylvania Railroad men to whom I would rather present this badge of honor than you three. I have known you ever since I began work on the railroad and you always have been devoted to your railroad duties, your families, and to the best interests of the community in which you live. Our company is proud to have in its employ such men as you."

Mr. Taylor

Speaking for the veterans, Mr. Taylor said they were happy to have had the privilege of rounding out 50 years of work on the Conemaugh Division.

Mr. McAbee began work for the railroad in October, 1883, and became a locomotive fireman a few months later. He has driven an engine on the Conemaugh Division 43 years.

Mr. Sheriff

Mr. Taylor began as a fireman in October, 1883, and was promoted to engineman in June, 1888. He served as road foreman of engines from 1900 to 1902.

Mr. Sheriff has served as engineman and as assistant road foreman of engines 46 years.

CRAZED, KILLS FATHER, SELF

BEDFORD, Pa., Oct. 10.—Raymond Lesh, 25, residing on the Valley road, near here, killed his father, Charles Lesh, late yesterday by firing a slug or "pumpkin ball" from a shotgun into his back, then ended his own life with the same gun, according to reports to police here.

The younger Lesh, for some time a mental patient in the state hospital at Harrisburg, was allowed to return home recently.

NRA Head, Actress On Air

Of special interest to Western Pennsylvanians is Gen. Hugh S. Johnson's broadcast over NBC-WCAE tonight at 8:30.

The address, expected to deal with coal and steel strikes in the Pittsburgh area, is deemed of such importance that NBC has cleared the coast-to-coast network, canceling Wayne King's orchestra program.

Testimonial

Marie Dressler, a favorite in the affections of stage and screen fans, is heard over the air tonight at 9:30 during the broadcast of a testimonial dinner given in her honor by leaders of the social world and motion picture realm.

Among the speakers to be heard with Miss Dressler over an NBC-KDKA network are Mrs. Oliver Harriman, John Golden, Daniel Frohman, Fanny Hurst and Will H. Hays.

Super Salesman

"Elmer Everett Yess," the salesman who won't take no for an answer, brings a new type of characterization to the CBS-WJAS microphone tonight at 8, when he appears as a super-salesman of hilariously bizarre methods.

"You're Driving Me Crazy" is the theme song not of Elmer, but of some of his customers during the sketch.

Easy Aces returned to the air this afternoon at 1:30, over a CBS-WJAS network. They will be heard every Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoon at the same hour.

Jack LaRue, screen actor who plays roles ranging from preachers to gangsters, is interviewed during the California Melodies program, heard over CBS-WJAS at 9.

Manhunter

"The Diamond Sepulchre," tonight's Manhunter drama heard over KDKA at 8, deals with a dead man's will which provides $50,000 for investigation into the manner in which he met death.

One of the country's most famous "smoke-eaters," Ross B. Davis, chief of the Philadelphia Fire Department, speaks over NBC-WCAE on fire prevention at 5:30.

Norman McLeod, chairman of the Pitt, Tech and Navy alumni committee, will speak on Joe Sartori's WWSW sports program tonight at 6.

Local Highlights On WJAS Tonight

Add Brickell, who does a lot of trick pianoisms, is billed in a new spot—6:15.

Lewis Munnell, baritone, will forget his announcing duties at 7:30 for a quarter-hour program of songs.

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

It is with much gratification that I note that you haven't forgotten me. This morning's mail with it's flood of information shows that many of you are doing some good work for the cause. If you didn't report how would I get any information to pass on to the other globe-trotters. Am I grateful? What do you think?

Speaking about a flood of information here's Mrs. Agnes Newell Reed, of Elizabeth, with information of the Tampico hurricane and flood.

Her son, Capt. Sam R. Reed, has been down there for 18 years. He is an oil company executive. In the many descriptive letters he has written home we find many human interest items. He describes graphically the howling of the winds and the straining of the walls of his house. He and his wife, fearing that the house would not stand the blow, left it at 3 in the morning for the protection of a steel building used as an oil house.

He tells of being on a barge after the storm. While watching debris of all kinds come floating by, he spotted an infant lying face downward on a detached kitchen door come drifting past. He and others rescued the child, who seemed no worse for his experience.

Squire Joseph Hillman, of Allison Park, is giving automobilists a sporting chance. He is asking that they do not speed through Allison Park. The offender will get the limit and from the Squire's tone of voice over the phone he seems to mean what he says.

A promise of returning spring in Autumn. Mrs. C. I. Heyl, Avalon, sends me violets plucked by her son last Sunday.

And believe it or not this morning's mail brings a snowball that was blooming on the lawn of Thorne Sylves, Wilmerding road, Turtle Creek.

Chilly Doyle's favorite story of the World Series is about the President. After the game Mr. Roosevelt took time out to admonish the sports scribes, "What you fellows need is practice. All those foul balls knocked up to the press box and not one caught."

Cleveland Produces Many Successful Radio Acts

By AIRCASTER

Curiosity to see the town reputed to be immune from Hill Billies, and the town that deserves its prominent place in radio firmament because it breeds successful microphoners, took me to Cleveland over the week-end.

The peak of success has been attained in Cleveland by such famous folk as Gene and Glenn, John Royal and many another, including the lads named Lum and Abner, heard over WCAE every night.

These two rangy chaps who utilize, whether you believe it or not, a bucolic brand of banter that is actually on the level with them, have acquired a unique sort of distinction here.

Lum and Abner

Instead of a hill billie's city, Cleveland turned out to warrant prestige from the fact that it has fewer studio audiences than any other radio center. This gives the distinction to Lum and Abner, who happen to be the only performers in town entitled to a crowd of spectators.

And only on Friday nights, which differs from their other nights on the air, do they permit visitors.

That is because the sociable on Friday evenings is a sort of rural variety show in which the two newest of the air's celebrities defer to guest talent and serve only as twin master of ceremony.

During the week, as you've probably discovered for yourself, they concentrate on scripts which give us amusing accounts of the adventures that can actually befall habitants of remote Americana.

I am told by both lads that their experiences, as enacted before the mike, really echo their careers as storekeepers and salesmen back in the thickets of Arkansas and Oklahoma, where such characters as grandpappy Spears and Snake Hogan really lived.

Couple of Kids

It is a strange slant on radio entertainment that such a picture, which should give city dwellers a kick and an opportunity to see the other half, actually diverts the country folk to still greater degree.

I had pictured Lum and Abner, who are really Chester Lauck and Norris Goff, incorrectly, of course, I had figured them middle aged, which is a compliment, because their intent is to portray middle age. As a matter of fact, they're just a couple of kids, the long, lean and swarthy Lum as bewildered as the short, chunky and amazed-looking Abner, by their rise to fame which followed their retirement to Arkansas, when they completed college work.

But they had developed a flair for character acting as minstrel end-men, and an adroit radio scout dragged them out of obscruity to Chicago, and later to Cleveland, where on the day they were about to give up as failures, they were catapulted to prosperity and fame. It was one of those miracles.

Hoosegow

I discovered, that the cells in Cleveland's twelfth precinct police station are unkempt. I spent part of the night in one of them with a singer named Morton Downey.

It seems that some unkind mutual acquaintance had framed a fake arrest and that Downey, who is warbling in Cleveland, and myself were the butts of a gag. The police blotter still shows that we were "held for detectives," (or was it "defectives.)

IF YOU OWN A
NASH

Prepare for winter driving. Protect your car against freezing and rust with the proper anti-freeze.

Boil-away anti-freezes evaporate. They require refills, they leave your car at the mercy of winter. Rigid tests prove many "permanent" anti-freezes break down and cause rust and clogging.

This autumn, you can get genuine Eveready Prestone at the new low price of $2.95 a gallon. One filling stays on the job all winter—25,000 miles or more of safe, rust-free running. Easily your most economical buy.

One and a half gallons of Eveready Prestone, costing $4.45, protects a Nash 1070, 1130 or 1170 to zero temperature all winter long. For other models and makes, see your dealer's chart. Approved by all car manufacturers. Fully guaranteed by National Carbon Co., Inc., New York, N. Y.

*Based on an average of 20 years, the first freezing weather hits Pittsburgh by Oct. 29. Put in Eveready Prestone now—and be safe.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Things I Never Knew 'Til Now.

(No fair skipping).

That the radio stars and others in the limelight who boast of their fan mail shouldn't. Pres. Roosevelt receives about 8,000 letters daily.

That a woman in San Salvador recently passed on at the age of 102, outliving all her fifteen children.

That it is supposed to be unlucky to marry in green.

That there are 19,700 feet of silk thread in the average pair of women's hosiery. (Who figures such things out, anyhow?)

That in Bucharest doctors are puzzled because a boy who dreamed he was blind was found okay, but he can't see anything.

That in Denver now one of the judges leaves it to the warden of the prison to decide the sentence of a convicted man.

That the Mayor of Santa Cruz drinks ocean water every day as a tonic. He is actually 70 years of age, but looks 45.

That Lester Russell, of Auburn, Cal., is a candidate for center on the College of Pacific team. He took the football course by mail, being unable to attend school. Coach Stagg tutored him once weekly.

That Edward L. Sellon, of San Francisco, can remove an electric light bulb from the socket and by petting it make it glow.

That a new trick to shoo away house-to-house canvassers is being employed in the West, where some house owners feature signs reading: "This bell won't ring unless you insert a dime."

That a raw onion, cut in quarters and placed near your bed at night will cure a slight cold and lessen a severe one.

That there are more than 400 uses to be found for bamboo. (Everything from raincoats to medicine.)

That in London there is a firm whose sole manufacture is that of bulet-proof waistcoats, though crime there is less than anywhere.

That Gen. Custer was disobeying orders when he made his famous Last Stand. Had he survived he would have been court-martialed.

That delicious candy is made out of cactus.

That because "suckers" have been wised up in recent years the circus men no longer yell: "Hey, Rube!" when they see a hick approaching — so confederates can get ready. (They now yell: "Clem!")

That Alamogordo, Mex., a great lumber camp, has no trees.

That a Walter Winchell was elected in Wallingford, Conn., which is the home burg of Morton Downey.

That according to one of the better known life insurance companies — women live approximately six years longer than men.

That a .45 caliber bullet travels 660 miles per hr.

That in most movie houses in New York the audiences hiss all three of the candidates for mayor when the newsreels show them.

That G Flat and F Sharp are the same notes on a piano—but are two different ones on a fiddle. (Why go to school?)

That in the Mexican army, which has less than 40,000 privates—there are 367 generals. (More than there are in all armies!)

That of the 17 million men and women of foreign birth in this country eight million are un-naturalized and five million of the latter hold jobs. (Which certainly explains everything about conditions.)

That another reason why your taxes have to be tilted so much is that Uncle Sam spends $1,350,000 for pencils and paper.

That Kentucky isn't really "South," according to Kentuckians, who remind you that Kentucky didn't take sides in the Civil tiff.

That H. Hoover has gained 11 pounds since leaving his job.

That the airport at Newark, N. J., is the largest and busiest in the world, exceeding that of Le Bourget (Paris), Croydon (London) and Templehof (Berlin) combined.

That a deer changes color with each change of the season.

That the ladies will appreciate this one—cucumber juce and the rind is said to be an excellent skin bleach.

That some narrow-minded friends of George Cohan once stopped speaking to him because they thought his name was Costigan and that he changed it because he wasn't proud if it!

That there is a brokerage firm named Good & Low.

That if you ask a drug store clerk to remove a cinder from your eye he must not charge a fee.

That secret service agents did not guard the President until McKinley was assassinated in 1901.

And that "It" became popular in Hollywood because it is so easy to spell.

Mae, Marlene May Shake, Make Up

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 10.—If all other negotiations fail, there's a deep, dark plot to bring Marlene Dietrich and Mae West together at the local premiere of "I'm No Angel," next Thursday night.

Miss West.

Unknown to them until they read it here, both the stars are being invited to be in Al Kaufman's party at the Chinese Theater, and to go to a dance spot later. Meeting socially in this way, the famous pair are expected to shake hands and laugh off the strained relations that have existed since New York news dispatches quoted—Marlene says misquoted—the German star as saying that she had never heard of Mae West. You may be sure the studio is not blind to the publicity value of such a dramatic meeting, but honest attempts have been made to effect previous meeting.

Lowdown is that neither star wants to make the first move.

When Lupe and Gary, a little fussed at first, twisted around and turned their backs to each other, Groucho Marx leaned over from the row behind and tapped the Mexican star on the shoulder.

"Pardon me, he said, but have you met Mr. Cooper?"

It was an overnight change of mind which led Johnny Weissmuller to jump the gun on Bobbe Arnst, and apply for the final divorce decree himself. Johnny told me the preceding afternoon that he was going to let Bobbe apply for the decree, so she could get the papers at her birthday party Wednesday. Three guesses as to who talked him out of it.

Miss Arnst

Did you know that Gary Cooper has a brother? The star left Hollywood last night for a two weeks' bear-hunting and fishing trip on his Montana ranch. He'll vacation with his brother, Arthur, who's connected with the Federal Reserve Bank at Helena, Mont.

Will Rogers, boldest of funpokers, attended Jack Warner's luncheon to the Naval Affairs Committee and twitted the visiting dignitaries.

"You fellows," he said, just let a rumor get out that you were going to change the naval base, so everybody from San Diego to Seattle started to get up entertainments for you."

Ben Lyon would organize all airpilots in the film colony into a club and have flying parties . . . Latest celeb to take up aviation is Dorothy Lee. She has 7½ hours in the air, and aims to round out the required 50 and get her pilot's license . . . Mary Pickford didn't forget her invitation to Wini Shaw, the Irish-Hawaiian dancer, to whom she introduced herself in the Beverly Hills Brown Derby. Wini, now a Fox actress, dined at Pickfair as soon as Mary returned from San Francisco.

Plays and Players :: By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Harry Brown, manager of the Nixon, is looking forward to the possibility of having the premiere of the new Ziegfeld "Follies," which is to be produced with the approval of Billie Burke, widow of the late Flo Ziegfeld. An early November date has been set for the opening, and other cities besides Pittsburgh being considered are Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore and Boston. Mr. Ziegfeld, himself, always considered Pittsburgh his "lucky town," and frequently opened his productions here, including the last "Follies" and "Hot Cha." Jack Pearl, now nationally known as the "Baron" of the air waves, was the star of the "Follies," and Bert Lahr, another whose reputation has become country-wide through the radio, was the central figure of "Hot Cha." Bobby Connolly, who staged the big dancing and production numbers of Ziegfeld shows in the past, is general supervisor of the new "Follies," which will have a cast including Fannie Brice, Willie and Eugene Howard, Everett Marshall, Jane Frohman, Patricia Bowman, Oliver Wakefield, Vivian Janis, Betzi Beaton, Euinice Quidens, the Rocks Twins, Jack Pepper and Tommy White. The late Joseph Urban, noted scenic artist, always did the gorgeous and tasty settings for Ziegfeld productions. Albert R. Johnson, who designed the settings of "As Thousands Cheer" and "Let 'Em Eat Cake," musical productions of the current season, also was given the scenic commission for the coming "Follies," the book of which is in the hands of Lee Shubert. Its music and lyrics are the work of Arthur Swanstrom, Louis Alter and E. Y. Harburg. There will be sketches by H. I. Phillips, Fred Allen and Norman Anthony.

Ernest Truex, stage and screen comic, is directing "The Curtain Rises," stage play that will have Jean Arthur, once of the movies, in the leading role . . . A. H. Woods, veteran producer who looked on last season, expects to be active this fall, and has plans to produce a drama by Daniel Rubin, "Virtue on Horseback" . . . According to the New York Times, "Ah, Wilderness!" was shortened by some thirty minutes, and its original four acts were rearranged into three, somewhere between its Pittsburgh premiere and the New York opening . . . New York is looking to see a new comedy in which will be Hal Skelly, who also has hopes of appearing in a dramatization of the novel, "Queer People" . . . With Peggy Wood, Helen Ford, George Meader and Joseph Macauley heading the cast, the Johan Strauss operetta, "Fledermaus," will open in New York Saturday night, an ensemble of 12 singers to be used in place of the customary chorus . . . Already included with Helen Hayes and Philip Merivale in the forthcoming Theater Guild production of "Mary of Scotland" are Ernest Cossart and Fritz Leiber, the Shakespearean vet . . . Otto Kruger, stage actor, will be featured with Ann Harding and Clive Brook in a film, "Gallant Lady" . . . The West, it seems, has got Lee Tracy, who has bought a ranch in California, ranch there meaning anything from a chicken run to a township.

Sherman Directing Winchell Tale

Lowell Sherman is directing "Broadway Thru a Keyhole," a vivid story taken from Walter Winchell's own experience as a newspaper columnist, an expose of details and incidents along the Gay White Way that have never before appeared in print. Gene Towne and Graham Baker made the screen adaptation from Winchell's own story, with Jack Haskell acting as dance director.

Musical

Dick Powell and Ruby Keeler are featured again in a musical picture, "Footlight Parade," film that will head the Stanley bill Friday.

Variety Bill Headed By French Dancer

Mlle. Verne, French music hall dancer, is featured in "Ideas of 1933," current bill in the Variety. Mlle. Verne is seen in a dance called "The Toast of Paris" and again in "Here She Is." According to the program, Mlle. Verne came from the "Follies Bergere," Paris. "Sliding" Billy Watson, old-time burlesque comedian, whose engagement is extended, again leads in the comedy bits and sketches. He is supported by Eddie Kaplin, George Leon and Fred Binder. Helen Windsor, acrobatic dancer, also is featured.

'Dinner At Eight' Second Week

"Dinner at Eight," photoplay version of the play of the same title by George S. Kaufman and Edna Ferber that was one of the successes of the New York stage last season, began its second week in the Nixon yesterday. Good acting in a story of many angles makes this one of the pictures in which the screen is seen to rival the stage seriously in its own field.

It has a cast of many stars, all shining in suitable roles. They include Marie Dressler, Wallace Beery, John and Lionel Barrymore, Jean Harlow, Billie Burke, Spencer Tracy and Edmund Lowe.

Theater Men Plan Fete

The Variety Club, local organization of theater men, is completing arrangements for its annual "Big Top" banquet, to be held Sunday night, October 22, in the William Penn Hotel. The setting for these affairs always resembles a circus, with tent, sawdust, ring, barkers and other atmosphere of arenic entertainment. Big "name" talent is always on hand to amuse the guests, who come from long distances to attend the event. Among them last year was Gov. W. C. Conely of West Virginia.

Among the events will be the installation of the new officers, headed by Harry Goldstein, local manager of Paramount, president-elect. Other officers are: Vice presidents, Harry Kalmine, of Warner Brothers and M. J. Cullen, manager of Loew's Penn; secretary, James C. Balmer, Harris Amusement Company; treasurer, Dr. L. G. Beinhauer.

The directors-elect are Ben Kalmenson, Frank Smith, Jules Lapidus, Brian McDonald, Art Levy, William Benswanger, J. Morin and Harold W. Cohen.

Mr. Goldstein will succeed John Maloney, manager of the M-G-M exchange here.

Dramatic

In Which the Customers Do the Work.

"THE NAME of the chap was Frank Williams," writes George F. Held, "and he slaved for a living as a court reporter on a mid-Western rag.

"Frank didn't get into many messes, but when he did, they were pips. One night, for example, Frank had words with a person whom we might as well tag Jimmy John. Jimmy John had taken a poke at Frank's nose. And that wasn't half so important as the fact that this same Jimmy John was the paper's most important advertiser.

"It wouldn't have been so bad if nobody had seen the poke—but it so happened that Frank's girl was along at the time, and Jimmy John had almost knocked our hero right into her lap. That was too much, and Frank pondered long and heavily about a suitable revenge. Finally the idea struck him.

"Knowing that Jimmy John was a habitual speeder, the reporter approached a motorcycle cop whom he knew well and broached an earnest request. Would he nail Mr. John for speeding just once more the following day? It would mean so very much to the reporter. The cop agreed.

"That much attended to satisfactorily, Frank visited the judge who would attend to such cases the following day. The judge, Frank pointed out, had promised him a favor whenever needed. Did the judge remember? He certainly did.

"'Well,' said the reporter, 'I'm pretty certain that a bird named Jimmy John will have a speed ticket in this court tomorrow. He's a third offender. I'd appreciate your giving him the business.'

"On his way home that evening Frank made it a point to look up his motorcycle friend. When he left him, a very broad grin encircled the angelic face of our hero.

"The next morning, still jubilant over the success of his scheme, Frank Williams strolled into his office. On his desk rested a note signed by the publisher.

"'Jimmy John, our best advertiser,' it read, 'was nailed yesterday for speeding again. You know Judge ——— very well. If you value your job, see him at once and get him to fix the attached ticket!'" . . .

"DEAR Mr. Hellinger," writes Ethel Gundersdorf, of Baltimore. "You may be able to use the following incident in your column. It sounds like a good racket to me.

"One morning, some years back, a stranger entered a clothing store and asked for the proprietor. Meeting him, the visitor said that he had come to pay $2 that he owed the store.

The proprietor asked for the name and then looked through his books. But he could find no record of such a charge.

He told the stranger the fact, but the latter man said that he did owe the $2.

"'I'm telling you that I owe the money,' he insisted, 'and that I must pay it. My conscience isn't clear, and it won't be until that debt is paid.'

"Finally, because the man was so insistent, the storekeeper pocketed the $2. It was one of the strangest cases in his experience and, feeling affable, he asked the stranger if he wouldn't care to look around the store. Perhaps there was something else in the clothing line he might need at the moment.

"'Well,' the man murmured, 'I will need a suit and a heavy overcoat for the winter. But the trouble is that the $2 I gave you is practically the last cash I have with me. So I wouldn't be able to pay you now.'

"The proprietor grinned.

"'That's perfectly all right,' he reassured him. 'Any man who who is honest enough to do what you have done, is entitled to credit anywhere. You can charge whatever you buy.'

"The stranger thanked him. He looked around, bought about $60 worth of clothing and left, taking his purchases with him. That's almost four years ago—and the proprietor hasn't seen him since!" . . .

"IT'S probably a rewrite on an old gag, Mark," writes Fred Kosalka, "but you never minded anything like that, did you? So here goes:

"Three men, all of them married to women on the coast but all of them with business interests in New York, were returning to the coast by train after lengthy stays in the East. For some reason or other, the discussion turned to the manners in which they notified their respective wives of their intended arrivals.

"'I make it very simple,' said the first businessman. 'I just send my wife a telegram and let it go at that.'

"'I put a little more romance into my notification,' said the second. 'I always have my florist wire her a box of beautiful roses. Then she knows I'm on my way home.'

"They then turned to the third man, and awaited his statement. He shrugged his shoulders.

"'Well, boys,' he chirped, 'as you know, my situation is a little different from yours. I'm married to a famous lady of the screen, and you've probably heard just as much gossip about her as I have.

"'So I don't bother sending her any announcements about my arrival. After the train pulls in, the first thing I do is to race to a sporting store and buy myself a big bat. Then I race up to my house, knock three times very loudly on the front door—and then scoot quickly around to the back door.'

"He hesitated. A gleam of justifiable pride crept into his eyes.

LEAGUE DENIED CAMPUS RIGHT

Application for a charter for a campus branch of the League of Social Justice has been refused the Student Relations Committee of the University of Pittsburgh, it was announced yesterday. The committee controls campus organizations at the university. Of the refusal Dr. B. J. Hovde, history professor, and chairman of the city branch of the league, said:

"This action deprives the student branch of any official status at the university, but leaves the students free, if they wish, to join the city branch. I do not believe that anyone would object to the students joining the league as individuals, although the denial of a charter will prevent them from holding regular meetings on the campus."

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS MAY BE OVERCOME

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or head and ear noises or are growing hard of hearing go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¾ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has catarrhal deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

Gray Hair
Best Remedy is Made At Home
You can now make at home a better gray hair remedy by following this simple recipe: To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it yourself at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained.
Barbo imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair, making it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

POLITICS

Democrats May Drop Evans for Magee

By MARK SHIELDS

(This column was written by Mr. Shields before Mr. Evans this afternoon announced his withdrawal as a Democratic councilmanic nominee.)

Any place made for William A. Magee as a candidate for City Council on the Democratic ticket will involve the retirement of one of the five men nominated by the Democrats at the primary election last month. They were John M. Huston, Walter Demmler, Thomas J. Gallagher, John J. Kane and George E. Evans.

Mr. Shields

Naturally, if there is chance for Democratic victory, which the leaders of the party profess, there is a reluctance of any of the quintet to forego a participation on the fruits of success. Democratic leaders will not discuss which of the five they would prefer to have step aside if success attends the proposal to put Mr. Magee on the ticket, but an examination of the politics of the situation may be helpful toward a process of elimination.

Certainly there could be no jettisoning of Gallagher and Kane. Both have excellent legislative records, and it is around their conduct at Harrisburg, joined to the record of President Roosevelt at Washington, that the appeal of the party locally will be built.

Mr. Huston, heretofore a Republican, as was Gallagher, left the party during the primary to support William N. McNair. He made a highly successful debut as a candidate, and is looked to as an attraction for independent Republicans. Some Democrats believe he will attract the following which stood with Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell in the Republican primary, even though the inner circle of the Mackrell forces resented his defection from their camp, after he had first deserted the Citizens League and the candidacy of Councilman P. J. McArdle.

Mr. Demmler is a North Sider, and the Democrats feel it is imperative that they have a Council candidate from that section, as President of Council Harry A. Little, on the Republican ticket, is the only other North Sider in the Council race. If Demmler should be dropped the Republicans would be certain to capitalize the residence of Little to good advantage.

That leaves only Evans as a sacrifice. He is a builder and real estate man who already has inaugurated the Democratic campaign with a speech criticising city financing under the Republicans. That presents something of a problem, as it would be unusual to draw out a man who had been active.

But the guess is that if Mr. Magee does become a Democratic candidate for Council he will do so through the retirement of Mr. Evans.

Republican leaders are insistent they have no intention of cutting Mr. Magee, though Democrats assert that overtures have been made to some of their candidates, offering them votes to be withheld from Magee. One Democratic leader said he thought the purpose back of these overtures was not the actual election of any Democratic Council candidate, but an effort to induce the five resident in various sections of the city to reduce their attack on the Republicans in the vain hope that the dominate party was sincere in its offer.

As a rejoinder to the Democrats, organization Republican leaders ask why the Democrats, if they are so enthusiastic for him as a service to the public, did not help him to a nomination in September when he was a candidate in the Democratic as well as Republican primary. At that time they resented the invasion of their primary by Republicans.

Democrats Seek Legislative Seat

What the Democrats wish is a way for friends of Mr. Magee to vote for him and for Mr. McNair with only a single cross mark. Mr. Magee would thus be saved the expense and trouble of a campaign and Mr. McNair would gain some votes thereby. There is practically no doubt of Mr. Magee's election, whether he is on one ticket or one hundred.

Democrats will make an effort to win the Legislative seat of the Third District November 7, when a special ballot will be held to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Charles T. Dwyer, who was a Republican organization follower. The two party committees will meet this week to make nominations.

Thomas R. Conley, who was the Democratic candidate last November against Mr. Dwyer, would like another chance, but his desire is not finding unanimous response in his party.

James A. Sipe, a labor leader of the Fifteenth Ward; Edward Weaver, constable, and Herman Eberhardt, who managed the campaign of Mrs. Lois McBride in the Fourth Ward for Juvenile Court in the recent primary, seek the Republican nomination.

In the election last year this district, which comprises the Fourth and Fifteenth wards, strongholds of Senator James J. Coyne, gave Dwyer 7,797 votes on the Republican ticket, 197 as a Jobless candidate, and 62 on the Roosevelt ticket, a total of 8,056. Conley received 5,470, a majority for Dwyer of 2,586.

THE GIRL WHO WON

By May Christie

CHAPTER I.

Nollie Day—at 6 o'clock on a sultry afternoon of May—swung up the three stone steps that led to her aunt and uncle's front door, let herself into the dark and stuffy hall of the stifling little house that was exactly like a thousand other little red brick houses in the town, and went straight up to the small hot room at the rear she shared with her cousin, Lil, and sank on the shabby, lumpy old bed in sheer exhaustion.

Heavens! It was hot. The soft brown hair clung to Nollie's forehead in little points of interrogation.

She had been on her feet all day both in and out of uncle's poky, choky little paint-and-odd-job shop, for now that spring had come in a belated blaze of heat, there were many unexpected orders.

In her status of jill-of-all-trades, Nollie had been here, there and everywhere at once, taking commands, complaints, pernicketty instructions, answering the phone, advising and placating customers, and running dozens of errands.

She had been to the bank three times, as well, about uncle's overdraft and that urgent loan he wanted of $500.

Poor uncle was more than a bit of a fool—and slow. For the umpteenth time in the five years she had worked for him, it struck Nollie that her services were worth more than his financial rating of her.

Twelve dollars a week—and she was 19 years of age—oh! going on 20 soon—and after she'd paid the $9 a week that Aunt Sarah asked for her board and lodging (which meant half Lil's bed) there wasn't much left for Nollie.

Adopted Child

Lil would be drifting in any minute now—18-year-old, boy-crazy, discontented Lil of the prima donna airs and disagreeable manners.

Aunt Sarah worshipped Lil, though they incessantly bickered, did those two. What a gulf divided the younger generation from the older!

There were Sam and Joe, too—squabbling boys who occupied the little middle room between their parents' and the girls'—tonight Nollie felt she hated every one of those relatives-of-adoption.

Her parents having died in an automobile accident 10 years ago, she—and the small insurance they had left—had been taken over by 'aunt' and 'uncle' Green, and here she'd dwelt for a decade as an adopted child, though in the last year or two, every one of them, with the exception perhaps of Uncle Cy—('sigh' was right—he sighed all day—she was sorry for the henpecked, lugubrious little fellow)—had become increasingly alien to her.

If she could only leave it all and get out into a wider world of beauty and opportunity!

There WAS a lovely world outside of Yapahunk, where youth and beauty had a chance to flower . . . where brains found their Big Chance . . .

But if she ran away tonight—and God knows that she wanted to—where would she even find her carefare . . .?

Lil Careless

She'd loaned Lil $15 in the last four months, and with Lil out of a job (by choice) there was small chance of its repayment. As she lay on the lumpy

CHIEF MECHANIC TO TESTIFY AT VOTE QUIZ

Summoned to Explain Machines; Witness Blames 'Links'

Albert Lauer, chief mechanic of the Department of Elections, will be called by the Harris Investigating Committee as a witness tomorrow, to answer the statement of B. B. Sklar, vote machine expert, that the lack of a workable "indorsed candidate" link will make it practically impossible to use the machines at the election next month.

Sklar was the most important of the 50 witnesses heard yesterday afternoon and last night. He said that he believed the machines to be good and that they would function correctly if properly conditioned and set up. Sklar is a former employe of the Poole Engineering and Machine Company and worked as a mechanic for the county on election day.

Among the statements made by Sklar were the following:

The county at present does not have a workable indorsed candidate link and that the voting machines cannot be used successfully until a better link is obtained.

Proper tests were not given the print lock which the county had installed two months ago at a cost of approximately $25,000, and the locks do not prevent prints being taken during the day while the machine is in operation.

That voters with certain knowledge of the machine, could have voted as many times as they desired for any one candidate at the last election.

THE 'MISSING LINK'

Election bureau officials say they have an indorsed candidate's link which can be used at the November election and Lauer will be called tomorrow afternoon to explain this link and its workings.

The print lock, which Sklar described, was installed to lock the entire machine after one print has

TRADE BOARD, MONTEVERDE PROTEST

Proposition Declar Impractical and Undesirable

The $23,000,000 joint public works program today had been declared "practicable and feasible" as the list of organizations opposing the purchase of the Wabash Bridge and tunnel for another outlet to the South Hills, one of the features of the program, was increased by two.

Latest to voice sentiment against the plan is the Brookline Board of Trade, which sponsored a public meeting last night to protest the proposed collection of a 5-cent toll on the Liberty Tube.

Previously during the day L. Monteverde, chairman of the City Planning Commission, in a letter to City Council, said the proposition was considered undesirable and suggested four alternate plans, three of which are already in the proposed public works program.

The stamp of approval to the plan was given late yesterday by city and county officials after a conference with E. N. Hunting, engineer of the state advisory board of the Federal Public Works Administration.

The committee denied that the purchase would increase the debt or taxes of the city or county and added that if government aid was obtained it "would result in the employment of many thousands of men within the next few months."

Max U. Applebaum, of the Allied Board of Trade, one of the speakers at the Brookline meeting, declared the Wabash tube proposition was impractical. He questioned the expected increase in valuation of property from Wood street to the Point.

Resolutions opposing the proposed tolls and the purchase of the Wabash tube were adopted. Approval to the toll protest was given by C. V. Roeper, president of the Beechview Civic League, and J. H. Criswell, of the Overbrook Board of Trade, who said they would report their action at their next meetings.

Monteverde, in his letter to the commission, said he believes the Wabash project would interfere with traffic in the downtown triangle and needlessly overburden the taxpayers of Pittsburgh, who would have to pay at least 30 per cent of the cost.

To afford relief for the South Hills motorist, Monteverde suggests four other improvements, three of which are already included in the county's Federal aid program.

These are improvement of the Sawmill Run Boulevard from Banksville road to South Main street, grade separation at the south end of the Liberty tubes, improvement of Banksville road, and an underpass in West Carson street at the south end of the Point Bridge.

Monteverde asks Council to impress upon county authorities the importance of informing the City Planning Commission whether other projects in the county's Federal program are in harmony with the city's official plans. He writes:

"It is possible that the elimination of the Wabash project might permit some of the other projects to be planned and constructed more adequately."

TOWBOAT WIFE WINS DIVORCE

Louis J. Redenbaugh, who was a Braddock policemen, was divorced yesterday by Lillian M. Redenbaugh, whose address was given as the towboat Pennsylvania. She was granted a decree by Judge W. H. McNaugher, after telling him:

"One morning after my husband came home from policing, he knocked me over a stove and as a result I burned the calves of my legs."

Mrs. Redenbaugh, who said her husband was seldom sober, charged cruel and barbarous treatment.

'Andy' Mellon Listed On Red Party Petition

Bogus Signatures Bring Rejection Of Papers

"Andy" Mellon, millionaire; Elizabeth Denny, housekeeper, and Samuel J. Reno, painter, were among the thousands of names listed in nomination petitions offered by the Communist party today. A full slate of city and county candidates was set up. Petitions covering the county offices were rejected and those of the city taken under advisement.

The petitions bore more than the required 3,500 names, but, it was claimed, the circulators of the petitions failed to attach their names to each of the petitions, and also that the signatures were not authenticated.

Mr. Mellon, the millionaire, according to the petition, resides at 5607 Fifth avenue. That is the home of Ogden M. Edwards, Jr. The city directory lists A. W. Mellon as residing in Woodland road, while R. B. Mellon resides at 6500 Fifth avenue.

Mrs. Denny, the housekeeper, is listed at 811 Ridge avenue, which happens to be the residence of Harmar D. Denny, Jr., director of public safety.

Samuel J. Reno, Republican chairman of the Nineteenth Ward, resides at 151 Oneida street, Mt. Washington, the address given on the petition for Samuel J. Reno, the painter.

Patentees of the Communist party included Max Jenkins, 2050 Center avenue; Ben Geddys, 9 Brady street; Ben Careathers, 2217 Center avenue; A. J. Marsh, 1007 Woods Run avenue, and G. E. Raines, 2221 Humber way.

Candidates listed are: Mayor, James Egan, plasterer, 1043 Valonia street; Council, Rebecca Asberry, 5231 Blair street; Frank Hill, 41 Overhill street; John Meldon, 10 Overhill street, and Ben Careathers and Max Jenkins.

Johnson Knows Who's Boss When He Says to Buy

By ARTHUR (Bugs) BAER

Gen. Johnson's appeal to the housewives shows who is running the works.

The ladies spend 85 per cent of the family income. Which leaves a gorgeous 15 for the old man's shaves, beer and stud poker.

Sixty-five per cent of the wage earners are back at work. In a month the nation will be normal and the old man will be demanding 20 per cent.

History of America proves that things are always great when the wife handles the cash and hammers the budget. If you think a man knows anything about shopping just watch him buying a hat. He is liable to come home again wearing a paper bag.

We imagine Gen. Johnson is married same as we are. If he isn't he should get married and he will discover he is right.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Oct. 10.
To the Editor Sun-Telegraph:

The British are over here now talking to us about debts. That's one thing you got to say for them, they were the first to pay us anything, and even if they are not going to pay us any more, they at least come over and talk it over with us. And if ever a different settlement is made they certainly deserve the first break.

Will Rogers

We dislike their tea, we kid their poor English dialect, and we think they are snobbish, but, by golly, we know that their honor all over the world is recognized.

Yours, WILL.

EYESIGHT BOON DESCRIBED

Dr. William A. Feinbloom, of New York, whose invention of the telescopic lens last year enabled persons of sub-normal vision to read printed matter, last night before the Pennsylvania Optometric Association in the Hotel Schenley, revealed a new development of the lens to give normal visual power to persons of defective eyesight.

Through the medium of motion pictures Dr. Feinbloom illustrated to the 200 optometrists the extension of the scope of the lens to enable a person of sub-normal vision to drive an automobile safely.

The optometric convention today heard about another development to aid faulty vision by Dr. Otto G. Haussmann, of Philadelphia. Tonight Dr. Thomas McBurnie, of Brooklyn, president of the National Optometric Association, will speak at the state association's banquet.

CUSTED SLEUTH SEEKS STATUS

As result of a demand of former Police Lieut. James Gray, charges supporting his dismissal from the McKeesport force will be presented at next Monday's meeting of McKeesport Council.

Asking explanation of his status, Gray appeared yesterday before council. He said he had been dismissed September 20, and that under the civil service law, such action must be followed by charges within 15 days.

When Mayor George H. Lysle replied the incident was closed, Gray said:

"The law was made so you couldn't fire anyone over politics."

Gray supported H. S. Arthur, mayoralty candidate, in the primary campaign.

After consulting the city solicitor, Mayor Lysle said formal charges would be preferred. He stated Gray had incited a riot September 19.

Traffic Court on the Air: Thousands Listening to His Hearing

Traffic Court 'On Air' Over WCAE Second Day

Traffic Court was on the air today, as WCAE gave the second of a series of broadcasts from East Liberty Police Station.

Opening the program—to run from 11:30 a. m. to noon through this week—City Traffic Engineer Lewis W. McIntyre yesterday explained that the broadcasts were to aid the public in understanding traffic problems.

Apparently the show made no particular appeal to the ambitions of amateur broadcasters as no more than the usual number of defendants appeared in court yesterday. On the other hand, none of those before the microphone-decked bar of justice showed any visible signs of stage fright.

The program went over clearly, according to Chief Engineer H. L. Bixbee, who promised improvement today. But a call from an unidentified woman protested against "too many yeggs slamming doors."

Books for Hospital In Labrador Asked

Books for Dr. Wilfred Grenfell, in charge of the Grenfell Mission Hospitals at Labrador, were sought today by Mrs. Malcom McLeod, of 926 Bellefonte street, East End.

For several years Mrs. McLeod has supplied books to the Pittsburgh Hospital and Leech Farm, tuberculosis hospital. Mystery stories, fiction and juvenile books are needed, Mrs. McLeod says.

Socialists Hold Two Rallies Tonight

The Socialist Party of Allegheny County will hold two street meetings tonight, one at Pearl and Liberty, Bloomfield, the other at Main and Wabash, West End.

Dr. William J. Van Essen, candidate for mayor, will adress both meetings. Other speakers will be David Rinne and James Devlin, candidates for Council.

been taken after the machine has been voted. Sklar said that while a voter is inside the machine turning the buttons, it is possible to take a print without locking the machine.

Sklar said that with the aid of a screw driver and a small hook he can vote many times for any one candidate, but he admitted this could only be done by persons knowing the workings of the machine.

BUTTONS MISSING

Charles Wagner, one of the eight zone custodians, testified that he took machine accessories with him to McKeesport on election day and that they disappeared from the McKeesport Police Station when he went to look for them. He said he did not understand how power cords, and judges' control buttons were discovered missing from the supply box on machines in McKeesport. His assistant, J. J. Costello, said he believed the supplies had been stolen.

Mrs. Genevieve Riganno, a watcher in the Eighth District of the Nineteenth Ward, testified a city fireman assisted people to vote when the assistance was not needed. She declared that about 250 persons were assisted. She said that Joseph, Frank, Angelo and Lee Petrolleo and their brother-in-law, Michael Cafaro, had assisted many persons in the district. She declared Joseph Petrolleo was a judge of the board and he first showed his brother-in-law, Cafaro, the operation and then Cafaro began instructing voters.

BLAMES PAYROLLERS

Miss Catherine Plank, of the Ninth District of the Twenty-first Ward, declared that in the Eighth District of the same ward, city employes virtually run the election. She declared they assisted persons who protested against the unsolicited help and in one case actually voted for a man and told him to leave. She declared that efforts were made to have the machines halted and force the use of ballots.

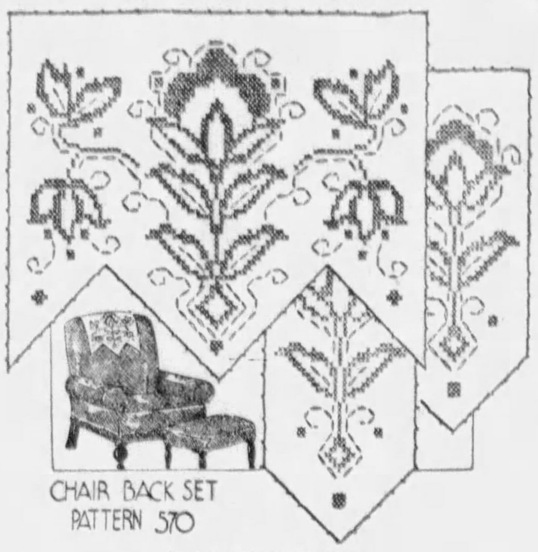
Attorney Edward B. McFall, a member of the investigating committee, told her the information would be turned over to the District Attorney.

She replied:

"I hope you get some action, but I doubt it."

The committee will resume at 2 o'clock tomorrow to hear Lauer and other custodians and any person having knowledge of machine breakdown.

CROSS-STITCH CHAIR BACK SET



By LAURA WHEELER

Chair backs add that touch of warmth to a room that makes it attractive. Practical as well as decorative, any housewife would welcome the opportunity of having so smart-looking a set as this in cross-stitch and running stitch. They can be done in two shades of one color—the crosses in one, the running stitches in another, or all in one color. As it takes but little material for this set, and little time to make it (for the crosses are of a good size), the clever needlewoman will make some now to put aside for Christmas gifts.

Pattern 570 comes to you with a transfer pattern of the chair back design 12½x15 inches and two arm rests 5½x12 inches; detailed instructions and yardages for making the set.

Send 10c for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

PINCHOT DENIES ROAD DELAY

HARRISBURG, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Administration officials today had prepared a reply to Republican organization leaders' charges that Gov. Pinchot is delaying Pennsylvania's $18,891,000 federal aid road building program for political purposes.

At the Highway Department it was disclosed that information on the progress of the program is being assembled and will be handed to the Governor upon his return from Milford tomorrow.

Representative Morton L. Witkin, Philadelphia, a leader in the highway investigation during the recent session of the Legislature, urges a resumption of the inquiry. He charges road work is being delayed to permit widespread construction next year. Then, he predicts, Gov. Pinchot will campaign for the United States Senate seat held by David A. Reed.

Gov. Pinchot and Samuel S. Lewis, Secretary of Highways, have denied that state road building work is being delayed. The Governor said recently that plans for all projects on the federal aid system and in cities and boroughs have been submitted for federal approval. He said he awaits a reply from Washington to his request that requirements for advance surveys on secondary and feeder road projects be suspended.

Voters Oppose City Utilities Ownership

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Unofficial returns from a special election yesterday showed a decisive vote against the proposals for city ownership of electric distribution facilities, waterworks, street railway and construction and operation of a central heating system.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Care of the First Teeth Important

"Brush your teeth twice a day and see your dentist at least twice a year," is familiar advice heard over the radio. Yet I wonder how many of the listeners in the nation-wide hook-up heed this warning.

Dr. Copeland

In the sixteenth century, so-called dentists advised that "to keep teeth healthy eat a mouse once a month and fumigate the mouth with smoke from onion seeds." I can readily understand why such revolting advice as this should be spurned, but it is difficult to understand why any sensible person should fail to follow the advice of the modern dentist.

No one will deny that there has been a marked change in the medical and dental world as regards disease. In former years every effort was made to cure disease. Today emphasis is placed upon the prevention of disease as well as the cure.

At one time the extraction of diseased and decayed teeth was a common dental practice. Today the dentist helps prevent decay and so avoids the necessity of pulling teeth. With proper dental care this can be accomplished.

To keep good teeth through life is only possible when adequate dental care is given in childhood. The visit to the dentist should be made before the first back teeth, the molars, appear. If everyone were given this early attention there is no doubt that fewer teeth would be lost in adult life and serious constitutional diseases would be avoided.

In addition to the necessary hygiene and care of the teeth, proper dental health requires a well-balanced diet. The diet is especially important for young children before the appearance of the permanent teeth.

Bear in mind that a diet lacking in certain vitamins leads to cavity formation and diseased teeth. For this reason fruit juices are advised for the infant as early as the fourth week. Strained orange juice or tomato juice, and cod liver oil, given in early childhood, will assure your child healthy and strong teeth.

I cannot overemphasize the importance of periodic visits to the dentist for the child and adult. Care of the temporary teeth will insure strong and sturdy teeth.

Do not be misled by the thought that since the first teeth are temporary they require little attention. This is wrong. Let me warn you again against neglect of the teeth. Do not assume that since you have no pain or discomfort your teeth are healthy. Whether they are or not only the dentist can determine.

Elton to Address Bellevue Traders

JURY DODGER'S 'FIX' FAILS

George Hehr, Sr., 402 South Winebiddle avenue, stationary engineer for the Iron City Brewing Company, thought everything had been "fixed" to have him excused from serving as a Common Pleas Court juror.

He found out that the "fix" did not work, when Earl Jacobs, minute clerk, called him on the telephone and told him if he and his son, Lawrence Hehr, both drawn as jurors, did not report, a deputy sheriff would bring them in. Judge W. Heber Dithrich questioned the senior Hehr, who hurried to court late yesterday. Hehr said:

"We thought everything was fixed. Lou Glesenkamp, the city paymaster, was to fix it."

Judge Dithrich replied:

"No one is fixing anything here."

Albert A. Horne Honored at Dinner

Albert A. Horne, 88-year-old veteran employe of Joseph Horne Company, was honor guest last night at a testimonial dinner given in the store by fellow employes commemorating his 70 years of service.

Former Gov. John S. Fisher, president of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, Mayor John S. Herron, Bishop Adna W. Leonard, of the Pittsburgh area of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the Rev. J. M. Thoburn, pastor of the Smithfield Street Methodist Episcopal Church, and Bernard S. Horne were among the speakers. A. H. Burchfield, president, presided.

NERVOUS WOMEN
Take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"I am so nervous it seems as though I should fly." . . . "My nerves are all on edge." . . . "I wish I were dead." . . . how often have we heard these expressions from some woman who has become so tired and run-down that her nerves can no longer stand the strain.

No woman should allow herself to drift into this condition if she can help herself. She could give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. For nearly sixty years women have taken this wonderful tonic to give them renewed strength and vigor.

98 out of every 100 women who report to us say that they are benefited by this medicine. Buy a bottle today . . . and watch the results.

ARGUE VALUES OF DOWNTOWN LAND IN SUIT

Closing arguments were being made today before Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker in the suit brought against the government by Lewis B. Hays and Virginia Hays Osborne, executors of the Mary H. Hays estate, seeking a refund of approximately $20,000 federal estate tax and interest.

The litigation concerns tax collected in 1921 by the government on the estate's interest in Smithfield street property, now under lease to Frank & Seder. The executors charge the government made an excessive valuation in computing the estates interest in the property. The property involved fronts 120 feet on Smithfield street and it 60 feet deep.

A large number of real estate dealers testified. Thomas C. McMahon, chief assessor for the city, a government witness, supported the government's contention that the property in 1921 was worth $10,000 a front foot.

The estate contends the property at that time was worth $6,500 a front foot. Among the witnesses for the plaintiffs was John A. Sharp, well known authority on downtown real estate.

In defense of the action the government is represented by Attorney John A. McCann, Pittsburgh representative of general counsel, Bureau of Internal Revenue. Plaintiff counsel is represented by Attorney Frank C. Osborne.

MARK DISCIPLE ANNIVERSARY

Several hundred persons last night attended the opening of the one hundredth anniversary of the Disciples of Christ in Pennsylvania at services in Memorial Hall.

A chorus of 250 voices sang. It was trained by William Davis for the international convention of the Disciples of Christ, which opens tomorrow in Syira Mosque.

The principal speakers were the Rev. S. S. Lappin, pastor of the Central Christian Church, on "The Strategic Importance of a Missionary Board," and the Rev. H. A. Denton, pastor of Mt. Lebanon Christian Church, on "One Hundred Years of Progress."

THE GIRL WHO WON — By MAY CHRISTIE

bed Nollie looked with distaste at the cluttered dresser top that bore a trail of Lil's spilled powder, soiled and greasy puffs, rouge-paste that had melted in the heat and trickled in a bright red stain on the linen 'runner" Nollie's own clever fingers had fashioned. There was a fuzz of hair on Lil's comb, too—that had lost half a dozen prongs—and Lil's eyelash brush, thick with mascara, had toppled from its box and made another stain on the linen cover.

The picture of Lil's latest "heart"—a weedy and anemic-looking youth—was stuck into a corner of the dresser mirror. In an uneducated hand it bore an inscription to "the best sport in the world." . . . Nollie's lips quirked quizzically as she thought of Lil out every night till 1 and 2, and even 3 a. m. on these spring nights . . . of surreptitious scufflings in the hall . . . of muffled whisperings in the dark that floated up till all hours from the old front-parlor.

It wasn't her affair, of course . . . but how could Lil make herself so cheap, or worse than cheap? Uncle Cy slept like the dead all through the night, as did the boys . . . but if ever he queried Lil's conduct, her mother would always defend her.

"Leave the girl alone!" "Let the child have her fun!" "How is she ever to get married with you interfering?"

Noisy Neighborhood

The room reeked of Lil's cheap scent. A pair of soiled stockings with a run in them lay upon a chair, and shoes with run-over heels rested on top of them. Lil's brassiere was on the floor, one of its straps fastened by a safety pin, and face down beside it, with leaves bent back, lay a library copy of a very sexy novel.

The pretty little chintz curtains Nollie's nimble fingers had run up—material purchased out of her meager salary hung by the open windows limply. It was unconscionably warm today. The air was full of a still and saturating humidity.

A fretful baby wailed next door. The walls of the shoddy little house were thin. One could hear every movement, almost every spoken word of the neighbors.

A radio shrilled off-key, each note going through Nollie's head like red-hot needles. And children yelled and yahooed in a yard across the alley.

"Lord, but I can't stand this. Let me fall in the tub before the kids come home"—and Nollie got up from the bed, dug under it for her suitcase, in which she kept her own Turkish towel and a cake of her own soap, undressed rapidly, slipped into a kimono and went into the bathroom.

The lock was broken, as was most things in this house. But Nollie had her own device for privacy, in a small, triangular block of wood she had shaped herself, which she struck under the door.

There! Now no one could burst in on her!

Thinks of Injustice

She'd a 10-cent packet, too, that she had bought luxuriously and extravagantly at the drug store today, of bath-salts of pine-and-balsam that, flung into the water, gave out a clean and purifying odor.

She'd got to think, too . . . and to some purpose even more practical. Nearly 20 . . . (and come to analyze it she'd only stayed on here because of a kind of pity for poor irritable Uncle Cy, to whom she was a kind of buffer and a real help) . . . she MUST break loose from this carping, soul-deadening environment.

She felt so utterly "apart" from all of them, some way. Often it was as if they did not even speak the same language.

This "difference" served to make Aunt Sarah furious.

"Who d'you think you are, my girl? A fine lady? A duchess?"

"And yet I work all day for Uncle Cy, and then pay back practically everything he gives me in the way of salary to Aunt Sarah, and do all kinds of odd jobs around the house!" So mused Nollie, keyed up at the injustice.

Longs to Get Away

Aunt Sarah was bitterly jealous about Nollie being prettier than Lil . . . at Nollie's refined and dainty ways, which were such a sharp contrast to those of her "cousin."

And because of this, and because of a certain delicacy in Nollie's winsome face and chiseled little nose . . . (the direct antithesis to Lil's plebian mug) Aunt Sarah in all manner of mean, small ways would try to get even with her.

She knew quite well that Nollie, somewhere or other, had "good blood" in her. That blood did tell. That Nollie wouldn't stoop to lies or deceit or "snooping around," nor did she seem to be the least affected by her aunt's insinuations.

When something sharp and unjust was said, Nollie had a way of lifting her long black lashes and looking directly at the speaker with very blue and very lovely and quite honest eyes, that was really disconcerting.

Infuriating, too. It made one feel—although Nollie didn't say a word—as though one were about the size of a peanut!

Lying luxuriously in the tub, Nollie's brain was now working rapidly.

Money! If she could only get some! If she could only leave Yapahunk behind, and get out into that magic world of Opportunity!

She's studied shorthand for the past nine months, from little books she'd bought. Had translated whole pages of magazine stories into curly hieroglyphics.

Her speed on the old typewriter in uncle's shop was good, and she figured she knew more about bookkeeping than he did.

Lil Resentful

If only she'd her carfare to New York! If only—!

Best not dream. Get up and do. Nollie slid out of the pine-scented water and dressed in clean underthings and a fresh little linen dress she'd laundered herself early this morning.

"My goodness! You're as pernicketty about your clothes as though you'd got an honest-to-goodness beau!" Lil jibed at her.

To which Nollie could have retorted that her pernicketiness extended to beaux as well, and she'd sooner die that be seen out and about with the specimens Lil favored.

But for answer Nollie had merely raised an eyebrow and shrugged her slim young shoulders.

Which had infuriated Lil, who thought her cousin was "stuck up," and did not hesitate to say so.

Her dressing finished, Nollie dabbed a fluff of powder on her nose and chin and regarded herself in the mirror.

She saw a pale and pretty face. Sweet mouth. A rounded but firm chin. Straight little nose. And eyes that were the exact color of a bit of turquoise.

Those eyes of a lovely blue were the most noticeable feature in that small and heart-shaped face whose clean-cut outline was softened by thick wavy hair of a quite ordinary brown—what Lil, who peroxided her own locks with rather odd results was wont to describe as "mousey."

But Nollie—and of this the girl herself was unaware—had the makings of a real beauty in her.

Vivacity! Sparkle! Glow! Just now the small face lacked all these. It needed an awakening touch . . . the warm and vivifying glow of some bright sun to make this flower bloom as Nature and her own attributes had intended her to bloom, transplanted from this dreary backwater.

Wins a Prize

As though she had a premonition it might be for her—though Nollie seldom did get mail—she ran softly and swiftly down the stairs and lifted the envelope.

It was addressed to her! Miss Nollie Day, 1826 South st.

Typewritten, too. She raced up to her own room with it.

From the Morning Appeal! Good heavens! (her hands shook as she read the printed tidings) she'd won a prize of $50 in that funny newspaper competition she'd entered!

Kind of a modern version of the cross-word puzzle it had been. Nollie had done it to amuse herself . . . felt she hadn't a ghost of a chance when she competed.

But here was their check! The first she'd ever received in all her life! She examined it, thrilled and still half incredulous.

Never before had she had the promise of so much money at one time! Why . . . why . . . wasn't it possible NOW that she could get away with this as magic key? Wasn't this check an "open sesame" to the wide, free Road of Opportunity?

A gladness at her heart. The day's weariness and irritation gone. A dozen plans raced through her brain as she slid the precious scrap of paper in the bosom of her little belted dress and stared at her own reflection in the mirror.

World Beckons

Vivid she looked since this grand news! Transformed. A lovely pink had crept into her soft cheeks, and her eyes were as blue as delphiniums.

There was a sparkle to them, too, that they had lacked before. She closed them for a moment, her soul wrapped in shimmering vistas.

She opened her eyes, stared happily at the image in the glass, said breathlessly: "Why, Nollie Day . . . you're beautiful . . .!"

Her aunt's sharp voice from down below, chiding the boys, Lil's nasal drawl. Her uncle, querulous.

What did ANY of it matter, now she had this check? She'd go . . .

"Hi, there, you upstairs! If you want anything to eat, come down right now . . ."

She descended to earth from dreams on Mt. Parnassus.

As she went through the dark little hall to the kitchen at the rear, she grabbed the Morning Appeal from the hatrack where Uncle Cy had left it.

Into the livingroom quick . . . tear out the page that surely bore her name . . . in their perusal of the newspaper during the day, pray heaven that he and aunt had overlooked it!

"Yes, it was there, her name. She ripped the sheet away . . . shoved it out of sight under the piano.

Then to the evening meal, a gathering of the clan she usually hated.

But she was gay tonight. With an appetite too. She even took a second helping of Aunt Sarah's greasy potato salad.

"Come into a fortune, huh?" sneered Lil, toying in prima donna manner with her food, her jealous and suspicious eyes upon the face that—specially tonight—was so much prettier than her own. "You look as though you owned the earth. What's happened to you?"

JACK SMITH PUTS OVER THE DEAL

BY GETTING RID OF HIS NEURITIS QUICK by DAVISS

Don't Forget real BAYER ASPIRIN starts "taking hold" of pain in few minutes

There is now a quicker way to ease pain. A way that often brings relief from even a severe headache or neuritis in a few minutes. Millions are now employing it . . . the fastest, safe relief, it is said, ever known for pain.

Those results are due to a scientific discovery by which a Bayer Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture. And hence to start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

The illustration of the glass, here, tells the story. A Bayer Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly you swallow it. And thus is ready to go to work almost instantly. This unique Bayer discovery means quick relief from pain for you and yours. Fewer lost hours from headaches, neuralgia or the pains of rheumatism. And Safe Relief—for GENUINE BAYER ASPIRIN does not harm the heart.

When you buy, though, see that you get the GENUINE BAYER ASPIRIN. The best way is never ask for aspirin by the name "aspirin" alone. But if you want Bayer Aspirin's quick relief always to say "BAYER ASPIRIN."

DOES NOT HARM THE HEART

'New Matty' Feats Stir Memories

VINES DESERTS AMATEURS FOR PRO CAREER

MRS. CHRISTY MATHEWSON LISTENS TO WORLD SERIES

With all of this talk about the great Carl Hubbell, of the Giants, being a "Second Christy Mathewson" in his work throughout the past season and in the World Series, what do you suppose were the thoughts of the widow of the late Christy, as she sat and listened to the radio reports of the World Series at Saranac Lake, N. Y.? Atop her radio is a picture of the immortal Matty.

1933 CLASSIC SCENE . . . THE LATE CHRISTY MATHEWSON WAS A MOUND ACE IN SIMILAR BATTLES, YEARS AGO

Hubbell is slender and a southpaw, but a mound wizard. The Senators didn't get an earned run off him in 20 innings last week. Back in 1905, Mathewson pitched three shutouts against the Philadelphia Athletics in the World Series, a great record. Picture of Mrs. Mathewson is by Wide World News Photograph Service, the others are by International News Photograph Service.

Terry's Hour in Spotlight. Credit Often Misplaced. Lower Series Prices Due. Heroes Made by Mates. Trailer to Get Earnshaw. Pitt Subs Come to Fore.

GIANT BOSS MAY FIND 1934 DIFFERENT

IT'S ALWAYS THAT way for a winner. Everybody raves about him in his hour of success. Because the Giants won the National League pennant and then went on to the world title, Owner Charles A. Stoneham tears up Manager Bill Terry's two-year contract and gives him a new one for five seasons at an increased salary. Terry is hailed as baseball's "miracle man" of the day, a label plastered on every manager who has scored an unexpected victory since George Stallings led the Boston Braves to their famous triumph in 1914. A fan on the outside may be pardoned for wondering if Memphis Bill will be receiving the same acclaim one year from now.

C. A. Stoneham

Evidently President Stoneham and New York rooters are confident that Terry and the Giants will continue right on at the sensational pace at which they traveled in 1933. They may be disappointed. Last year the Giants were picked for the pennant and they finished in a tie for sixth place. This year they were doped for fifth or sixth position and they landed on top. In 1932, the Pirates were tabbed for the second division, and they missed the flag by only four games. This year they were pennant favorites and they flopped.

The going will be much harder for Terry and the Giants in 1934. They'll be on the spot from the start; expected to repeat. It's a lot different from having little or nothing anticipated. Even such pitchers as the great Carl Hubbell and his mates may not again be able to carry the Giants through in a league that has at least two, possibly three, better clubs. The necessary breaks do not always go to the same team two years in succession. It's easier to win a pennant when nobody thinks you can do it, than it is to defend one successfully when you are on the spot and your followers expect you to do nothing less. One year ago, New York was extolling Joe McCarthy as the eighth wonder of the world. This fall it was talking of replacing him. Twelve months may bring a similar change for Terry. Like many others before him, he may lose the prescription. The baseball fates are fickle.

CUT DUE IN FUTURE WORLD SERIES PRICES

The failure of the expected sell-outs to materialize in the recent World Series, and the particularly disappointing attendance at the Washington games, may have the effect of convincing the baseball powers that the days of over-priced ball games have passed. Probably they will be willing now to make a cut in derby prices that should have been made a couple of years ago when the depression started to hurt sport attractions.

The bosses always contended that World Series ticket sales could not be handled unless each customer purchased pasteboards for a block of three games. But when the sales fell off in 1932 and 1933, the chiefs were only too willing to offer tickets for single games. In all likelihood they'll have to make another concession for the sake of their own business interests in connection with future World Series and give the fans a new deal in the matter of prices.

EARNSHAW GOING TO RED SOX OR INDIANS

One of the player deals rumored as likely to be closed very soon is the sale of Pitcher George Earnshaw, of the A's. Reports from the front say Earnshaw is to go to the Red Sox or Indians.

Both the Yankees and Senators made overtures for the big right-hander, who was suspended and fined in the middle of the 1933 season and later sent home to stay, but Connie Mack refused to consider adding any more strength to either of those clubs and prefers to sell Earnshaw to a trailer.

Cards Take Lead In Grabbing Rookies

DURHAM, N. C., Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Traffic between the minors and majors has sent 131 baseball players up to the big show since the first of the year.

The press bureau here of the National Association of Baseball Leagues has released figures showing 56 pitchers, 34 infielders, 25 outfielders and 16 catchers went to the majors from smaller leagues.

The St. Louis Cardinals led the way in absorbing talent, taking 25 performers, while the Boston Red Sox claimed an even dozen from the minors either by purchase or draft.

GIBBY'S STATUS WITH BUCCOS UNCERTAIN

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Back at his desk after having enjoyed the thrills of the World Series battles, Pirate President Bill Benswanger today tackled the first chores of what looms like a big winter season.

The Pittsburgh managerial question hung quite heavily on the mind of the local magnate as he peered into the future. When asked for an impression on this important matter, Benswanger declared he had not arrived at any definite conclusion.

PREXY UNDECIDED

In other words, the Pirate chieftain did not divulge whether or not George Gibson would be at the helm of the club next season. It is known that Benswanger has a very high personal regard for Gibson and apparently he feels that Gibby is a fine baseball executive in more than one sense, but whether he looks upon the Canuck as a fitting manager for the club is something else.

Benswanger recently has indicated he is much impressed with the playing pilot idea. The great success scored by Bill Terry and Joe Cronin as they played active roles in the diamond dramas has influenced the Pittsburgh mogul. Hence, if the reins are taken away from Gibson they doubtless will be handed to Pie Traynor. You may recall that the Cincinnati owners tried to get Traynor to lead their team this year, but the Pirate bosses would not permit the thirdsacker to get away. Evidently they had some managerial thoughts relative to Pie.

Benswanger was strong in his words of praise for both clubs taking part in the World Series. He was not surprised at the success of the Giants. Said Bill:

LAUDS NEW CHAMPS

"Bill Terry's club played just as though the series were a continuation of the National League season. They fought hard from the sound of the starting bell to the finish. In the last month of the season they had to play crucial series with the Braves, the Pirates, the Cubs and the Cardinals. It is true our club bested them in a five-game series, but they showed their class in the other three series and were not setups as we licked them three out of five. They deserve all the honor that has come to them."

While there is not much trade talk poppin' in the camp of the Pirates, there is a chance that a deal or two will be negotiated during the cold months. More than one club is eager to land certain Buccos who are not regarded highly by some folks in this neck o' the woods. However, the home magnates will go slow in swapping players because they are in the disfavor of a minority of fans.

BRAVES SEEK BARTELL

From a reliable source the Sun-Telegraph learns that the Boston Braves are making a mighty effort to land a former Pirate shortstop who is regarded as top in the National League. The reference, of course, is to Dick Bartell, of the Phillies. Apparently the Braves will make a serious bid for the flag of next season and they would like to do their Christmas shopping early.

The Quaker owners, this writer was informed, are in dire need of ready cash. Moreover, they are in a jam on the status of Manager Bert Shotton. The sad plight of the team in the 1933 race has turned Philly fans against Bert. The supporters of the club demand a new pilot, but Shotton was clever enough to secure a three-year, ironclad contract just before President Gerry Nugent was inducted into office.

Weintraub Due Assist on Ott's Home Run

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Phil Wientraub, reserve outfielder with the New York Giants, can claim an assist on that tenth inning home run Mel Ott hit at Washington Saturday to clinch the World Series. It was with one of Weintraub's bats that Ott socked the ball.

BRITON'S WIN UNPOPULAR

By SID MERCER

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Don McCorkindale, South African heavyweight champion, made his American debut last night at Madison Square Garden on the long end of what was hailed as an unpopular decision against Patsy Perroni, of Cleveland, judging from the outcry that it provoked from the customers.

The judges disagreed after Perroni had taken the last two rounds by wide margins and Referee Patsy Haley cast the ballot that elected McCorkindale. Judge Abe Goldberg called it a draw and Judge Billy Jacobs voted for McCorkindale.

The fall opening of the boxing season at the Garden was blighted by a financial frost besides being featured by a disputed decision. The paid attendance was about 4,000 and the receipts a little over $5,000.

McCorkindale, who went 10 rounds with Primo Carnero in London and stopped Larry Gains in 10 rounds, had better boxing form than his shorter and stockier opponent, but Perroni threw too many punches for him, especially in the first two and the last three rounds.

Perroni appeared to have carried six of the 10 rounds and the last two by wider margins than any of the rounds credited to the Britain. McCorkindale apparently faded at the finish from the effects of following the fast pace set by the American.

GRID PIRATES DROP FOUR

Four members of the Pittsburgh Pirate's professional football squad have been released to get the roster inside the limit of 22 by tomorrow night.

The players let go are Jim Tanguay, former New York University halfback; George Shaffer, former W. & J. quarterback; Butch Kottler, former Centre quarterback, and Howard Letsinger, former Purdue guard.

Jap Douds, coach of the locals, will make his season debut as a player in the game against the Cincinnati Reds at Forbes Field tomorrow night. Jack Westfall, former Ohio Wesleyan quarterback, purchased from the Boston Redskins last week, will break into the Pirate's lineup at the same time.

The Reds are due in town today and will engage in a workout here. They lost a tough 3-0 game to the Chicago Cardinals last Sunday.

Tomorrow night's game will be the last night engagement at home for the Pirates. Their final scheduled game will be played on Sunday, November 12, against the Brooklyn team, after the elimination the Blue Laws will permit Sunday sports here.

CRONIN, TERRY GIVEN NEW CONTRACTS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Joseph Edward Cronin, youngster manager of the Washington Senators, today signed a three-year contract to pilot the club that captured the American League pennant this year, but was turned back by the Giants for the world honors.

The pay was not disclosed, but President Clark C. Griffith, indicated it was considerably less than the $40,000 mentioned at the signing yesterday of Cronin's rival, Bill Terry, manager of the Giants.

The San Franciscan, who will celebrate his twenty-seventh birthday tomorrow, smilingly told newspapermen his contract was "satisfactory," and that it represented "a considerable increase over my salary for this year."

In signing Joe for three years, Griffith followed the same policy he employed with Bucky Harris, himself a kid manager when he piloted the Senators to a world championship in 1924, and Walter Johnson, for many years Washington's "Big Train."

TERRY IS REWARDED

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Memphis Bill Terry, the young man who introduced the "huddle" system of management to baseball, topped off his World Series triumph over the Senators by signing a five-year contract to continue as pilot of the New York Giants.

A big cigar in his teeth, the thrill of conquest still lighting his face, the 35-year-old first baseman sat down with Charles A. Stoneham, owner of the club, yesterday and signed a document reliably reported to call for $40,000 a year for his services through the season of 1938.

In doing so they tore up the two-year contract Terry signed in 1932 when he took over the club upon the resignation of the veteran John McGraw, and started the recovery campaign that wound up with the Giants winning the National League flag, and the World Series in five games, in the first full year of his management. The old contract was reported to have netted Terry $30,000 a year.

TERMS NOT MENTIONED

Beyond the expression that all concerned were pleased with the figures involved, specific terms were not mentioned.

The joyous after effects of the Giants' sparkling victory still hung over the club offices as the newspapermen, all of whom had predicted in the spring that Terry would be fortunate to land in the first division this year, trooped in for the last time this year.

Terry said:

"It looks as though I'm going to be around here a long time. I'm tickled to death about it."

Stoneham took the opportunity to deny the latest rumor that he had sold his ball club, a report that bounds up every month or two. There seemed little likelihood that he was seriously considering selling now or in the immediate future the 1st National League world champion New York has had since the height of McGraw's power in 1922.

STONEHAM HAPPY

He looked to be having too much fun, and he even chuckled happily over the fact that the Giants' fourth victory in Washington Saturday prevented a sixth game and a certain sellout at the Polo Grounds yesterday.

The signing of Terry today set something of a new high for managers of New York champions. Last year, when Joe McCarthy piloted the Yankees to the world championship in four straight games, he was rewarded only with a three-year contract at a figure not considered as lofty as the terms of Terry's new agreement.

New Castle High May Get Grid Game in Florida

By JULIUS LEVIN

An invitation to compete in a post-season game on Christmas Day with Miami High School in Miami, Fla., may be extended to New Castle High School in event the Lawrence countians succeed in going through their second successive season without suffering a defeat or tie game.

While no offer as yet has been extended to Coach Phil Bridenbaugh or Faculty Manager Ralph H. Gardner, of New Castle, for a game in the southern metropolis, officials sponsoring the contest are reported eager to have the Pennsylvanians make the trip to the Dixie city.

Two years ago Clairton High School, class A champion of the W. P. I. A. L. at that time, was invited to compete in the Miami post-season affair, but the guarantee asked by the officials of the steel town was considered too high. As a result, a Chicago school was selected for the game.

UNDEFEATED TEAM

The Scarlet Hurricane, co-champion in class AA along with Jeannette and McKeesport last season, has compiled an enviable record of 15 successive victories in the last two years. New Castle won 11 straight in 1932, including a post-season victory over McKeesport, which shared in the double A championship spoils, while so far this year, Coach Bridenbaugh's machine has chalked up four triumphs, including a double A decision over Charleroi.

New Castle will have an opportunity to stretch its winning streak to 16 in a row Friday night when Washington is met in a class AA engagement at New Castle. Washington, beaten by Burgettstown and Clairton, should not extend the Lawrence countains, who are reported having another powerful grid machine.

So far this season New Castle has defeated Braddock, 26-0; Ellwood City, 41-0; Charleroi, 14-6, and Union Township, 35-0.

City League football teams face a full program of games this week, including five league engagements and two non-league frays.

BATTLE FOR LEAD

The Perry-South Hills game, the feature attraction in Section II, has been moved up to Thursday as South Hills uses Langley Field for its home games. South also uses this field and will meet Fifth Avenue in a Section I tussle on Friday afternoon.

First place in Section II will be at stake in the Perry-South Hills game. Each team has scored one victory without a defeat so far this season.

Perry, almost wrecked by graduation last spring, 's getting up power gradually and is going to be a tough team to beat this season. The North Siders are the defending champions in the City League.

Two games will be offered in each division of the City League on Friday. Beside the Fifth Avenue-South engagement at Langley Field, Westinghouse will attempt to keep pace with South by defeating Schenley at Schenley.

In Section II, Carrick will have Allegheny as its opponent at Carrick, while Oliver will entertain Langley at Oliver.

Two local teams play out-of-town games on Saturday. Taylor Allderdice is the attraction at Wilkinsburg, while Peabody goes to Canton, O.

Beaver Falls, its chances for the W. P. I. A. L. crown ruined by a scoreless tie with Ellwood City, meets Ambridge at Ambridge in the class A headliner on Saturday. Ambridge, defending class A champion, has won 13 successive games. In the four games played so far this season, Moe Rubenstein's team has held the opposition scoreless.

GRID GAME TONIGHT

The Cup Jenking football team meets Corpus Christi at Homestead High School Field at 8 o'clock this evening. On Friday evening, the McKeesport Olympics play the Monessen Ravens at Tip Tin-plate Park, McKeesport.

EVANS REFUSES BIG PAY CUT

CLEVELAND, Oct. 10.—(INS.)—Billy Evans, general manager of the Cleveland Indians for the past six years, today was the only one who could settle reports that he was a "holdout," and he remained silent.

Evans, according to reports, was asked to accept a salary cut of 66 per cent when his present three-year contract expires next month. According to reports, the former American League umpire is willing to accept a 40 per cent clash, but is balking at the huge reduction suggested.

There were some indications that Billy intended either to return to sports writing or seek an American League umpire's job.

Fight Results

At Grand Rapids—Tony Herrera defeated Wesley Ramey, 10 rounds.

COAST NETTER JOINS TILDEN TROUPE

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Ellsworth Vines finally has taken the plunge into professional tennis.

Hard on the heels of the most disastrous season of his comparatively brief career, the 22-year-old Pasadena youngster has signed a one-year contract with Bill Tilden on terms Tilden declines to disclose but which possibly will net Vines about $25,000 for 1934.

DEBUT SET JANUARY 10

The tall Californian, amateur champion of the United States in 1931 and 1932, and Wimbledon title-holder in 1932, will make his professional debut in a match with Tilden in Madison Square Garden, January 10.

Then will follow a short tour to the Pacific Coast and back, after which Tilden and Vines will engage in a series of nine contests, along on Davis Cup lines, against Henri Cochet and Martin Plaa, of France. The first of these will be played in the Garden the middle of February.

Although Vines was beaten in every one of his major tests during the campaign just closed, Tilden is confident the youngster quickly will regain the form that made him a sensation in 1931 and 1932. Tilden said:

"The trouble with Vines this year was not that he was losing his skill as a player but that his game was affected by too much pressure, with too many officials trying to tell him what to do to bring back the Davis cup. I know because I went through the same mi over a much longer period, a won many of my matches d spite official interference a suggestions."

While he was at it, Tilden hibited a written statement f Vines, dated at Pasadena sev days ago. The statement rea

"I'm glad I turned pro. W did I slip last season? I wasn' slipping. I was dead, killed by too much tennis and too many officials. All I needed was a little rest and to be let alone to play tennis my way."

PLANS PRO CIRCUIT

With Cochet and Vines both enlisted under his banner, Tilden now intends to organize a regular circuit of pro tournaments next year. Cochet, Plaa, Hans Nusslein, and Karel Kozeluh, of Germany, among others, have agreed to the plan.

The possibility that Vines might join the professionals was reported a year ago and repeated at intervals during the last 12 months. So persistent did these rumors become in August that the United States Lawn Tennis Association instituted an investigation into his status. The result was exoneration for Vines.

As a matter of fact, it is generally understood that until he lost his national championship at Forest Hills early in September Vines had not made up his mind to forsake amateur ranks. Some observers estimated that had he decided to turn pro a year ago he might have made anywhere from $50,000 to $100,000 in a single season.

Informed that Vines had signed a professional contract, Bernon S. Prentice, chairman of the 1933 American Davis Cup committee, said:

"I wish him every success. As long as he was contemplating this action, I am sorry he did not come to his decision sooner. In the case of Davis Cup competition this year I think it would have been much fairer to us all."

PANTHERS TO FIND MIDDIES TOUGH OPPONENTS

SAILORS SPORT CRACK PAIR OF PASSERS

By JESS CARVER

Two years ago, the Army sent a pretty snappy football team to this town for a game with Pitt. The soldiers, first because they were the soldiers, and second, because the home folks didn't think so much of the Panthers, were installed favorites and generally were picked to beat the Sutherlands. The result of that contest is history. All the Army got for the trip was the train ride and a dance.

This week, another Service eleven, the Navy's Middies, will appear here and the situation is just about the reverse. The sailors, for the past few years, have been pretty well kicked around by their major opponents, few of which were rated as highly as Pitt, and so, the Panthers, despite the fact thay've been very much under wraps to date, are favorites to win.

NAVY HAS STUFF

From this point of observation, there is little excuse for Pitt being installed any better than a 6-to-5 shot to sink the Navy. In the first place, the Panthers suffered a greater loss than was at first thought when Warren Heller graduated. Second, Rip Miller has been at Annapolis just about long enough to have his system properly installed and clicking efficiently, and in the third place, this middie eleven that Pitt meets here on Saturday is a veteran outfit, heavy, fast and with two fine forward passing, ball lugging backs in Gordon Chung-Hoon and Red Bamberger. That name, Red Bamberger, somehow sounds like trouble.

Chung-Hoon has an established reputation as a forward passer, and Dr. Edward Baker, who has been scouting the Sailors for Pitt, reports that the Sailors' aerial attack is a lulu. Chung-Hoon and Bamberger heave 'em to Capt. Bill Murray, the end, and Borries and Walkup, halfbacks, and these lads pull 'em in.

DUKES ON SPOT

Of the three local varsities, the Dukes are the lads who have the most worriment right now. The Dukes are in a tough spot, and because this is a college league there's nothing much can be done about it. Right now, with four consecutive victories to their credit, including triumphs over West Virginia and Bucknell, the Bluffmen are in that mellow state of mind closely approaching overconfidence.

Western Maryland will furnish the opposition here Friday night. The Southerners haven't shown much to date, having been beaten by St. Thomas, but they have about as smart a coach as there is in the game, in Dick Harlow, and you can bet all the dough hidden in the sugar bowl that Richard will have his team set for a real ball game Friday.

Besides, the Dukes were pretty well battered in the game with Bucknell. Weinberg and Rado, the regular guards, were pretty well used up in last week's tussle. Other members of the squad drew bumps and bruises which are and will interfere with their work in practice this week.

HARP NOT SATISFIED

You'd think a coach who could beat Pop Warner, 25 to 0, especially when he was conceded no better than an even chance of winning by a single score, would be pretty well satisfied with things as they are. Such is not the case with Howard Harpster at Tech. Harp is busy improving his team's running attack. He won't be able to get by throwing passes all the time, and without a sound running game his aerial plays cannot function properly.

The Techs have a breather this week, playing Xavier in Cincinnati. Xavier is tough enough, but hardly in the same class with Tech, but still, the Skibos cannot afford to take and chances.

Goal Lines

Sleepy Jim Crowley's Fordham Rams have rolled up 109 points in two warm-up games, but Jim developed a slight headache after looking over Saturday's scores. Of the Rams' future opponents, West Virginia, St. Mary's of California and New York University all were beaten, and Alabama and Oregon State tied. Boston College was the only winner.

This week should furnish a more accurate line on what power may be expected from Pitt and Notre Dame, picked before the season opened as two front-rank contenders for national honors. The Panthers have been far from impressive in beating Washington and Jefferson and West Virginia, and Notre Dame was even less so in the Ramblers' shocking scoreless tie with Kansas.

Texas' Longhorns will have a chance to avenge themselves on the Big Six Conference. Soundly trounced by Nebraska's Cornhuskers at Lincoln last week, the Longhorns will remain at home this week to entertain Oklahoma, another Big Six member.

The South is making certain of topping all other sections in the number of intersectional games it contracts for. This week no fewer than seven outfits will sally north or west of the Mason and Dixon line. Vanderbilt's tussle with Ohio State leads the way with Mississippi at Marquette, Kentucky at Cincinnati, Washington and Lee at Yale, Centre at Boston College, Virginia at Columbia and Clemson at George Washington.

For some reason or other, Greasy Neale kept Patsy Slate, the Mountaineers' highly-touted halfback, on the bench for the entire game with Pitt. Slate had a bad evening here in Pittsburgh against the Dukes, and according to folks who viewed the game with Wash-Jeff, he wasn't so hot that day, either.

Heinie Weisenbaugh and Harvey Rooker put on the old Tarentum High School act as Heinie ran 80 yards for his touchdown. He was preceded part of the way by Rooker, who saw to it that the immediate West Virginia secondary defensemen didn't get their mitts on the Dutchman, then Weisenbaugh passed Harvey and the big end took out one more Mountaineer and laid on him until Dutch had scored.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: AN EXTRAORDINARY MEMORY—Timothy D. Avadhani, who does not know any other language except his mother tongue, Gujarati, has trained his memory to such perfection that he is able to repeat from memory 1,000 sentences after hearing them once. He reproduces them in the order in which they were spoken without making a mistake. He can memorize also poems in any foreign language, and can repeat them instantly in any order required. He can instantly repeat any series of disconnected words. His mnemonics with regard to the calendar are based on arithmetical calculations, but his instant answers are made possible only by a highly concentrated memory. He has performed before many maharajahs and men of science, who have testified to his supernatural memorial powers.

TOMORROW: IRON ON FIRE.

SPORT VIGNETTES

The Naval Academy figures it has only three teams on its schedule to worry about this fall . . . They are Pitt, which will be met here next Saturday, Notre Dame and the Army . . . The Middies are better fixed in the matter of man power than they have been in years . . . Seven players in the starting lineup are in their third year. . . There are three complete backfields, with some spares left over, and two sets of linemen . . . The player who probably attracts the most attention is Gordon Chung-Hoon, the Hawaiian ace.

Carnegie Tech will meet a stubborn foe in Xavier at Cincinnati next Saturday . . . Last year's Tech team, which expected a romp against the Cincinnatians, had to hustle to score a 15-0 victory, and the Plaid will find the Xavierites a confident crew as a result this season . . . Pop Warner's Temple team, which ran into an unexpected 25-0 defeat at the hands of Tech last Saturday, plays the Haskell Indians in Philadelphia on Friday night . . . Haskell held the Owls to a 14-14 tie last fall.

Pop Warner was watching a professional football game in Philadelphia the other night when his eyes fell upon a familiar figure on the field . . . He recognized him as Horse Chase, one of his stars while he was coaching at Pitt . . . "Look at him out there," Pop laughed . . . "Same old Horse . . . Same old loafer, with hands on his hips, as he was when I had him at Pitt . . . I remember the day in practice when I sent a couple of subs out with a stretcher to ask him if he didn't want to be carried back to the bench . . . He sent them back to ask me to put a couple of pillows on it."

The Pitt-Navy football series had its inception back in 1912, in the pre-Warner days, and Navy won the first tilt, 13-6 . . . They played a scoreless tie the next year; Pitt won, 13-6, in 1914; by 47-12 in 1915, Warner's first year here, and the fifth game went to Pitt, 20-19, in 1916 . . . Now, after all of these lapsing years, the rivals come to grips again.

They tell a good story about the scoring of Carnegie Tech's second touchdown against Temple at the Stadium last Saturday . . . It will be recalled that Libby Lewis caught a pass for the first touchdown on the third play after Tech got the ball in the opening quarter . . . In the third period, Lewis was hurt and laid out on a Temple punt . . . As he got to his feet he began to limp about . . . On the next lineup, the Temple end playing opposite Lewis began to jockey for position with him . . . "Don't mind him," yelled the Temple quarterback . . . "He's hurt and can't run." . . . The ball was snapped and Lewis was allowed to go through into the Temple backfield, where he crossed over to the left side of the field and caught another pass for the second touchdown.

Lewis came out of the Notre Dame game here two years ago with a broken leg and didn't play last year . . . His injury in the Temple game was a badly knotted leg muscle.—HARRY KECK.

ALLDERDICE LOSES

DAY CHANGES W.-J. LINEUP

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 10.—Facing a crisis as the result of injuries to two fullbacks in last week's game with Waynesburg, Coach Hank Day yesterday started preparing his W. & J. varsity for Detroit Friday night by substituting radical changes over the lineup.

Bill King, Ellwood City veteran, aggravated an old leg injury that will probably place him on the sidelines Friday night, and Eddie Myers, a Lockhaven boy, playing his first year of varsity ball, dislocated an elbow, which will force him out of the game indefinitely.

Faced with a shortage of backs, Day yesterday moved to remedy the situation by moving Nick Isac, Detroit gridder, from quarterback to full, and bringing Bob Fife, an end, into the backfield for a ballcarrying job. Bubenheim, a fast and husky guard, may also be brought into the backfield.

FORMER STARS TO ACCOMPANY NAVY HERE

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Two naval officers who played in the first Navy-Pitt football game will accompany the Naval Academy football squad when it leaves here Thursday to meet the Panthers Saturday on their home field. Navy won the first game, played here in 1912, by a score of 13 to 6.

Lieut. Commander Harvey E. Overesch, graduate manager of athletics and football director at the academy, played at left end for Navy in the first clash between the two institutions. Lieut. Commander John H. Brown, executive officer, department of physical training, was at right guard in the Navy line. Both were selected by the late Walter Camp for one of his all-America football teams.

GET SKULL DRILL

The Navy varsity football players who participated in the Mercer game, attended a "skull" session yesterday during which errors made in the contest were stressed and did not report on the practice field.

While Coach Edgar E. (Rip) Miller was busy with the group the assistant coaches staged a scrimmage between the varsity players who did not get in the game and members of the "B" squad. Considerable attention was given to goal kicking as the Navy failed in three out of four chances to add an extra point Saturday after touchdowns.

Eastern Briefs

ITHACA, N. Y.—Cornell's varsity football team worked at top speed yesterday, foregoing the usual easy Monday drill, as Gil Dobie lined up plans for the important intersectional game with Michigan at Ann Arbor Saturday. Dobie had the first and second teams drilling on plans the Ithacans did not use in their first two games.

PRINCETON, N. J.—Weaknesses that cropped out in Princeton's play against Amherst occupied Coach Fritz Crisler's attention yesterday. A first-string line devoted the entire afternoon to smoothing out the timing of plays. Hot competition has developed for the guard positions with Crisler undecided which pair he'll use against Williams.

NEW YORK. — Despite their unexpected defeat by West Virginia Wesleyan, New York University's Violets began practice for the Lafayette game full of confidence in their ability to repel the Pennsylvanians. Howard Cann stressed forward passing practice in a long drill.

LEWISBURG. — (AP.) — Although they were defeated, Bucknell's football team has won the praise of Coach Carl Snavely for its play against Duquesne University. The coach criticised only two forward passes used in last Friday night's game. Bucknell lost 6 to 0.

STATE COLLEGE.—(AP.)—Penn State gridders were put through a stiff scrimmage yesterday as Coach Higgins revamped lineups of the first and second teams. No serious injuries were suffered by players in Saturday's 32-6 victory over Lebanon Valley.

Penn Announces Cut in Grid Ticket Prices

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—The University of Pennsylvania has announced revision of the cost of tickets for football games this season.

Announcement said a large majority of the 78,000 seats for the Franklin and Marshall game next Saturday will be sold for 50 cents, and the top price will be $1.00.

For the Dartmouth, Ohio State, Navy, Lafayette and Penn State games only 6,500 will be priced at the top rate of $3.00. Twenty thousand will be available at $2.00 and 33,000 at $1.00.

Herrera Winner, Referee Attacked

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Tony Herrera, of El Paso, Tex., Mexican lightweight, last night was awarded a referee's decision in 10 rounds over Wesley Ramey, Grand Rapids, rated the nation's second best lightweight by the National Boxing Association.

The decision of Referee Jack Aspery, Detroit, was greeted with howls of protest, and fans swarmed out of their seats, milling about the ring. As Aspery elbowed his way through the crowd to his dressing room, he was struck on the mouth by an unidentified fan. The blow drew blood.

ALLEGED HORSE DOPERS RULED OFF TURF

DETROIT, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Clarence E. Lehr, secretary of the Detroit Racing Association, today said that Robert Wingfield, trainer for the Audley Farms, and Thomas Murray, handled, had been ruled off the turf following charges that they had "doped" a horse during the recent race meet here. Their licenses were revoked.

Wingfield, Murray and Thomas Moore, the latter another handler, are held to the federal grand jury under $3,000 bond each on charges of possessing narcotics, following an investigation conducted here by federal officials.

Racing Director Joseph A. Murphy, who ordered the two men ruled out of racing, said no action was taken against Moore.

Joseph Bell, district agent for the United States Bureau of Narcotics, charged that at least 25 horses had been "doped" during the meeting at the Detroit Fair Grounds that ended yesterday with a charity program.

He refused to give the names of any of the horses, but declared the practice of administering stimulants the reason so many long shots won during the meeting.

PARKS WINS SCHENLEY OPEN

By TOM BIRKS

Sam Parks, Jr., professional at the South Hills Country Club, evidently kept his best performance of the season until last. Yesterday, the former captain of the University of Pittsburgh golf team, flashing a sub-par 131, won the 36-hole medal play Schenley Park open tourney. Last year he tied Ted Luther for the first prize money.

Parks had a tough struggle to win the laurels. Rader Jewett, of the Cedar Rocks Country Club, Wheeling W. Va., matched par with 132, while Perry Del Vecchio, of the Greensburg Country Club, and Fred Baroni, of Oakland Beach, former West Penn open champion, tied and split third and fourth prize money with 133s.

THREE IN TIE

Luther, Vince Eldred, the West Penn open champion, and Emil Loeffler were bunched together with 139s, and Johnny Capebianco, the little Aliquippa star, flashed once more the form that won him second money in the West Penn open tourney by scoring a 137.

When the morning round was completed, Baroni had a 63, three under par, and was leading Rader Jewett by a shot, with Parks and Capebianco two shots behind. Luther also was sitting good with a par 66.

Emil Loeffler, famous Oakmont professional and greenskeeper, was far from satisfied with the way No. 1 green is laid out and offered to rebuild the green without cost to the city.

Mayor Herron quickly took advantage of the offer, and will place a number of unemployed men at the disposal of Loeffler this winter, when a new green will be designed and built.

BROWN CHAMPION

Dick Brown, by defeating Carl Fry, 13 and 12, in the final round of the annual championship tournament, won the Alcoma Country Club title for 1933 yesterday. Dr. W. H. K. McDiarmid won the championship a year ago.

The defending champion was put out of this year's tourney in the quarter-final round by Homer Hochberg.

Finally Decides to Turn Pro

ELLSWORTH VINES, FORMER CHAMPION, JOINS BILL TILDEN

After many denials of such intentions, Vines, Coast tennis star, who has won the national singles twice, as well as the Wimbledon crown, but had a bad season this year, has admittedly joined the professional ranks. He will make his paid debut with Bill Tilden n New York's Madison Square Garden on January 10, it is announced. This is an International News Photograph Service picture.

STATE NETTER SCORES UPSET

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Oct. 10.—(AP.)—George W. Reily III, of Harrisburg, Pa., is the newest "upsetter" in White Sulphur tennis.

A newcomer to major tournament circles, Reily, a former Yale freshman player, trounced Manfred Goldman, New York veteran, 4-6, 6-4, 7-5, yesterday in the first round of the fifth annual Greenbrier autumn tennis championships.

Others who advanced include Wilmer Hines, of Columbia, S. C.; J. Gilbert Hall, of South Orange, N. J.; Dr. Philip B. Hawk, of New York, and Harvey Lake, of Ocean City, N. J. George M. Lott, Jr., Chicago Davis Cup star, and E. W. Feibleman, of New York, drew byes.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(INS.)—Negotiations were under way today for a 10-round bout December 8 between Max Schmeling, former heavyweight champion, and Tommy Loughran, of Philadelphia, at an indoor arena in New York.

The Christmas Fund will share in the proceeds.

Although neither fighter has signed, the managers of both have tentatively agreed to terms.

PURDUE FEARS MINNESOTA

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Lacking the punch which characterized last year's team, Purdue University's Boilermakers are none too cheerful over their prospects Saturday when they run up against the husky Minnesota Gophers in a game which opens the Big Ten football campaign for the Hoosiers.

Umpires' Association Nominates Officers

Officers were nominated by the Pittsburgh Umpires' Association as the body met at the Hotel Henry last night. Twenty-six umpires were in attendance.

Steve Cox was nominated for the president's chair, unopposed. James Bond and James Ahearn were nominated for the vice presidency; C. A. Colmery, secretary for the past nine years, was unopposed for the office, and Al. Jessup received the nomination for treasurer. The election will be held October 23.

SPORT COMMENT

was lauded for dropping a liner here one day, in order to make a double play, but it developed that he had been coached by Hughey Critz. A smart play was credited to Ralph Boyle at Forbes Field when he failed to catch a fly ball on which the winning run was going home, hoping to catch a couple of Pirates in Merkle oversights on the bases, but it was Johnny Frederick who directed the maneuver.

Travis Jackson

Belated World Series stories reveal that the man behind Lefty O'Doul's famous pinch hit, which broke up the second game, was Travis Jackson. After Luke Sewell had dropped the foul tip that would have been O'Doul's third strike if held, Lefty walked over to Jackson, who was awaiting his turn at bat, and asked if he had noticed anything wrong with his swing. Jackson told him he was coming up in the middle of it and not cutting straight through. O'Doul returned to the plate, cut through on the next pitch and won the ball game. Incidentally, O'Doul asserts that Sewell didn't muff that foul tip, because he never got his hands on it; that it struck high on his chest protector, and that the Washington catcher was merely bluffing about an injured hand in order to give Alvin Crowder a breathing spell on the mound.

And finally, it might be remarked, that the man responsible for the eleventh-inning double play that saved the fourth game for the Giants was none other than Charley Dressen, a lowly sub not even in the series. Dressen had played with Pinch-hitter Bolton in the Southern Association. He ran out and told Manager Terry Bolton was slow of foot, could be doubled up easily, and advised that he made to hit the ball on the ground with Ryan and Jackson staying back for a double play. The rest is history. Dressen, though he never played, earned his share right there.

FORTUNE SHIFTS FOR PAIR OF PITT SUBS

Cannon fodder for two years, two Pitt halfbacks, both seniors, this season are proving of real value to Jock Sutherland's Panthers. They are Howdy O'Dell, now considered the regular left halfback, and Dick Matesic, Mike Sebastian's rugged understudy. O'Dell and Matty teamed up for two years on Pitt's third and fourth strings, and in all that time they seldom had a chance to show their real ability.

During that period, the practice team of which they were members saw little service except as opposition to the first and second elevens in scrimmages. And the two halfbacks stood for quite a lacing, for while their opponents had replacements, they had to stay in there and take it during the entire practice drill each afternoon.

O'DELL WINS JOB, MATESIC ABLE RESERVE

But conditions have changed. O'Dell now is trotting up and down the practice field each day behind the first-team line, his all-around play having been better than that of any of the other left halfback candidates, and Matesic is rumbling along with Andy Gustafson's shock troops. O'Dell has demonstrated that he is a real threat in the open field and a rare pass receiver. Matesic is a big, powerful southpaw, weighing more than 185 pounds and possessing a fair amount of speed. Dick is an accurate passer, and his ability to throw from the left side makes him an ideal right halfback.

Dick Matesic

Should Sebastian be out of commission, Coach Sutherland probably would consider it pretty safe to use Matesic. The big Wheeling youth might not keep the crowd on its feet with long runs from scrimmage, but neither would he give Pitt supporters any anxious moments or heartaches, for he is as sure-handed a back as ever graced a Panther gridiron. For two years Dick was held back because of a tendency to become excited, but he has steadied down and now goes about his business with all the confidence of an old campaigner.

Western Briefs

COLUMBUS.—(AP.)—Coach Sam Willaman held only a light practice yesterday just to iron out the wrinkles that showed in the 75-0 trimming Ohio State gave Virginia Saturday. Looking ahead toward Vanderbilt next Saturday and Michigan and Northwestern after that, Willaman put his charges through drills and dummy scrimmage.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind.—(AP.)—Coach E. C. Hayes hunted backfield reserves as Indiana crippled football squad engaged in light practice yesterday. Veller and McDonald, first and second-string quarterbacks, respectively, and Walker, regular fullback, were said definitely to be unavailable for the Notre Dame game Saturday. More weight in the line was made possible as Reed Kelso, 225-pound center from New Albany, Ind., reported for practice.

CHICAGO.—(AP.)—Better timing between the line and backfield was emphasized yesterday by Coach Clark Shaughnessy as the Chicago eleven resumed practice. He believes the Maroon plays should work smoother. Merritt Bush, right tackle, who has been nursing an injured ankle, was back in uniform, but will have to fight for his old job which has been filled by John Rice.

MINNEAPOLIS.—(AP.)—Boils paid Minnesota another visit today and dropped Babe LeVoir backwards in his pursuit of Glenn Seidel, fellow sophomore, for the quarterback job with the Gophers. LeVoir returned to confinement at the student infirmary.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — (AP.) — Concentrating on line plays, the Illinois varsity went through a snappy scrimmage yesterday in preparation for the homecoming game here with Wisconsin. The game opens the Big Ten campaign for both teams.

MADISON, Wis.—(AP.)—The reserves occupied Coach Spears' attention at Wisconsin yesterday while the regulars were taking a rest in the form of signal practice. With the exception of Capt. Smith, fullback, who suffered a cut over his eye, all the regulars came out of the Marquette game without injury.

Local Clubs Get A. M. A. Title Events

Swimming, wrestling and volleyball championship events have been awarded and a committee appointed to arrange for the adding of water polo to the title program by the Allegheny Mountain Association of the A. A. U. Championship competitions were awarded as follows:

QUARTERBACKS' IMPORTANCE GROWS

Georgia Tech Coach, Member, All-America Board of Football. (Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.)

Modern conditions of wide distribution of football material have brought the quarterback into a position of importance he never before has experienced in the history of the game. Since every major college in the country now has enough good players well schooled in fundamentals to assure a good team, the ability of the quarterback largely determines which team will win in any given game, or win most games in the season.

Bill Alexander

As reports come in from football centers all over the country, it is striking that in nearly every instance no scarcity of material is reported. In addition, most of the squads possess men skilled in kicking and passing, according to reports from early games. This condition results from the thousands of high schools that now are playing good football under excellent coaching. They are annually sending thousands of boys to college who have ability for football that 20 years ago would have made them outstanding. Now they simply are one of the herd.

CONDITIONS CHANGED

In the past, many colleges rode to the top in their sections or to national fame because they were able to gather most of the good prep school players in their territory. That will happen no more. Even the small colleges now have good material.

Some of the big institutions will have 60 good players, while some of their less fortunate neighbors may have only 15 or 20. This seems a bigger advantage than it really is. A football game lasts only one hour of playing time, and only 11 men can be used at one time. It is entirely possible for 11 men in perfect physical condition to go at top speed for one hour and at the same time outplay two or three fresh teams that may be thrown at them.

It is evident, then, that the deciding factor in winning or losing games is likely to be the quarterback. Boys who have brains, boys who understand what the situation may be at any given juncture and what plays to call, boys who have that quality that gives their teammates confidence in their judgment, will hold the balance of power.

THREE LEADERS NEEDED

A real championship team needs three such men, one to call the offensive signals; one to direct the defense, and one to act as captain. Defensive strategy and signals are as important as offensive strategy and signals. A captain must deal with the officials, and often has a decision to make that will affect the winning or losing of a game. He must be a master of the rules. He will be the man to keep order on the team, and to inspire it to extra effort.

It is possible to help a quarterback, a defensive signal-caller or a captain by coaching and by advice, but it is impossible to develop a good one unless he has brains and personality to start with. Leadership cannot be manufactured. Lucky is the squad that possesses even one such boy.

GRAPHIC GOLF

THE INSIDE OUT ARC

Making use of the left side in the golf stroke with its backhanded pull on the club through the medium of the left arm does much to bring the clubhead onto the ball in an inside out arc. Naturally, there are other factors to be considered such as a forward shift of the hips at the start of the downswing, which, in turn, exerts a tug at the left shoulder muscles and a movement of the bodily weight toward the line of flight. The right arm, too, must return to the side to aid in keeping this inside out groove in the manner of Jones' above. Left to flap around in the breeze it is likely to swerve the left arm out of its guiding path and the clubhead will come onto the ball from the outside in, one of the main causes of a slice. This very same fault often is caused by an attempt to throw the clubhead at the ball ahead of the hands and without the aid of a left side that is exerting a pulling pressure on the clubhead. Approach the ball from inside the line of flight and hit as straight on the line as possible with the clubhead aligned square to the ball.

O'DOUL TO BE FETED

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 10.—(INS.)—A gala homecoming celebration was being prepared today for Lefty O'Doul, of the Giants, pinch-hit hero of the second World Series game. O'Doul, former pitcher with the San Francisco Seals, will be given a civic welcome Saturday.

BUSINESS :: Price Increases Exceed Rise in Earnings Of Workers

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

RISING PRICES have been running a close race with expanding earnings of industrial workers. Until the end of July the recovery program had been able to keep the growth of wages at a higher level than the increase in the cost of living. But in August, the reduction in industrial activity was responsible for the fact that prices got ahead. This resulted in a small decline in the real purchasing power of the average worker.

This is shown by statistics gathered by the National Industrial Conference Board.

The study shows that the purchasing power of the individual industrial wage earner, as measured by average real weekly earnings, declined 1.8 per cent in August, according to the date on monthly changes in wages and cost of living compiled by the Conference Board.

By real earnings, the board means the ability of workers to buy the commodities needed in their ordinary life. A worker's earnings in dollars might increase but higher prices might make his ability to buy less instead of more. This was the case in August.

Total Purchasing Power Increased

THE TOTAL purchasing power of the industrial wage earning population increased in August, because of an increase of 8.6 per cent in the number of employed workers, but the purchasing power of the individual worker diminished, because of the rise in living costs.

While the average weekly earnings increased 0.5 per cent, the cost of living increased 2.3 per cent. The net result was the loss of 1.8 per cent in the purchasing power of the individual worker.

Cost of Living Passes Earnings

IN DISCUSSING the trend of wages and living costs the board said.

"In the first three months of the business upturn that began in April the end of real wages, or individual purchasing power, was upward. Average real weekly earnings increased 6.2 per cent in April, 7.8 per cent in May, and 9.6 per cent in June, the percentage increase in each case being measured from the level of the preceding month. The cost of living started to rise in May and continued upward in June, the increase in each month, however, being less than 1 per cent.

"In July the advance of real wages, or individual purchasing power, was checked. Average real weekly wages remained practically stationary in July registering a negligible increase of 0.2 per cent. The cost of living rose 3.2 per cent in July. In the next month, August, the upward trend of real wages was reversed, and for the first time since arch the Conference Board figures showed a decline in average real weekly earnings."

STOCK MARKET TRENDLESS, NARROW

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Good, hand and indifferent influences today apparently failed to stir securities markets from a lethargy that held prices generally in a narrow and trendless range.

Minor irregularities spotted the stock list in the early hours and the activity was about as low as that of yesterday. There were occasion flurries, both upward and downward, but none of them seemed to get very far, and most of the speculators resumed their places on the sidelines to wait for "something to happen." Grains and cotton were a little easier at times and other commodities were irregular. Bonds were mixed, although some of the utilities improved. The dollars was barely steady in foreign exchange dealings.

Utility shares generally were steady to firm. Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, North American, Columbia Gas, American Water Works and National Power and Light were up fractionally to a point. Du Pont, Montgomery Ward, Santa Fe, Johns-Manville and some others were moderately higher. United States Industrial Alcohol, National Distillers and American Commercial Alcohol sagged a point or more. An easier tone was displayed by United States Steel, Union Pacific, New York Central, American Telephone, American Smelting, Case, Allied Chemical, American Can and Chrysler.

Stocks paid little attention to the decline of 114,704 tons in the United States Steel backlog. The decrease in unfilled tonnage had been expected. The total of 1,775,740 tons was a new low record for this barometer.

Recent hesitancy of the markets was attributed in some quarters partly to talk of possible nearby refunding operations by the government. Word from London that there was some expectation in financial houses there that the administration might decide to refund more than $6,000,000,000 of Liberty Fourth 4¼s was of much interest to bankers here.

While Washington's plans for future financing operations apparently are not known in Wall street, there were reports today that consideration had been given to a proposal for the conversion of some $2,000,000,000 of the Liberty loan issue on a basis of 3 to 3¼ per cent with a maturity ranging from five to 10 years. It was not believed, generally, that an attempt would be made to convert the entire issue. The Fourth 4¼s are callable by six months notification on October 15.

A partial conversion, though, would not involve a formal calling of the loan, but would entail only an offer to convert on a lower interest basis and would be optional with present holders.

Some bankers were of the opinion the Treasury would have little difficulty in effecting a conversion program if—and this if, they believe, is the crux of the whole matter—some statement is made by the administration regarding adherence to a sound money policy.

Followers of the utility stocks were cheered by the news from Birmingham, Ala., that the voters of that city had rejected a proposal for municipal ownership of the public utility systems there. Had the electric power proposal carried, the government's hydro-electric plant at Muscle Shoals would have been called upon to furnish power for the city.

WHEAT CLOSES NERVOUS, OFF

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—Lowest prices since June distinguished wheat dealings today, liquidation broadening enough to carry the market down a maximum of about 3 cents under yesterday's finish.

Most of the time trade sentiment was inclined to be bearish owing to absence of any new definite stimulating factors. Reversal of market position, however, by some previous speculative sellers led to late rallies.

Wheat closed nervous, 1@1⅝ under yesterday's finish. Corn ⅜ off to ¼ up, oats ¼@½ down and provisions unchanged to a setback of 17 cents.

OUTPUT DROPS WHILE JOBS INCREASE

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, N. Y. University.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Figures now at hand show that September continued the recession in industrial activity which began in August. Probably industrial production fell off at least 6 per cent. Factory employment, however, increased about 5 per cent, indicating higher labor cost per unit of output.

The September outputs of pig iron and steel declined quite sharply, considering the fact that the season calls for some increase. The general picture of the iron and steel industry is conveyed by saying production was about 65 per cent of "normal" in August, and fell to about 54 per cent of normal in September.

Railway car loadings also failed to make the usual seasonal gain.

INVENTORIES ACCUMULATE

This is as was expected. The preceding spurt had been "stimulated" by a declining valuation of the dollar, and anticipated inflation and rising production costs under NRA. This led to over-production and accumulation of inventories, which are now seen in gasoline, cotton goods, steel, flour, etc.

Strikes have also been multiplied, and these have naturally restricted production.

And on all hands uncertainty as to money and operating expenses was tended to slow up industry.

Wholesale commodity prices were a little higher at the end of the month than at the beginning. A representative bill of goods which would have cost $8.99 on September 1, cost $9.05 on October 1.

"The P-V line" barometer declined again in September, reflecting a weakening of demand for commodities relatively to supply pressure.

MORE RECESSION SEEN

The recent trend suggests some further recession. But the strenuous activity in administering stimulants may produce spurts from time to time. And there is always the possibility that a return to more drastic inflationary tactics may occur and produce a renewed outburst of speculative activity.

Propably the outstanding development during September was a growing opposition to the more extreme methods of inflation, and the beginning of some organized activity among sound money advocates.

As the setback in business developed there was more talk about monetary uncertainty, the depression of "heavy industries" and the desirability of stabilization.

While such talk may have affected the prices of some stocks unfavorably, I am inclined to think the attention to "uncertainty' and need of "stabilization" was chiefly a result of the general recession than the cause.

"SOFT PEDAL" SEEN

Any "stabilization" of the currency has been, and is likely to be, only negative. We will merely "soft pedal" inflation, meanwhile working harder than ever on the credit pump.

The past week has been under the influence of the August-September reactionary factors, but some seasonal gains appeared.

Wholesale trade was mostly dull and spotty, being largely confined to "fill in" orders. Retail trade was fair, at about the level of a year ago if measured in dollars, but lower in quantity of goods sold.

But electric power output was about unchanged, and automobile production spurted. Building activity seems to be picking up a little, and lumber production and orders increased.

It seems fair to say that the decline in business activity has slowed up. Despite growing consumer resistance to high prices, and produce resistance to high costs, we may expect spurts in business activity caused by government loans, government spending for public works, and appeals to "buy now" again.

MENTION THE SUN-TELEGRAPH WHEN ANSWERING ADVERTISEMENTS

Simple Rules and Prize List for COMICRAX Contest

(1) "Comicrax," the new pastime, will run as a weekly contest in the Daily Sun-Telegraph—appearing on the Want Ad pages. (Second weekly contest begins Monday, October 9).

(2) The contest will consist of 8 Daily cartoons, each drawn to represent some popular phrase or "by-word" and with each cartoon there will appear a list of these popular phrases in which list the correct answer for the cartoon of the day will be included.

(3) The prizes to be awarded by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph will total $100.00 weekly as follows:

First Prize	$25.00
Second Prize	$15.00
Third Prize	$10.00
4th & 5th Prizes, $5.00 each,	$10.00
6th, 7th, 8th, 9th and 10th Prizes, $5.00 each	$15.00
25 Prizes, $1.00 each	$25.00
35 Cash Prizes totaling	$100.00

(4) These prizes will be awarded to the entrants who submit the most nearly correct and neatest sets of answers in each weekly series and who submit the neat letters of not more than 50 words on the question "Which Want Ad appeared in the Sun-Telegraph during the current week most interested you and why?"—attaching the Want Ad or a copy of it to your letter and giving the date and classification of its appearance.

(5) The first group of cartoons—8 in all—must be submitted as a single unit and distinctly separate from any contest cartoons to appear in succeeding weeks' issues of the Sun-Telegraph. The sets of answers for the second week's "Comicrax" contest must be in the hands of the Comicrax Editor, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., before midnight, Tuesday, October 17th.

(6) The judges will be selected by the Sun-Telegraph and their decisions will be final. The Sun-Telegraph will not enter in any correspondence about letters or cartoons in this "Comicrax" contest. Contest is open to everyone in the reading area of this newspaper except employees and their families of the Sun-Telegraph or of Radio Station WCAE affiliated with the Sun-Telegraph.

(7) It is not necessary to buy the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in order to compete. Copies of the Sun-Telegraph are on file at public libraries and may be examined without charge. Copies may also be examined at the Sun-Telegraph. Contestants may send tracings of the contest cartoons if they so wish.

OUTPUT DROPS WHILE JOBS INCREASE

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, N. Y. University.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Figures now at hand show that September continued the recession in industrial activity which began in August. Probably industrial production fell off at least 6 per cent. Factory employment, however, increased about 5 per cent, indicating higher labor cost per unit of output.

The September outputs of pig iron and steel declined quite sharply, considering the fact that the season calls for some increase. The general picture of the iron and steel industry is conveyed by saying production was about 65 per cent of "normal" in August, and fell to about 54 per cent of normal in September.

Railway car loadings also failed to make the usual seasonal gain.

INVENTORIES ACCUMULATE

This is as was expected. The preceding spurt had been "stimulated" by a declining valuation of the dollar, and anticipated inflation and rising production costs under NRA. This led to over-production and accumulation of inventories, which are now seen in gasoline, cotton goods, steel, flour, etc.

Strikes have also been multiplied, and these have naturally restricted production.

And on all hands uncertainty as to money and operating expenses was tended to slow up industry.

Wholesale commodity prices were a little higher at the end of the month than at the beginning. A representative bill of goods which would have cost $8.99 on September 1, cost $9.05 on October 1.

"The P-V line" barometer declined again in September, reflecting a weakening of demand for commodities relatively to supply pressure.

MORE RECESSION SEEN

The recent trend suggests some further recession. But the strenuous activity in administering stimulants may produce spurts from time to time. And there is always the possibility that a return to more drastic inflationary tactics may occur and produce a renewed outburst of speculative activity.

Propably the outstanding development during September was a growing opposition to the more extreme methods of inflation, and the beginning of some organized activity among sound money advocates.

As the setback in business developed there was more talk about monetary uncertainty, the depression of "heavy industries" and the desirability of stabilization.

While such talk may have affected the prices of some stocks unfavorably, I am inclined to think the attention to "uncertainty' and need of "stabilization" was chiefly a result of the general recession than the cause.

"SOFT PEDAL" SEEN

Any "stabilization" of the currency has been, and is likely to be, only negative. We will merely "soft pedal" inflation, meanwhile working harder than ever on the credit pump.

The past week has been under the influence of the August-September reactionary factors, but some seasonal gains appeared.

Wholesale trade was mostly dull and spotty, being largely confined to "fill in" orders. Retail trade was fair, at about the level of a year ago if measured in dollars, but lower in quantity of goods sold.

But electric power output was about unchanged, and automobile production spurted. Building activity seems to be picking up a little, and lumber production and orders increased.

It seems fair to say that the decline in business activity has slowed up. Despite growing consumer resistance to high prices, and produce resistance to high costs, we may expect spurts in business activity caused by government loans, government spending for public works, and appeals to "buy now" again.

Simple Rules and Prize List for COMICRAX Contest

(1) "Comicrax," the new pastime, will run as a weekly contest in the Daily Sun-Telegraph—appearing on the Want Ad pages, (Second weekly contest begins Monday, October 9).

(2) The contest will consist of 6 Daily cartoons, each drawn to represent some popular phrase or "by-word" and with each cartoon there will appear a list of these popular phrases in which list the correct answer for the cartoon of the day will be included.

(3) The prizes to be awarded by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph will total $100.00 weekly as follows:

First Prize	$25.00
Second Prize	$15.00
Third Prize	$10.00
4th & 5th Prizes, $5.00 each,	$10.00
6th, 7th, 8th, 9th and 10th Prizes, $3.00 each	$15.00
25 Prizes, $1.00 each	$25.00
35 Cash Prizes totaling	$100.00

(4) These prizes will be awarded to the entrants who submit the most nearly correct and neatest sets of answers in each weekly series and who submit the best letters of not more than 50 words on the question "Which Want Ad appeared in the Sun-Telegraph during the current week most interested you and why?"—attaching the Want Ad or a copy of it to your letter and giving the date and classification of its appearance.

(5) The first group of cartoons—6 in all—must be submitted as a single unit and distinctly separate from any contest cartoons to appear in succeeding weeks' issues of the Sun-Telegraph. The sets of answers for the second week's "Comicrax" contest must be in the hands of the Comicrax Editor, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., before midnight, Tuesday, October 17th.

(6) The judges will be selected by the Sun-Telegraph and their decisions will be final. The Sun-Telegraph will not enter in any correspondence about letters or cartons in this "Comicrax" contest. The contest is open to everyone in the reading area of this newspaper except employees and their families, of the Sun-Telegraph or of Radio Station WCAE, affiliated with the Sun-Telegraph.

(7) It is not necessary to buy the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in order to complete. Copies of the Sun-Telegraph are on file at public libraries and may be examined without charge. Copies may also be examined at the Sun-Telegraph. Contestants may send tracings of the contest cartoons if they so wish.

CHAPTER XXIX.

Durant opened other envelopes. Would he attend Phil Ferguson's bachelor dinner on next Wednesday night? Would he dine with Mrs. Rennsaler Curwin on Friday?

Despite himself, a flush of pleasure appeared in his cheeks.

"Good news?" asked Gertie.

"I think so," he replied. He picked up his coffee cup and drank deeply. Then he set it down. "You see, Gertie, lots of my friends haven't been too nice to me. They considered me the associate of gangsters, of public enemies. Now, because I have saved a man they all know, they see that my profession has its uses. I'm by way of being a bit of a hero."

"And you like that?"

"I'm human. Of course I do. I like to stand well with my friends. I don't care for the newspaper stuff. But I don't mind that, either."

"I shouldn't think you would. They certainly boost you. First thing you know they'll be running you for mayor."

"Nonsense!" said Durant. But the flush in his cheeks deepened.

"A lady called here yesterday. So did young Siddall. And they both telephoned half a dozen times. In fact, she telephoned half an hour ago."

"Miss Leonard?"

"The bright boy guessed right the very first time. She couldn't have been more worried. As for young Siddall, he wanted to cry all over the place. You certainly won a friend there."

"I suppose so," said Durant. "Anyone else phone?"

"Ask me who didn't. I tell you, the town's gone nutty about you. And Tony Gazotti—he thinks maybe somebody's done something to you, and it was all I could do to keep him out of your bedroom."

"He was up here?"

"Everyone's been up here but I told them I was the nurse—I wouldn't let the doctor put one in here—and I wouldn't let them wake you up."

SUE GRATEFUL

"You're a great girl, Gertie."

"You told me that two nights ago, and I told you then I'd rather you thought me cute."

"You're cute, you're lovely, you're brave. Will that do?"

"For the moment. But in a little while you could think up more things, couldn't you?"

"I can think of them right now," he replied.

Layton came out upon the porch. "Miss Sue is on the telephone, sir."

Durant rose and walked into the living room. Out of the corner of his eye he saw that Gertie's eyes were following him, and that her body was tense. "Hello, Sue," he said.

He heard a sigh of relief.

"I thought you'd never wake up, Jack; you must have been worn out."

"I'm told the doctor gave me a hypo. I'm also told that I must never quit drinking so suddenly. So I think I'll not start drinking again, so I won't have to quit that way. You're nice to phone, Sue."

"Nice? I'm nice? After what you did for me—for Tom. I can't wait to see you to tell you my gratitude. And my wonderment. I don't know how you did it, nor does Tom."

"I trust his lawyers no longer mind the mention of my name in connection with their client," he laughed.

"What fools they were. What fools we all were. What a triple idiot I was! To judge you harshly because you did the things you did. Why, if you'd stuck to the career of your old firm, Tom would have been convicted of that girl's murder. If you can't forgive the rest of the world for its cruel opinion of you, you'll forgive me, won't you?"

"You know that," he told her.

TOM'S BEST MAN

"Are you coming to see me?" she asked.

"Am I invited?"

"Of course you are, Jack." Her voice was husky with emotion. "Jack, I broke my engagement with you, didn't I?"

"Need you remind me?" he asked.

"I wonder if I made a mistake," she whispered. "Would you want to discuss the matter with me?"

"It isn't debatable," he said. "You didn't make any mistake. You got a much finer man. Congratulate Siddall for me; and accept my own belated good wishes. I hope you and Tom won't forget to invite me to the wedding."

"Oh." Her voice was blank, expressionless. Then she rallied. "Tom asked me today, this very morning, if I wouldn't set the date. I told him I'd let him know this afternoon. I think the middle of September is a good time, don't you? Practically everybody is back in town by then. I think he wants you as his best man, Jack."

"I couldn't be more flattered, Sue. I don't quite know my own plans, but if I'm not abroad I'd certainly be honored. I'll be seeing you."

"I should hope so," she said. "Goodby."

He went out on the porch and sat down at the breakfast table.

"So she's going to marry Siddall, is she?" asked Gertie. "Oh, I suppose I could be ladylike and pretend I didn't hear you talking to her, but I heard every word you said. Sounded to me as though you were very politely turning her down."

"I don't know what would make you think a ridiculous thing like that."

"The wish is mama to the thought, isn't it?" she retorted. "Anyway, that doesn't matter. But she is going to marry Siddall?"

"That seems to be the scheme," he replied.

DOCTOR CALLS

She buttered a muffin, carefully applied marmalade to it, and took a healthy bite. She chewed the morsel vigorously and swallowed it.

"You seem to be standing it okay," she said.

"Oh." Her voice was as blank as Sue's had been a moment before.

Layton came out upon the porch again. "The newspapermen are frantic, sir," he said. The afternoon papers are going to press. They want some statement from you, anything at all, they say. And Dr. Glendenning is in the living room."

"Send the doctor out here," said Durant. "And tell the newspapermen I'll have a statement for them in half an hour . . . . Good morning, doctor," he greeted the physician. "I hope you'll find nothing wrong with me."

"I don't even intend to look for anything," said the doctor. "Just a routine call. As long as you slept you were all right. But if you're going to go through other strenuous cases, either don't begin drinking or don't stop too suddenly."

"Much obliged for the advice. I think perhaps I won't start. Don't you want to look me over?"

The doctor shook his head.

"Think I'm in shape for anything?"

"Anything within reason," smiled the doctor. "Good morning. Good morning, Miss Waxted. If you ever want to become a nurse I'll try to get you placed without a course of study. You couldn't be more competent."

"Thank you," smiled the girl. "Nice old geezer," she commented as he departed. "No high-hat, no lifted eyebrows because I wasn't Mrs. Durant. I like that old guy."

"So do I," said Durant. "He seems to think I'm in condition for anything."

HER ONLY CONCERN

"Good Lord, you aren't going to do anything now! I don't care what he says. You need a lot of rest."

"I thought a change of air and scenery might do me good," said Durant.

"You're going away?" she asked.

"Not from you. You're going with me. How about Paris?"

White-faced, she stared at him. "Me? With you? I'd love it. But they'd talk about you."

"Of course they would. Do you mind?"

"If it wouldn't hurt you, I wouldn't care. Care? I'm so crazy about you I don't care about anything but you."

"I feel the same way about you, Gertie." He rose and bent over her. Their lips were still touching when Layton came out upon the porch.

"Excuse me, Mr. Durant. I didn't realize—I'm sorry—but the newspapermen beg you to say something."

Durant kissed the girl deliberately again.

"Tell them, Layton, that Mr. and Mrs. Durant are sailing for Europe tonight. They will be married somewhere in New York this afternoon. That ought to be enough."

He bent to kiss the girl again but she pushed him from her.

"You can't marry me. I mean—I'd go with you without that. You don't have to wreck your career again. Why, it will ruin you with all your friends to marry me. I—I'm not even a lady."

"You little snob!" he laughed. "So you're not a lady? Well, you'll do till a lady comes along."

THE END.

PRELUDES TO AMERICAN REVOLUTION

England reduced France's hope for an Indian empire. So she did with "New France" in North America. Her steadily tightening grip over the colonies antagonized the Americans. The English attempt to enforce the imposed restrictions by military, stationed in Boston, was in vain. The Boston massacre (above)—clash between Bostonians and British troops (1770)—and the famous "Tea Party" (right)—dumping the taxed tea into the sea by Bostonians disguised as Indians in 1773—were historic expressions of defiance to English orders. These open hostilities widened the gap between the mother country and colonies, breaking out into the Revolutionary War and costing part of its North American possessions. (World History)

THE LYTEL GESTE OF ROBIN HOOD

Wynkyn de Worde printed (1495) a string of popular rude ballads about the gallant outlaw hunting the depths of Sherwood and Barnsdale forests. They reflect the seething discontent, feeling and thinking of the oppressed common people among whom—like all ballads—these originated. Garnett: English Literature

U. S. MARINES CAPTURING JOHN BROWN

Kansas territory became the scene of violence after passage of the Kansas-Nebraska bill (1854), introducing slavery on theretofore free land (so acknowledged by Missouri compromise, 1820). The disturbances spread to other states, causing general lawlessness.

One fanatical abolitionist was John Brown, finally captured by U. S. Marines after his raid on Harpers Ferry. He was tried in Virginian courts and hanged for treason. Later he was hailed a martyr and became a sort of patron saint of the Northern Army in the Civil War. (U. S. History)

CROSS SECTION OF A LEAF

Epidermis is the impervious upper and lower membrane perforated by the guard cell regulated stomata (pores, about 320,000 per sq. in.). These lead to air spaces among the chlorenchyma, grouped in the palisade and spongy tissues.

Oxygen, carbon dioxide, water vapors of atmosphere meet the salt solution, taken by the roots, in the disc-shaped green chloroplastids—these are in the cytoplasm of the chlorenchyma—and sugars are produced under influence of light energy (photosynthesis). Proteins are made by adding nitrogen and other elements (protein synthesis).

Products are distributed by the phloem for fuel, growth, storage: oxygen is liberated, used partly for respiration. (See Pict. Education, Sept. 22).

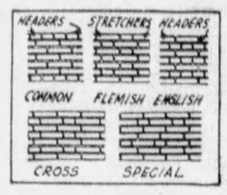
MORTAR JOINTS

Bricks are laid in mortar: 1 part lime, 4 parts sand (not strong, but sticks well) or 1 part cement, 2 to 4 parts sand, 10% lime (strong mortar). Coloring matter may be added for decorative purposes. The usual joints are shown above. (General Science)



BRICK BONDS

Bricks are bonded for design and strength. Five common bonds are shown, consisting of various alternations of headers (bricks crosswise) and stretchers (bricks lengthwise of the wall).

WALL TIES

They are used to anchor the face brick to the stronger backwall. Metal ties are heavy strips of galvanized steel; clipped or blind headers are bricks placed diagonally with corners clipped.

HALLOGENS (Chemistry)

They are fluorine (pale yellowish gas at room temp.), chlorine (greenish yellow gas), bromine (red liquid), iodine (purplish red crystals). Atomic structure, number and valence are shown.

All protons (+ electricity) and half of electrons (— electricity) are in nucleus, half electrons (e) in several shells or energy levels (marked by circles) as satellites (Prof. Bohr's system).

The atomic number is the positive nuclear charge.

The electronic valence of hallogens is 1—, meaning that they tend to borrow one electron to complete the seven satellites (valence electrons) in the outermost shell to 8. This is shown in the Lewis system: Symbols F, Cl, Br, I surrounded with the valence electrons.

THE HEMLOCK (Tsuga Canadensis)

It belongs to the family Pinaceae, genus Tsuga which has eight species. The hemlock has dark green flat needles with white streaks on lower surface; needles appear two ranked. Staminate flowers are globous, yellow; pistillate are oblong, pale green. Fruit is a small cone, maturing in one season; its scales contain the winged seeds.

The range of the hemlock is from Nova Scotia to Alabama, found on moist locations, northern slopes, ravines, banks of streams. Its wood is light, hard, not strong, brittle; it is used for frame work, paper pulp and laths. Its bark is rich in tannic acid and volatile oils. The hemlock is one of the most attractive coniferous evergreen trees.

The Big and Little Slammers

We have opened the contract bridge season by buying a comfortable seat cushion for the dummy's throne.

Some remarkable changes have occurred in the game since we first started shuffling out of turn.

First of all, first hand no longer opens its concealed batteries on a strong mitt. Third hand no longer passes on a weak one. And very few deals are tossed in without somebody oiling up the diving board.

Which destroys all the old flora and fauna and builds up an entirely new filing index of misinformation.

The result is that four people will bench themselves for a neat but sincere whirl at contract. Before the evening has been tortured for 10 minutes they discover they are playing four different systems, no two of which are alike.

Mrs. Pettingporch favors the imported Russian plan of the bidding approach with the cautious Yarborough. She doesn't bid unless her hand is so full of pictures it only requires Whistler's mother to be the Louvre.

Mr. Jiggtotts is the brash academic student. He doesn't care what happens because half of it is going to happen to his partner.

Then Mr. Fruzz learned his game in the Maine summer colony while waiting for his sunburn to get better. He is ignorant of all systems except his own and doesn't understand his own. His wife is really a good player which is the reason she stays at home and reads a book.

And, finally, the fourth hand is the charming hostess, Miss Balloo, who plays the Simperson brand of dishing up hopeless finesses. She is always playing out of the wrong hand like a crap-shooter with two pairs of dice.

But they assure the hostess they had a perfectly delightful evening and it is just too bad the sandwiches were mouldy. Then they borrowed three umbrellas because it wasn't raining when they came in.

Some people claim that contract is a pastime. Not wishing to make a hasty denunciation we will refer the entire matter to a vote of the states.

Air Pollution

The Effect of Smoke on Health Is Deservedly Receiving Greater Attention.

For the benefit, primarily, of the American Public Health Association, which is holding its annual convention in Indianapolis this week, H. B. Meller and L. B. Sisson, of the Mellon Institute for Industrial Research, have issued a joint statement concerning the progress that is being made towards the smokeless and dustless operation of industrial and commercial power and heating plants.

We all know that smoke soils clothing and buildings and the furnishings of homes, that it destroys vegetation, and is a general nuisance. But what has it to do with health?

The late Dr. Charles B. Maits, director of the Department of Public Health, read a paper before the Allegheny County Medical Society on November 17, 1931, in which he pointed out a remarkable correspondence between the precipitation of solid matter from the air of Pittsburgh and the pneumonia death rate. He stated that in 1923, when the death rate from pneumonia in Pittsburgh was 374.4 per 100,000 of population, the highest ever recorded, the amount of solid matter, due to smoke, which rained on the city averaged 1,400 tons per square mile, while in 1930, when the pneumonia death rate had dropped to 229.8 per 100,000 of population, the amount of solids precipitated from the air was down to 1,000 tons per square mile.

Dr. Maits also showed that the pneumonia death rate was greatest in wards where there was the greatest precipitation of solid matter from the air. At the points of highest mortality, as in the First, Second, Third and Twenty-second wards, a precipitation as great as 2,500 tons per square mile was noted, while in the Fourteenth, Twenty-ninth, Thirty-second and other wards with comparatively low mortality the precipitation was as low as 250 tons per square mile per year.

Pittsburgh, nicknamed "the Smoky City," has long been known as a city with a high pneumonia rate. An historian said of the town in 1815, the year before it became a city, that it was "a good place in which to earn a living, but a bad place in which to get sick, for the inhabitants are prone to die of lung fever." Our death rate from pneumonia was shown by Dr. Maits to be the highest recorded in any of the large cities—211.9 per 100,000 of population, as compared with 75.5 in San Francisco, the lowest rate.

For many years we have had an ordinance prohibiting the emission of dense smoke from industrial and commercial establishments for more than two minutes in 15 and from railroad locomotives for more than one minute in eight. The present ordinance went into effect in 1917, modifying one enacted in 1911.

Our concern at first was only with visible black smoke. A survey made 20 years ago showed annual loss of $9,844,740 in Pittsburgh because of smoke: a loss of $1,520,740 to manufacturers through imperfect combustion, the cause of smoke; a loss of $2,250,000 to individuals in laundry and dry cleaning bills, due to smoke; a loss of $2,232,000 to home owners forced to spend that amount in painting, cleaning wall paper and in extra artificial light, caused by smoke; a loss of $3,675,000 to wholesale and retail shops, and of $167,000 to public buildings.

By inducing manufacturers to install equipment and introduce methods which made for more complete combustion, the Bureau of Smoke Regulation has reduced the amount of prohibited smoke 78 per cent.

Unfortunately, however, there has been no such diminution in the invisible pollution of the air. Indeed, between 1913 and 1924, when the precipitation of tar, a product of black smoke, decreased 70 per cent, there was an increase of approximately 40 per cent in the precipitation of all solids. This was attributed to improvements in the draft of furnaces, which caused the gases to rise in the smokestacks with greater velocity and to pull a greater amount of solid particles along with them. Since 1924 there has been a decrease in the precipitation of solid matter.

Experience has shown that elimination of black smoke is not sufficient, and that purification of the air to safeguard health is probably more important than the elimination of smoke as an economic and esthetic measure.

The Bureau of Smoke Regulation should be given wider jurisdiction as a Bureau of Air Hygiene. To quote from a publication of the city Department of Health:

"Some day we will all realize that polluted air is as great a health menace as polluted water or exposure to an infectious disease."

We had 500 deaths a year from typhoid fever in Pittsburgh before we learned to filter the drinking water. This year, with filtered water, we have had only one death from typhoid.

We have had 406 deaths from pneumonia in Pittsburgh so far this year, and this is a year of low mortality. Up to this time last year we had had 688 deaths from pneumonia. In 1931 we had 1,406 deaths from pneumonia; in 1930 we had 1,170; in 1927 we had 1,033; in 1923 we had 2,050.

If the irritation of the lungs by the tiny particles in the air is, as many Pittsburgh physicians now believe, the factor that makes Pittsburghers so peculiarly susceptible to pneumonia, it behooves us to find some way of preventing this contamination of the air.

Pneumonia is not the only disease whose ravages might be lessened with purification of the atmosphere. Dust and other forms of solid matter in the air screen out the ultra-violet rays of the sun, whose curative value in rickets and certain other diseases is well-known. Get rid of the solid particles in the air and we shall enjoy more of the health-giving qualities of sunlight.

To reduce air pollution in Pittsburgh it is evident that domestic as well as commercial users of coal will have to improve methods of combustion so as to prevent emission not only of black smoke but also of the invisible solid particles.

You're All Wrong

And So Were We.

If you can answer these questions correctly you know more than Einstein:

1—Which is farther west, Los Angeles or Reno?
2—Is Jacksonville, Fla., east of Cleveland, O.?
3—Is any part of the Pacific Ocean east of New York?

Well, you are wrong on all three.

Jacksonville is west of Cleveland.

You can verify these facts by the atlas. We didn't believe them, either, until we were shown.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Ruby Keeler symbolizes the New Deal in movie girls—a getaway from platinum blondes, sinuous shrugs and super-sophistication. Wherever she went on her visit here, the crowds congealed, murmuring praise that rose to regimented clamor for her autograph.

Miss Keeler remains herself and her life is haloed with an appealing Cinderella theme that always catches the fervor of a crowd. She was born in a tenement district as Celtic as the blue of her eyes. And she has not forgotten. She calls on Mrs. Murphy and Mrs. O'Callahan.

Her beauty is even more pronounced off screen. Her dark hair falls in natural marcel over a boyish head, features chiseled out of white ivory are the background for lips of cherry red and peach-blown complexion. Her smile has a warming shyness.

But permit a local cinema chatterer to continue the rave: "Demure, entrancing, ravishing—behold Ruby Keeler!" The other evening Miss Keeler was leaving a theater on her husband's arm. A black carriage boy observed: "Mr. Jolson, you sure looks proudful." Al, with an expansive eye roll, beamed: "Boy, I is!"

She likes it in especially tall glasses and a statistician figures she easily consumes 20 beakers a day. But servitors did not mind toting her favorite liquid, for the evangelist is a liberal tipper.

Those are brave young men who, having built huts along Riverside Drive between Seventy-second and Seventy-ninth streets, are hopefully awaiting an uptake in events. There is none of the snarling defiance of the squatter or avenging of capitalistic wrongs. Many are last year's college graduates whose ambitious argosies foundered in, as Homer would put it, a wine dark sea. Those who look down from windows of majestic apartments call it Heartbreak Row. But that's a misnomer. There is no sniveling. Life has cuffed but not beaten them. And they are not interested in communism.

Of all single-handed reporting feats, that of Julian Ralph on Dana's Sun excels. After a day of observance he sat down at 7 p. m. and at midnight had finished his story of the dedication of Grant's tomb. He took no notes, yet with pencil and paper his stirring account filled the entire first page of the Sun and "jumped" inside for three columns. For the long haul Irvin Cobb surpassed that record in reporting the entire Thaw trial by longhand, rushing it page by page to the office by nimble-footed copy boys.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Washington, D. C., seems far away. Even if you live in Washington it seems far away. You cannot feel that your life is intimately connected with the government of these United States.

There is the great, gray capitol, looming so grandly against that pale violet sky. There is the White House, set serenely on its rolling lawns. There are the Representatives, the Senators, the Members of Cabinet, the countless committeemen and women, strutting or scurrying upon their important ways.

It's an impressive and exciting sight. You realize it means America. You realize, too, that you are paying for that sight—that you are supporting America. But, somehow, you can't feel that you're part of that show; that you, yourself—John or Jenny Jones, with your small job and your small opinions—really matter.

But you're wrong! It does matter. It matters more than anything else in America.

The public opinion of plain people has always mattered more than anything else in the making or maintaining of any government.

What made America—saved America through terrific trials? The heroism of Washington and Lincoln; the wisdom of Franklin and Jefferson? No!

THE OPINIONS AND REMARKS OF THE PLAIN PEOPLE.

(But wait a moment before you begin pinning medals on yourselves, John and Jenny Jones. There are two sides to this Plain People picture).

If Public Opinion can make a government, IT CAN ALSO UNMAKE IT. If much of our greatness has been due to Public Opinion, SO HAS MUCH OF OUR DISASTER.

Which brings us right up against the situation of today. America today is what the Plain People of America—what YOU, John or Jenny Jones—want it to be. If there is greatness in America it is because you wanted it there. BUT, ALSO, IF THERE IS WEAKNESS OR WICKEDNESS IN AMERICA, IT IS BECAUSE YOU WISHED IT TO BE THERE OR PERMITTED IT TO REMAIN THERE.

Yes, I know; you'll deny that. You'll say that you voted for better things.

BUT IT ISN'T THE CHECK YOU PUT ON THE BALLOT THAT MAKES OR UNMAKES YOUR COUNTRY. IT'S THE REMARK YOU PASS TO YOUR NEIGHBOR ACROSS YOUR BACK FENCE, OR TO THE MAN WHO SITS BY YOU IN THE STREET CAR, OR WORKS BY YOU AT BENCH OR DESK.

It's your whispered whine, your muttered threat, your wise-cracking sneer, that perpetuates depression, gums up recovery—AND, AS SURE AS GOD MADE LITTLE APPLES, WILL MAKE THINGS FAR WORSE BEFORE THEY GET BETTER IF YOU KEEP IT UP.

GOVERNMENTS AREN'T WRECKED BY BULLETS, BUT BY BUZZ-BUZZ.

And it isn't just the thing you say which determines history. It is also the thing you DON'T say, the thing you fail to say. The yawn of indifference, the disgusted shrug, the contemptuous smirk—these are quite as effective in forming public opinion as the wide open mouth.

But can't you criticize? Of course you can, if you preface that criticism with sincere investigation and back it with honest loyalty. Such constructive criticism is not only your privilege but your duty as a patriotic citizen. And if in the end such criticism proves well founded, we should do away with the people or the institutions which are causing the trouble.

BUT THE IDLE SHOOTING OFF OF THE MOUTH, IN THIS GRIM CRISIS OF OUR AFFAIRS, IS AS DISLOYAL AND DEADLY AS THE SHOOTING OF A TRAITOR'S GUN.

The Human Side of the News

A Treasure-Hunting Ship Sets Out from England—The Lure of Sunken Vessels—Rich Cargo of the Merida

By EDWIN C. HILL

AN item in the news must thrill the heart of anyone with a spark of adventure and a gleam of romance in his over-civilized soul. Out from the old port of Sunderland, on the east coast of England, sails a little cargo boat under sealed orders. Her deck is heaped with fascinating machinery and apparatus—diving bells and diving suits and salvage gear of all kinds. And all along the coast, which has bred hardy seadogs ever since the Red Haired Queen sent Francis Drake out to whip home the Spanish Armada, goes the word that the trim little ship is going treasure hunting on the bottom of the sea—to win the five million that went down when the Lusitania plunged to her grave off the Old Head of Kinsale.

As the English get ready to send divers down to prowl among the bones of the drowned Lusitania, our own Simon Lake, inventor of the submarine, prepares to make a try for the golden treasure in the liner's strongbox. He will go gold-hunting with an undersea boat, try to lay it up against the Lusitania's shattered hulk, and then have a try for the strongbox and the gold.

Only the other day the Italian salvage ship, Artiglio, slipped into Plymouth Harbor in England with $700,000 worth of gold and silver bars, torn by heroic efforts from the treasure room of the steamship Egypt, lying on the ocean floor off the coast of France.

A thrilling tale of the sea and of the treasure hunters, that saga of the recovery of the Egypt's treasure of $5,000,000 in gold bars and several tons of silver. The old Atlantic, with the aid of the Storm King, fought savagely to keep her golden hoard, and 14 men were killed before daring divers, working deep down in the cold darkness, by the eerie light of electric torches, dynamited their way to the treasure room and blew it apart.

Another Fortune At Bottom of Sea

DIVERS have found the hulk of the Ward Liner Merida which lies partly buried in sand and seaweed on the ocean floor off Cape Charles, Virginia, where she went down 22 years ago. In the purser's room of the Merida are 21 tons of silver and gold, and a casket containing the crown jewels of the Emperor Maximilian, worth at least a million dollars. Time after time men have backed expeditions to recover the rich prize, but gales and high seas have defeated every effort of courage and skill. Percy Rockefeller, Charles H. Sabin and others financed an effort in 1916. Eight years later a number of Philadelphia sportsmen, including A. J. Drexel Biddle, Jr., and Franklin Mallory, sent out futile expeditions.

And now, with new and wonderful diving machinery, the belief is that the Merida's treasure can be won—the tons of gold and silver, the 4,000 tons of copper, the 2,000 kegs of rum and the 40 crates of parrots that made up her cargo. The parrots, one fancies, won't be much good—a trifle passe after all these years on the bottom of the Atlantic.

Syndicate Formed To Seek Treasure

BUT the whole world is treasure hunting these days, and serious men of affairs—bankers, lawyers, merchants—are as romantic about it as if they were sailing with Capt. John Silver bound for Treasure Island. In New York a great syndicate has been formed to salvage a cargo of ivory lost off the African coast, and to seek other sea-floor treasure troves.

Capt. Arthur I. Henriques, of the United States Naval Reserve, retired, tells me that in the past 20 years the American merchant marine alone has lost over 4,600 ships, with a cargo value of a $120,000,000. There's enough promise of adventure in that to last the syndicate members all their natural lives.

Even with the new machines and the electric gadgets, treasure hunting cannot be robbed of its romance. It would be a dull day for modern youth and grownups, too, if the time ever came when there were no more Spanish galleons or doubloons or pieces of eight, no more pirate chests of gold and jewels, no more maps and charts to treasure islands in faraway seas.

And I believe, as surely as I am writing this, that the time will come when adventurers will walk freely about the bottom of the sea, seeking in mysterious depths, among unsuspected monsters of the deep, the yellow gold—almighty gold—for which, as old Ben Jonson wrote to the Countess of Rutland, "All virtue now is sold, and almost every vice!"

MEMORIES AND HOMES

By Winifred Black

If you could have just exactly the house you want, just exactly where you wanted it—what kind of a house would you have?

Would you like a nice, shiny, brand new apartment with thick rugs on hardwood floors, mirrors all over the place, indirect lighting, and an elevator boy all smiles to take you up to the tip-top floor any time you wanted to come home day or night?

Or would you like a little cozy flat somewhere—a walk up maybe, with all the rooms—"outside," and most of the room outside, too?

Or would you take a run out into the suburbs and get a neat, respectable little house exactly like all the rest of the houses in the row, with a neat back yard and a neat garage, and a neat little living room and a dining room where you would really live most of the time?

Or would you find a little hollow in the green hills somewhere and take your easy chair and your desk and your good competent kitchen range and move them into a little low ceilinged, old-fashioned farm house with sunken floors and stairs that creaked and a row of hollyhocks along the fence, and a couple of bee hives out under the apple trees?

What's the prettiest house you ever saw in your life?

I know a little house made of logs—it stands on a sloping meadow that reaches down to blue water.

All around the meadow are tall pine trees—so tall that you almost have to lie down to be able to see the tops of them.

There is redwood in those woods, and there are ferns there and every tree seems to have its little family of squirrels.

Nice place, the little log cabin, but you would have to be either very happy or very sad indeed to be comfortable there.

The house is three-cornered, too, and there are roses growing along the fence and sweet peas and bachelor buttons whispering together under the rather rickety windows.

Lovely place—in the day time.

But at night when the moon rides high above the dark forest and the wheels begin to turn on the mountain road, strange, swift, hurrying wheels and mysterious men in the cars that the wheels carry—no I'd rather live somewhere else.

I used to know a roomy old house with a gallery and a paved porch, and low ceilinged rooms and a winter kitchen and a summer kitchen. I can shut my eyes and see the wild cucumber vines climbing up the pillars of the back porch this very minute, and when I do that, I always see there the shadowy figures of two little boys, grating the wild horseradish they had just dug in the woods, or running to the pump at the back end of the porch to throw dippers of water at each other. One of those little boys lives in rather a grand house, in rather a grand street, in a great world-famous city.

The other has a little flat in a crowded district in a hurrying bustling town which hardly knows he exists.

I wonder what either of them would give to be on that back porch again crying over the wild horseradish or throwing dippers full of cool well water at each other?

After all the house doesn't matter so much, does it?

It's the people in it, and best of all, the memories that belong to it—don't you think so?
